Car ambushed in Iran

Guerrillas kill 3 Americans

TEHRAN, Iran (AP) — Urban guerrillas ambushed a car carrying three Americans and killed them with a barrage of automatic weapons fire in a Tehran suburb Saturday morning, Iranian officials said.

The Iranian government blamed the killing of the three civilians on the same "Islamic Marxists" who have killed three U.S. military officers since 1973.

The U.S. Embassy said the dead men, all from California, were employes of Rockwell International working on a research project for the Iranian government. A spokesman for Rockwell, a U.S. defense contractor, declined to disclose the nature of the project.

NBC News reported, however, that the three were installing a sophisticated electronic intelligence-gathering system under the code name Project IBEX that is expected to cost the Iranian government as much as $500 million.

The embassy said Ambassador Richard Helms conveyed his deepest condolences to the families of the dead, saying, "This brutal and mindless crime serves no cause and demonstrates the heartless cruelty of the perpetrators." Shah Mohammed Reza Pahlevi also expressed his sincere regrets, the embassy said.

In Vail, Colo., President Ford said through a spokesman that he was "deeply saddened by the senseless murders."

"The brutal attack against innocent civilian Americans is tragic evidence of the need for renewed efforts to cope with senseless acts of terrorism," the statement continued.

It also expressed "hope that the murderers will be brought to justice" and said "the President extends deepest sympathy to the families."

A spokesman for the Autonetics Group, a Rockwell division in Anaheim, Calif., identified the dead as William C. Cottrell Jr. of Los Gatos, Autonetics' overseas manager; Robert R. Krongard of Sunnyvale, engineering manager; and Donald G. Smith of Yorba Linda, acting logistics manager.

All three were 43 years old, married and had their families with them in Iran, the spokesman said. Cottrell had two children and Krongard two, he said.

Rockwell and other American firms have some 24,000 civilians in Iran, many of them technicians training Iranians to use new U.S. weapons systems. Others are developing Iran's economy and industry.

The Iranian government said several guerrillas blocked the Americans' automobile in the suburan area of Tehran-nou as they drove to work in morning rush-hour traffic. They sprayed the car with machine-gun fire and then fled, a statement said.

39 die in 2 AF plane crashes

One in Britain, the other in Greenland; 6 survivors burned

By The Associated Press

Thirty-nine persons were killed Saturday when two U.S. Air Force C141 transports from McGuire Air Force Base, N.J., crashed about three hours apart, one in England and one in Greenland.

The Military Airlift Command said 21 persons died in the Greenland accident at 10:50 a.m. EDT. Six others survived, although they were burned severely.

The Pentagon said there apparently were no survivors among the 18 persons aboard the plane that crashed in England at 7:45 a.m. EDT.

Military authorities said there was no apparant connection between the crashes of the large four-engine transports.

The crash in England that took the lives of 14 crew members and four passengers occurred during a thunderstorm, and one eyewitness said he thought lightning hit the plane.

Unofficial reports said the victims of the Greenland crash included 13 Americans, 5 Danes and 3 Greenlanders. Weather conditions at the time of that accident were not known.

Pentagon officials said the six survivors of the Greenland crash would be flown to the Army burn center in San Antonio, Tex. They were identified as two Americans, two Danes and two residents of Greenland, a possession of Denmark.

Officials at McGuire said the plane that crashed in Sonderstrom, Greenland, had left the New Jersey base at 8:45 a.m. EDT Friday. The plane that went down at Peterborough, England, had left at 12:30 a.m. EDT Saturday.

"It is believed there is no connection between the two" crashes, said Lt. Col. John B. Richmond, a spokesman at McGuire. And in Washington, a Pentagon spokesman said there was no indication of sabotage.

Authorities launched investigations into both crashes.

The Pentagon said names of those aboard the planes were being withheld until their families could be notified.

The crash in England involved a C141 Starlifter en route to Mildenhall Royal Air Force Base, about 35 miles from the crash site.

Police cordoned off the crash scene, and firemen and emergency workers stood by waiting for the smouldering wreckage to cool.

It was not known immediately whether the four passengers were military or civilians.

"The plane is completely burned out and there could not possibly be any survivors," said one witness to the accident.

Reports from the scene said the plane nosedived into a field.

The aircraft involved in the Greenland crash, from the 438th Military Airlift Wing at McGuire, had just arrived on a flight from Thule Air Base, Greenland, when it "encountered difficulties on landing," the Pentagon said. It did not elaborate on the difficulties.

Greenland radio, monitored in Copenhagen, said the plane skidded on the runway, tipped over on one wing and burst into flames.

The plane carried a crew of eight and 19 passengers, the Pentagon said.

'Dead' tot revived

3 killed in freeway crash

LOS ANGELES (AP) — Three persons were killed in a chain reaction auto crash on the Harbor Freeway Saturday, but a 3-year-old girl who had been declared dead was revived, authorities said.

Minutes after the crash, a Los Angeles teenager allegedly driving a stolen truck was arrested about a mile from the accident and booked for investigation of manslaughter and felony hit and run, authorities said.

The highway patrol said the teenager's vehicle, traveling northbound at an estimated 80 miles per hour, rear-ended a car—occupied by three elderly persons, which was forced into the oncoming lane of the Harbor Freeway. The car smashed head-on into a third vehicle carrying two adults and twin girls, a spokesman said.

The highway patrol said Darnell Cole, 18, of Los Angeles was booked for investigation of one count of felony drunken driving, three counts of felony manslaughter and one count of auto theft. They said he was treated for minor injuries at Harbor General Hospital in Torrance and then taken to the Los Angeles County sheriff's station in Carson.

Authorities said the driver of the car that was rear-ended and her husband, both in their late 70s, were killed. They were not immediately identified. A passenger in their car, Ella Quiraim, about 80, of Porterville, Calif., received minor injuries, authorities said.

The woman in the third car and one of her daughters were declared dead after being taken to Harbor General Hosptial, but the daughter was revived by doctors, authorities said.

A highway patrol spokesman said the girl's vital signs "had been zero" when she arrived at the hospital. She remained in critical condition with massive skull fractures, the spokesman said.

THREE WOUNDED IN SHOOTOUT

Patrolman Anthony Canning sits in his car following downtown Tempe, Ariz., shootout Saturday that left Patricia Long, her 10-month-old son, Christopher, and a companion, Floyd Evans 36, wounded. Police said Canning had stopped to question the couple in the shooting death Saturday of Mrs. Long's husband when Evans allegedly started shooting at him.

Hair x-ray tried on Legionnaires

LEXINGTON, Mass. (AP) — Physicists are X-raying hair from survivors of legionnaire's disease to see if they were poisoned by nickel carbonyl, as some other tests have suggested.

Preliminary results are already in, one of the physicists said Saturday, but they will not be released until the tests are finished about the middle of this week.

Harvard Prof. Paul Horowitz, one of four members of the research team that developed the new X-ray technique, said three of the six hairs received Friday from the Pennsylvania Health Department have already been tested.

"We could say crudely what we've got so far, but we don't want to," he said. "We feel we have to exhaust the possibilities before we announce to the world what we've got."

Twenty-eight deaths have been attributed to legionnaire's disease, the mysterious illness whose origin is still unknown.

A total of 177 cases, including the fatalities, have been recorded.

Because of the novelty of the scanning proton microprobe, the researchers are not confident their tests will be conclusive.

"It's a stab in the dark," said Aronson. "If something shows up, then great."

Horowitz added: "One problem is we don't know whether nickel shows up in your hair when you're poisoned by nickel carbonyl. If we don't see nickel, we can't say anything. It might go in your body but just not be deposited in your hair."

Ontario cop hurt when hit by car

An Ontario police officer was hospitalized Saturday night after he was hit by a vehicle at Milliken and Holt avenues about 8:16 p.m.

Officer Terry Willis was directing traffic while a tow truck righted a truck and trailer near the 76 Truck Stop (Story on page 2.)

The load of 46,500 pounds of peaches, cantaloupes and plums was unloaded before the trailer could be uprighted.

Highway patrolmen are investigating the accident involving the officer and did not disclose the driver's identity.

Saturday's accident was the second in two days involving an Ontario officer.

Highway Patrol officers said the police officer did not have the car's emergency lights or siren operating.

Heat, smog to continue

The current heat wave accompanied by heavy smog, will continue to plague Valley residents for the next few days, the National Weather Service reported Saturday.

Temperatures soared past the 100 mark Saturday, and reached as high as 104 at Ontario International Airport.

A second-stage smog alert was called at 4 p.m. in the Pomona, Walnut, Ontario and Chino areas.

Weather

Late night and early morning low clouds and local fog. Hazy sunshine in the afternoons. Highs today and Monday in the high 90's, lows in the mid 60's. Sunset tonight 7:21 p.m., sunrise Monday 6:23 a.m., sunset 7:20 p.m.

Taiwan secretly making A-bombs?

WASHINGTON (AP) — Taiwan has been secretly reprocessing spent uranium fuel, an operation that can produce atomic weapons material, U.S. intelligence reports indicate, according to The Washington Post.

It is unclear how long Taiwan has been conducting the secret operation or how much bomb material may have been produced, the newspaper quoted unnamed U.S. officials as saying.

The story in the Post's Sunday editions said officials of the Arms Control and Disarmament Agency and the Energy Research and Development Administration are familiar with the intelligence reports.

"I can't confirm any of it," a spokesman for the arms control agency told The Associated Press when asked about the story. An ERDA spokesman declined comment.

The Post said officials of the two government agencies expressed doubt that Taiwan has amassed enough material to make an atomic bomb.

"The United States is said to be fearful of revealing the source of its intelligence, particularly while still seeking to learn the full extent of the secret work," the newspaper said.

It said ACDA officials report they have been stalling on an application to export two additional nuclear power plants to Taiwan, in hopes Taiwan will see it as a signal to stop secret reprocessing.

Four large U.S. nuclear power plants were approved for export in 1972 and 1974 as part of a Taiwan program designed to provide half the island's electricity needs from nuclear sources in 1985.

The issue of nuclear proliferation has become hotly controversial in the aftermath of an explosion by India using some material supplied by the United States for peaceful purposes.

The possibility that Taiwan could be using U.S. materials supplied for peaceful purposes in an effort to develop nuclear weapons would be very troublesome for the Ford administration, particularly in the midst of an election campaign.

Such U.S. sanctions as terminating export licenses for Taiwan's nuclear power program could anger conservatives in the United States, already disgruntled at what they regard as slights to Taiwan in favor of mainland China.

WANTS TO BE FREED

L. Ewing Scott, 81-year-old former investment banker, is pictured on way to court asking to be freed from San Quentin. Scott's wife, Evelyn, disappeared from their Bel Air home in 1955 and her body was never found. He was found guilty of her murder after a highly-publicized trial. In 1974 Scott refused parole because he felt it would be an admission that the jury's verdict was correct. He has asked U.S. District Court Judge Robert Peckham for writ of habeas corpus. Peckham took the matter under advisement.

Federal drugs price cutting plan to start

WASHINGTON (AP) — The government's pioneer program to reduce the $3 billion it spends annually on drugs for children, the aged and the poor formally swings into motion later this month, barring an unfavorable court ruling.

The projected savings of $60 million or more may not be realized for a year at the earliest, but the fact that the drug cost control program has even survived represents a victory for health planners and consumer and elderly groups who view it as a necessary precursor to national health insurance.

The program is called MAC, short for Maximum Allowable Cost. To reduce drug expenses, it places price ceilings on some of the drugs most commonly prescribed for Medicaid, Medicare and Public Health Service patients; controls fees reimbursing pharmacists who buy and dispense the drugs, and regularly updates the drug price lists informing doctors and patients of less expensive substitutes for the medicines they are using.

What will the program mean to you?

—If you're on Medicaid, your doctor may begin prescribing a less expensive substitute for the drug you are now taking.

—Medicare for the elderly covers drugs only if they are prescribed in a hospital, and cost controls have been in effect for years, so the effect on the patient would be minimal.

—If you are a private patient, your doctor will be regularly informed of lower priced drugs that the government considers to be identical to more expensive brand-name drugs, but it is up to him and you whether to switch.

The American Medical Association, the Pharmaceutical Manufacturers Association and the National Association of Retail Druggists have all opposed the program, filing a suit challenging it in U.S. District Court in Chicago. A decision could be handed down before the program is scheduled to go into effect Aug. 26.

Dr. Mark Novitch, deputy association commissioner for medical affairs at the Food and Drug Administration, admits that a ruling stating no legislative authority exists for the program "could stall it or kill it."

Novitch estimates that if the program had been in operation in fiscal year 1975, it would have saved taxpayers $37 million in drug purchase costs and another $23 million to $38 million in pharmacist fees.

The prescription drug industry charges that the government has been inflating its savins estimate and deflating administrative expenses. Manufacturers worry that widespread price-shopping for the lowest-priced drug will cut into their revenue needed to finance research into new medicines.

Asked about that and other allegations, Secretary David Mathews of Health, Education and Welfare told a House appropriations subcommittee earlier this year that the only way to determine if the program is worthwhile is to try it.

The idea for government cost controls on the drugs it purchases was born a decade ago when the late President Lyndon B. Johnson ordered HEW to study the possibility of broadening Medicare coverage for the elderly to include the purchase of prescription drugs.

A task force reported two years later, after President Richard M. Nixon took office, that Medicare first needed some method of controlling costs and assuring that interchangeable drugs performed the same way in the body. Medicare still does not pay for outpatient drugs.

In late 1973, then-HEW Secretary Caspar W. Weinberger publicly unveiled the maximum allowable cost and, out of fear that it might be abandoned by a successor, put his signature on the final regulations just before he left office last fall.

"It is significant that we are instituting a cost-conscious reimbursement system for prescription drugs now, before national health insurance comes into being," said Weinberger, whose budget-cutting reputation earned him the nickname "Cap the Knife."

"Without limits on drug reimbursement and incentives to utilize lower-priced drugs, a prescription drug benefit under national health insurance could become prohibitively expensive," he said.

In response to doctors' complaints that the government was interfering with the practice of medicine, HEW ruled that a doctor can continue to prescribe a more expensive brand-name drug by certifying that it is medically necessary.

Secondly, the government can set a price ceiling only if a less-expensive drug is generally available, has the same biological action (called bioequivalence) and faces no regulatory action that would affect its availability in the foreseeable future.

Novitch said HEW will propose the first drug — not yet chosen — in several dosage strengths to its Pharmaceutical Reimbursement Advisory Committee for inclusion on the program's price list in late September.

If that trial run succeeds, others will be proposed in following months. It might take as long as six months before the first small group of drugs has gone through the process. The number of drugs may range between 10 and 50, depending on the point at which administrative costs exceed potential savings.

Here, from HEW's Medicaid office, is an example of how drug prices vary from one manufacturer to another: Hoffmann-La Roche markets the tranquilizer Librium, one of the 10 most prescribed drugs in the country, for $25.26 per 500 5-milligram tablets, $33.88 per 500 10-mg. tablets and $11.63 per 100 25-mg. tablets. Last month, Smith Kline & French began marketing its own less expensive generic version called SK-Lygen for $13.50, $18.90 and $5.40, respectively, and offers a 10 per cent discount for quantities of 500.

Prices for ampicillin range from $18.93 per 100 250-mg. capsules of Bristol's Plycillin to $7.25 for a comparable number and dosage strength of SmithKline's SK-Ampicillin. The price for penicillin VK ranges from $10.47 per 100 25-mg. tablets of Wyeth's Pen Vee K to $6 for SmithKline's SK-Penicillin VK.

SmithKline now markets 14 generic drugs, a trend that has developed among major manufacturers during the last two or three years as old brand-name pharmaceuticals have lost their 17-year patent protection. In some cases, one company manufactures bulk drugs for several others who sell at widely varying prices.

The government's program will be aimed first at the drugs largest in volume and price, and with the fewest scientific and bioequivalance problems, to yield the biggest savings. While the Maximum Allowable Cost program applies only to multiple-source drugs, the pharmacy reimbursement policy will apply to patented drugs available from a single manufacturer as well.

The American Pharmaceutical Association, which so far has supported the drug purchase provision, has asked HEW to switch to a plan reimbursing druggists for the actual acquisition cost of a prescription medicine plus a dispensing fee, rather than letting state Medicaid agencies determine the fee and estimate the acquisition cost.

The association contends its smaller members are at a competitive disadvantage alongside the big chains and independents who get special volume discounts. Novitch said that determining the actual acquisition costs poses administrative difficulty.

FRUIT EXPRESS DELAYED

As the temperature peaked at 104 degrees during a two-stage smog alert Saturday, Jerry Beeman of Houston, Tex. turned his truck and trailer off the San Bernardino Freeway at Milliken Avenue. As he made a right turn onto Holt Avenue to go to the 76 Truck Stop, the entire load shifted, and the truck and trailer flipped onto its side. Beeman was headed for Houston after picking up 46,500 pounds of Cantaloupe, peaches and plums at Sanger. Before the truck and trailer could be righted, the fresh crated fruit had to be unloaded from the trailer bottom photo. At top, Beeman tries to locate something in his cab.

Spotlight on crime

Robbers hit three business in valley

A gas station, photo store and fast-food restaurant were the targets of the armed robberies in separate incidences in Claremont and Pomona Friday afternoon and evening.

The gas station, Adams Chevron at 805 W. Foothill Blvd., Claremont, was robbed at about 9:15 p.m. as an attendant was in the process of closing the business.

Two youths, said police, approached the attendant, asked for change for a dollar bill and then pulled a gun and robbed the station cash drawer of a small amount of cash.

One of the suspects was said to be black, about 17, 5 feet 9 and weighing about 170 pounds. The other was described as black, 12 or 13 years of age, about 5 feet 5 weighing 125 pounds. They fled the location on foot, going northbound on Mountain Avenue.

Fotomat shop at 765 Indian Hill Blvd., Pomona, was held up at about 5:40 p.m. by a man weilding a blue steel revolver.

Clerk Yolanda Uribe, said police, handed over a small amount of money from the shop's cash register after the man walked up to the booth and pulled the gun from his belt.

Suspect was described as white, about 28, 6 feet, slim build, with blonde hair, blue eyes, and a mustache.

He was said to be wearing a orange plaid shirt and blue jeans. He fled the location on foot.

Der Wienerschnitzel, 1382 W. Holt Ave., Pomona, was robbed at about 10:50 p.m. by two gunmen, one wielding a revolver and the other a sawed-off shotgun.

According to police, the men entered the small restaurant through a back door, confronting clerk Karl Heuss, 17, and other workers and proceeded to clean out the store's cash register of a small number of bills.

Pomonan shot three times; pair arrested

A Pomona man was in critical condition Saturday night at Pomona Valley Community Hospital after being shot three times late Friday night in the parking lot behind the Palms Bar, 903 E. Mission Blvd., Pomona.

Police identified the victim as John A. Smith. His age and address were not immediately known. Police said he had been beaten with a pool cue as well as being shot.

A fight, said police, had apparently occurred in the parking lot for unknown reasons and the victim was pulled from his car during the incident.

Two men, identified only as Rolando J. Tolentino and Vernon Cary Jackson, were arrested on suspicion of attempted murder.

Adapted to find jobs for ex-cons

Prison game has new players: businessmen

WASHINGTON (AP) — Tension ran high as the three men and two women watched their fortunes plummet.

The loan shark was into Rob for ten bucks, and the rent was due. That was another $150. The $75 they gave him when he left prison was long gone. There was no work for an excon who got caught.

What to do? "I think I'm going to push a little dope," he mused. He did, and was home free with $100. Well, why not a simple little burglary? He was free again and $300 richer. Another burglary, and then another ....

Then the cops caught on, and Rob was back in the slammer.

Two sociologists developed the game, called "Pros and Cons," and the National Alliance of Businessmen has adapted it for use in a program to find jobs for ex-convicts.

The organization is distributing about 350 game sets to its 130 local offices around the country. Executives will be invited to play the game in hopes they'll gain some understanding of what it's like to be on parole and unable to find work.

"It puts the businessman in the role of the parolee. It demonstrates the futility of the system and the attitude of employers," said John Armore, NAB vice president for the ex-offender employment program.

Armore speaks from firsthand experience. Though he was a lawyer and former insurance executive, he had trouble finding a job when he was released after serving a prison sentence of 3½ years for embezzlement. So he combined his past experiences and began campaigning in the business community for prison reform.

Armore and one of his assistants, David Floyd, said in an interview that many businessmen still are reluctant to hire ex-convicts.

Armore said the NAB "has been instrumental in finding opportunities for some 25,000 ex-offenders" in the three-year-old program.

Armore said he hopes the game, developed by Massachusetts sociologists Susan Cooper and Eleanor Miller, will help business executives understand why some ex-convicts who can't find work return to crime.

"A job is not the total answer to the crime problem, but there is no answer without a job," he added.

Armore, Floyd and three colleagues played the game the other day and found that sometimes crime is the only apparent option.

With a roll of the dice, each player moves a certain number of spaces around the board. On each play, he has an opportunity to look for work and may choose to lie about his criminal record or tell the truth.

Floyd got lucky on his first play. He told the truth, and still got a $65-a-week job as a presser in a dry cleaning plant.

Rob Burgener's first job was as a $70-a-week chauffeur. But he had to spend $80 for a uniform.

One by one, all but Floyd tried committing crimes to get the money for their bills. And one by one, the roll of the dice sent them to jail.

Floyd turned out to be the plucky one who survived by getting and keeping a low-paying job, working nights and overtime and doing a little loan-sharking on the side.

Calls for secret ballot

RTD refuses to budge

LOS ANGELES (AP) — Rapid Transit District directors refused Saturday to alter their contract offer to striking bus drivers and mechanics and called for a union secret ballot election to end the six-day-old strike.

"We challenge the union leadership to take our latest offer before the membership in a secret ballot," said Byron Cook, RTD president, following a 2½-hour closed-door meeting.

Cook said the RTD offer was "eminently fair" and exceeded the recommendations of a fact-finding board set up by the governor.

Drivers and mechanics walked off the job Monday in a dispute over wages. It was Southern California's second major transit strike in two years, forcing more than 750,000 bus riders to find alternate transportation, clogging freeways and streets and increasing air pollution in the Los Angeles basin.

The United Transportation Union, representing the drivers, is asking for raises totaling 24.64 per cent over three years, while the RTD has offered 19.47 per cent. Cook said at issue with the mechanics, represented by the Amalgamated Transit Union, is pay for newly hired maintenance workers.

Drivers currently earn about $6.67 an hour and mechanics make $8.03 an hour.

Meanwhile, the RTD has promised to deliver by next week paychecks that had been withheld from the striking drivers and mechanics.

RTD officials said late Friday that the company's 5,000 drivers and 1,000 mechanics could pick up partial payment of their wages from their district supervisors after 5 p.m. Monday or Tuesday. The checks, which were due Friday, cover the two-week period prior to the strike.

John Wilkens, the RTD's chief negotiator, who attended the Saturday board meeting, said he would ask State Concilator Thomas McCarthy to call both unions back to the bargaining table. The UTU broke off negotiations Tuesday after the RTD rejected its contract proposal. The mecahnics union and the RTD have not met since a day-long session Thursday.

Commercial zoning west of Chino, say county planners

County planners apparently have recommended more commercial zoning than residents want along Riverside Drive west of the Chino city limits.

San Bernardino County planning commissioners — while turning down a controversial proposed shopping center including a K-Mart store at Riverside Drive and Pipeline Avenue — still recommended to the Board of Supervisors that the corner be zoned commercial.

The C1 (lower commercial) zoning would carry a "T" standard, requiring site approval and public hearings before projects can be approved. More specifics of the "T" standard are yet to be worked out.

All the zone changes by planners were recommended by the staff to conform to 1974 city-county general plan amendments.

However, the commission meeting, meeting in Chino this week, did not follow the general plan in declining to rezone commercial property to agricultural at Riverside and East End.

Planners retained C1 zoning there, adding only the "T" standard, after owners of various existing businesses said they would not be allowed to upgrade their properties.

Neighboring residents who favor preserving the area's rural lifestyle told commissioners they oppose the commercial zoning. "We ask that all commercial on Riverside be changed to agricultural," said Anne Leslie of the West End Homeowners Association.

The planners also recommended "downzoning" various residentially-zoned areas west of Norton Avenue to conform to the general plan. If approved by the supervisors, the action would provide for lower densities in response to those favoring a rural atmosphere.

In other business, the commission continued a public hearing on the general plan amendment for the north Chino area to next Thursday at 2 p.m. in San Bernardino.

The 2,000-acre area is bounded by the Los Angeles County line, Benson Avenue, Phillips Avenue and the northerly city limits.

Pomona man jailed in child beating

A Pomona man was arrested on suspicion of child beating early Saturday morning at Pomona Valley Community Hospital following the treatment of four children at the hospital for severe abrasions and contusions.

Police identified the man as Donald Wheatley, of 801 Lewis Ave. He was held on $5,000 bail.

Wheatley was said to the common-law husband of Sandra East, whose four children were treated at the hospital.

Police said they had gone to the home at the request of neighbors and observed the injuries of the children as they slept. The injuries were apparently caused by being whipped with a belt.

S. D. city Council to approve Bingo

Non-profit organizations and groups will be allowed by city ordinance to conduct bingo games as fund-raisers by Oct. 13.

The San Dimas City Council has approved the first reading of an ordinance allowing bingo in the city, and is expected also to unanimously approve the second and final reading at its Sept. 14 meeting.

All council members agreed last week that the $50 annual fee suggested by City Atty. George Wakefield might prove a bit high for church and charitable organizations, and dropped the fee to $25 per year.

However, no objections were made to the strict requirements set up by Wakefield in drafting the ordinance. Permits will be issued only to non-profit charitable organizations which qualify for this status according to the regulations of the state Franchise Tax Board and the Internal Revenue Service.

The ordinance excludes minors from participation and requires that such games must be open to the adult public, not merely members of the organization.

Additional conditions include:

— No individual, corporation, partnership or other legal entity is authorized to conduct a bingo game or to have a financial interest in the conduct of such a game.

— All profits derived from a bingo game shall be kept in a special fund or account and shall not be co-mingled with any other fund or account. Such funds may be expended only for the use and benefit of such charitable organization.

— The total value of prizes awarded during the conduct of any bingo game shall not exceed $250 in cash or kind or both for each separate game which is held.

When the bingo ordinance becomes effective, interested groups may obtain application forms at City Hall.

Zsa Zsa does it again weds number seven

Miss Gabor, 56, and Michael O'Hara were married Friday in the bridal suite of the Las Vegas Hilton. It was O'Hara's fourth marriage.

Miss Gabor's divorce action against Ryan, filed one year after the couple's wedding here, asked that he pay her $2,915 in outstanding obligations and another $50,000 to complete a nightclub he had promised to build in her Bel Air home.

Motorcyclist hurt in crash

A motorcyclist was in good condition Saturday at Pomona Valley Community Hospital with injuries suffered in a traffic accident Friday on Franklin Avenue in Pomona.

Gilbert Maldanado, 17, of 2285 Gambier St., Pomona was westbound on Franklin, said police, when a car driven by George Albert Kister, 20, of 1049 Berlyn St., Ontario, attempted a u-turn in front of him.

In the collision, Maldanado's motorcycle skidded into the side of the car, throwing the driver to the pavement.

Plague closes new area near Tahoe

PLACERVILLE (AP) — Bubonic plague has been found in a chipmunk at Wright's Lake Campground southwest of Lake Tahoe, forcing its closure.

El Dorado County health officer Dr. Curtis E. Weidmer said Thursday that state forestry and health officials were consulted in the closing, the seventh of a California recreation area this year because of the plague.

Weidmer said the area would be treated with insecticides.

McVittie predicts passage of anti-crime legislation

Members of the ELEANOR ROOSEVELT DEMOCRATIC CLUB will formally open their new headquarters at 743 E. Mission Blvd., Pomona, Friday at 7:30 p.m.

Special guests will include Rep. Jim Lloyd, D-35th Dist., state Sen. Ruben Ayala, D-32nd Dist., Assemblyman Bill McVittie, D-65th Dist., Sandy Baldanado, nominee in the 62nd Assembly District and mayors Marvin Ersner, San Dimas, Mike Morales, La Verne, Paul Treadway, Ontario, and Nevin Brown, West Covina.

The headquarters will provide working space for staffs of Democratic candidates and an information center for the public.

The staff personnel includes Jerry Voorhis and John C. McCarthy, Claremont, honorary co-chairmen; Leisa Bronson, Pomona, and Kit Tournay, Claremont, co-chairmen; Rickie Santell, West Covina, grand opening chairman; Pat Radamaker, Claremont, ways and means chairman; Collin Moore, treasurer; Rosalind Kling, Pomona, hospitality chairman; Lori McCarthy, Claremont, literature chairman; Ruth Daggett, Pomona, office receptionist; and Dr. Walter M. Brasch, Ontario, media and publicity coordinator.

The public is invited to the headquarters opening.

THE REPUBLICAN NATIONAL COMMITTEE has selected the 35th Congressional District as the site to train phone bank supervisors from the western United States.

Some 200 persons are expected to arrive tonight for two days of training in the procedure of identifying Republican support and getting out the vote on election day.

Louis Brutocao, the Republican nominee in the 35th District, will greet the workers as they arrive at Ontario International Airport from Alaska, Hawaii, Washington, Oregon, Arizona and California.

Sharon Wadsworth of the national committee will direct the seminar to conclude on Tuesday. The supervisors will work in Brutocao's newly opened campaign office at 117 Euclid Ave., Ontario.

CLYDE STEPHENS, Republican nominee in the 65th Assembly District, has called for an end to the probation subsidy program which he claims has been a "dismal failure."

Speaking to members of the California Credit Union League, he said counties have been compensated by the state for releasing convicted felons back into society on probation.

"The state pays up to $4,000 for each convicted felon released on probation at the county level rather than being sent to state prison. A majority of these felons were re-arrested while on probation for the commission of other crimes," said Stephens.

"It has been my contention that to reduce crime, we must reduce the convicted felon's access to society." Stephens said his opponent, Assemblyman Bill McVittie, D-65th Dist., has acknowledged this issue and is seeking an audit.

"Crime is on the rampage in our district with burglaries, murders, assaults and armed robberies. We don't need an audit, we need action," he declared.

ASSEMBLYMAN McVITTIE has predicted passage of anti-crime legislation that provides mandatory prison sentences for violent criminals.

Noting he co-authored a Senate bill that would prohibit probation for adult offenders convicted of three specified felony offenses in a 10-year period, McVittie reported it is becoming increasingly apparent that the most effective way to handle recidivists is to take them off the streets for longer periods.

McVittie said he has supported other tough law enforcement legislation that would abolish the indeterminate sentencing system and require mandatory prison terms for hard-drug dealers and persons convicted of crimes involving guns.

"I'm going to continue the fight for swift and certain punishment of lawbreakers and insist on statutory penalties that match the seriousness of the offense," he said.

ASSEMBLYMAN WILLIAM LANCASTER, R-62nd Dist., will give a "Sacramento Report" at a luncheon Thursday in Pomona.

The program, starting at 11:30 a.m., will be held at the La Cabana Restaurant, 500 N. Palomares St. Lancaster will discuss the state Legislature and needs for 1976-77.

Councilmember Georgia Grove of Pomona will give a brief report on the Republican National Convention held recently in Kansas City.

Vet treats poor people's pets

WHAT'S THE WORD DOC? — Dr. Allan Frank, 33, examines dog belonging to an Uptown youth in Chicago. Dr. Frank who freely roams through Chicago's worst crime ridden areas, is protected by street gangs, slum residents, and their children. He is the poor people's veterinarian, the street is his clinic, and his work is free.

CHICAGO (AP) — Dr. Allan Frank is the poor people's veterinarian. He roams freely through Chicago's most crime-ridden areas, protected by street gangs and slum residents, giving free animal care.

His clinic is the streets and his work is free, because he doesn't believe poverty should prevent a kid from having a healthy pet.

Frank says that so far this year he has given free distemper shots to more than 1,000 dogs and cats.

The people in the slums always know when he's on the way. The kids spread the word: "The Doc is coming. Bring your pets. It's free."

A wooden table is set up in a parking lot and "Doc," usually assisted by his wife, Ilisa, starts examining pets and inoculating them.

Sometimes he is sponsored by community groups or animal shelters. But if nobody sponsors him, he buys the vaccine himself.

Despite his work with pets in the slums, the 33-year-old Frank does not make his living at veterinary medicine. He teaches mentally handicapped youngsters at the Enrico Fermi School on the South Side and makes his rounds on his free time.

He received a veterinary degree from the University of Illinois in 1966 but says he couldn't take the practice.

"A little kid would come in without money and would walk out crying with his sick pup in his arms because he couldn't pay," said Frank. "I don't blame veterinarians, though. They get nothing free and have huge expenses. They feel they simply have to draw the line on free work.

"Personally, though, I couldn't take it. I went back to school and got a master's in special education. Now I can practice medicine the way I want."

Frank said many veterinarians think they have no community responsibility to deal with the poor who cannot pay.

"Some even think the poor shouldn't have animals. I think they should. They take them in regardless because they are merciful," said Frank. "Somebody's dog has a half dozen mongrel puppies and what's to be done? Flush them down the toliet? Take them to the pound where they'll be killed? No. Somebody takes them in.

"So some little kid's got a puppy she loves. So the family shares its food. And, damn it, why should that puppy die of distemper?" he said.

"Shish-ka-bob Soiree" is planned by club

The Foothill Presbyterian Hospital Men's Club will stage its second annual "Shish-ka-bob Soiree" amid an Arabian Nights setting at the George Duekmejian home in Glendora on Sept. 16.

Tickets at $15 will include Armenian food, exotic belly dancers, the Guy Chookoorian Mid-Eastern Band and refreshments.

Carlyle D. Colley, club president, is chairman of the stag event. Committee chairmen include Deukmejian, facilities and food; Clarke Boesen, refreshments; Peter McCormick, finances; Deak Preble, publicity, promotion and ticket sales; Keith Van Vliet, program and entertainment; and Mike Bevilacqua, prizes.

Vietnam begins drafting soldiers

BANGKOK, Thailand (AP) — Fifteen months after the end of the Vietnam war, Vietnam's Communist government has begun drafting men for military service in the southern half of the country, Saigon radio announced today.

"The military training will bring about a capable and strong army of Vietnam," a broadcast said.

"To join the army is to perform a citizen's duty ... and all youths should participate. In our new system, the people's army is a big school for training youths, and when their service is over, each individual will be trained in a skill and will return to his home town to join other workers to rebuild Vietnam into a prosperous and strong nation," Hanoi's official newspaper Nhan Dan said.

There has been no demobilization of the former North Vietnamese army of about 700,000 regular troops, the fifth largest in the world. Army units have been put to work on road and railway construction, agricultural development and other projects.

Such details as the draft ages, length of service and the number to be drafted were not announced.

Teddy Roosevelt rides again

FORT LAUDERDALE, Fla. (AP) — Teddy Roosevelt rides again, but this time he is traveling from school to school to lead inquisitive teen-agers in assaults on poor nutrition.

This "Teddy" is Bob Boyd, a Fort Lauderdale actor and teacher who has donned pincenez and morning coat for 400 "press conferences" with Florida schoolchildren.

Beginning in January, Boyd will take his show on the road throughout the Southeast. A national tour is planned for later in 1977.

Boyd, a 34-year-old former drama instructor at Florida Atlantic University in Boca Raton, said he knew little about the nation's 26th president before he took the assignment.

"I spent several weeks doing nothing much else but reading about Roosevelt," Boyd said. "I've amassed quite a collection of material on the man."

Sponsored by the Florida Department of Citrus, which is supported by contributions from citrus growers throughout the state, Boyd conducts a news conference with students at junior high schools which sign up for the free program.

Teddy Roosevelt was selected as the program's focus because he used nutrition and exercise to overcome ill health as a teen-ager. The virtues of citrus products are mentioned frequently.

When a schedule is completed, the selected schools are sent material which includes a two-week nutritional lesson plan, a bibliography of books on Roosevelt and a press kit for each student.

Boyd travels alone by van from school to school. His visit often begins with an assembly at which, in his Teddy Roosevelt role, he discusses physical fitness. Then, it's off to the news conference.

The teen-agers, who in some cases dress like turn-of-the-century reporters, are encouraged to ask anything about the early 1900s — politics, social conditions, history, etc.

"Sometimes, if the kids are extra precocious, they decide they're going to trip me up," Boyd said. "They try to find trivial things that they think I won't know — things like how many rooms are in the White House or Roosevelt's mother's maiden name."

Boyd said sometimes he is caught unprepared.

"I guess it's a good political education for them to hear a politician dodge a question," he said.

Eggsemplary

SANTA BARBARA, Calif. (AP) — One of Ulla Westerholm's white leghorn hens hit the daily double recently when it laid an egg within an egg.

When the huge egg was opened, out came both white and yolk and left inside was another completely whole egg, still uncracked.

"STOMACH ULCERS DON'T BOTHER ME"

Says Bert DeMeter, Printer, 2619 Alvira St., L.A., "I have been suffering from an ulcer for many years and spent lots of money for treatments and all kinds of diets, but it keeps coming back. In 5 weeks under Dr. Wing, I felt like a new person. I did not lose any time from work. No more poached eggs and milk, and I can eat all my meals in restaurants. It is a blessing to order regular meals again. It has been over 6 years and I am still feeling fine."

Breast feeding now under more scientific study

WESTPORT, Conn (AP) — For ten months Dana Raphael nursed her infant daughter at her breast. The infant, however, was not Dana Raphael's own. She was adopted.

"I couldn't imagine bringing up a child without that closeness," the mother said. "There is an intimacy, there is a quality of interaction which no mother has ever described except perhaps to another mother."

But ... an adopted child?

For Dr. Raphael, who heads the year-old Human Lactation Center here, nursing an adopted child was a natural outgrowth of nearly 20 years of research in breast feeding.

With her adopted daughter — it had been 12 years since Dr. Raphael bore her own child — she borrowed the nursing infants of friends to help stimulate her own milk supply. Thus she proved to herself what her research and that of others had shown: that with nothing more than good nutrition, rest and the stimulation of an infant, women can produce breast milk without a pregnancy.

It is called relactation, just one phase of a proliferation of research in the field of breast feeding. Relactation is important not only for that intimacy, that special quality of interaction of which Dr. Raphael, the mother, spoke, but also as a scientific way of helping to save infant lives in developing nations.

One New York pediatrician, Dr. Roy E. Brown of Mt. Sinai Hospital, worked on just such a program in East Africa. He found that it may be less expensive to provide added nutrition to adult women, to help them literally to turn their breast milk back on, than to import formulas for newborn babies.

In America, interest in breast feeding among middle-class women has been increasing since the 1960s but the growth in research, organizations and publications devoted to the subject has never been greater than it is today.

Oversimplified, what happens during relactation is the suckling infant stimulates the breast nerve endings. They, in turn, stimulate the pituitary gland, which releases the hormones prolactin and oxytocin. Those hormones stimulate the muscles around the end of the nipple to contract in what is called the "let down reflex." Result: breast milk.

While in developing countries the ability to breast feed is critical to the matter of infant survival, in this country, breast feeding, including the nursing of adopted children, is emphasized as yet another aspect of "mothering."

Indeed, the nutritional content of the breast milk of relactating women is a matter of some scientific controversy. Some researchers have found it similar to "mature" breast milk but others say it lacks colustrum, the milk which appears right after birth and contains many of the antibodies and immunities passed on to infants.

Whether infant survival is the prime consideration or not, proponents of breast feeding feel the act itself is worth the trouble. It may be this new emphasis on the quality of "mothering" that accounts for a rising number of college-educated, upper middle-class women returning to the practice.

The grandmother of all breast feeding organizations is La Leche League. In the past 20 years it has grown from a group of seven women meeting in a Chicago suburb to an international organization with 8,500 leaders and counselors, and 2,700 groups in 41 countries.

Boston Hospital for Women, one of the largest obstetrical hospitals in the nation, reports that three years ago 42 per cent of women giving birth there

Trolley car is 400-feet high

LULING, La. (AP) — How would you like to have your own trolley car running along 400 feet in the air over the Mississippi River?

That's what two Tulane professors will have around 1980.

They'll use their unique trolley moving on a track just under the $200-million bridge now being constructed over the big river at Luling. It will be part of a long-term study of wind and its effect on the only cable-stayed bridge in the world built in a hurricane zone.

The main span of the Luling Bridge will be supported by cables running from the tops of two massive backside towers, with no piers in the water.

The study by Dr. Hugh A. Thompson, dean of Tulane's School of Engineering, and Dr. Robert N. Bruce Jr., a civil engineering professor, will help determine the design of future cable-stayed bridges.

The Luling bridge will be the only one of its kind in the continental United States and the second-longest such bridge in the world. It will measure 2,745 feet, more than one-half mile.

The Tulane duo will study wind velocity on the towering bridge and how the bridge moves under wind pressure. From data collected at specified intervals over several years, they hope to determine the effect of hurricane winds up to 200 miles an hour.

Monitors called accelerometers will be located in seven stations, which will record vertical and torsional motion of the bridge deck. The monitors will be connected to a centralized control room located beneath the center of the bridge.

The instruments will also monitor tower and cable motion.

Thompson and Bruce will use their trolley car to ride the length of the bridge monitoring and checking equipment. Tulane engineering students will help them.

Supervisors back down on pay hike

SAN RAFAEL (AP) — Faced with increasing public disapproval, the Marin County Board of Supervisors voted unanimously recently to rescind a 5 per cent salary increase for themselves.

The increase would have boosted each supervisor's annual salary to $20,556 beginning Sept. 1.

The board decided to rescind the increase after a citizens' group announced that it had enough signatures to place the matter on the November ballot.

BICENTENNIAL FACTS

On July 17, 1778, Gen. William Howe's adjutant reported he was successful in obtaining a meeting with General Washington. The British aide told Howe it was a fruitless session because "Washington is not interested in any pardons for patriots who have done no fault except to gain their freedom from the Crown." The World Almanac recalls left the hospital breast feeding their babies. Last year the number was 47 per cent, nearly half.

In Dr. Raphael's case, inability to breast feed led her to study the matter, which in turn led to publication of a nationally known book in the field. After nearly 20 years of research, Dr. Raphael developed the concept of the "doula," a supportive person, usually another woman, whose job it is to "mother the mother."

That's where groups like La Leche League come in. Through group meetings and telephone conseling, the League has in many instances provided the support that a nursing mother needs.

The League has also been criticized for being over-zealous, for "proselytizing so much they make the non-breast feeder feel guilty," Dr. Raphael said.

In a recent report, the American Academy of Pediatrics encouraged breast feeding but felt compelled to add: "Some caution is needed against issuing dire warnings to mothers who cannot or do not wish to breast feed; normal growth and development are possible without it."

Elizabeth Hormann of Belmont, Mass., a pioneer in the field, has made an as yet unpublished study of several hundred women who attempted to nurse adopted children and found that "virtually everybody produced milk. I have seen some milk supplies even with women who had complete hysterectomies."

St. Matthew 11:5

"The blind receive their sight, and the lame walk, the lepers are cleansed, and the deaf hear, the dead are raised up, and the poor have the gospel preached to them."

KIDS SAY THE DARNDEST THINGS AT PALO ALTO PRESCHOOLS

Your children are never too young to learn. Mom, and at Palo Alto Preschools that is basic to our whole way of doing things.

We know, for example, that at an early age children's minds are wide open to new and exciting educational experiences. And that these experiences can be presented in interesting and fascinating ways.

Spanish, the Alphabet, Metrics, yes, kids do learn the darndest things at Palo Alto Preschools. It's all part of the Palo Alto Preschool Curriculum© covering 12 basic learning areas. There's Reading and Language, Dance and Science, Social Studies, Mathematics, and Personal, Social, and Physical Development and more.

There's new things, fun things, every single day for every single child enrolled at Palo Alto Preschools.

They'll receive individual attention, and you'll receive continuous evaluation of their learning and development and overall social progress.

Yes, kids do learn the darndest things at Palo Alto Preschools, and best of all, they have a very happy time while they do.

PALO ALTO PRESCHOOLS: For children ages 2½ to 8. Full-day and half-day programs available. Hot lunches served. Ask about our new "Before and After School" Program.

(You'll find all of our Preschools located in churches because we believe in putting our money into education, not buildings. However, we are church located, not affiliated.)

MENTONE, Tex. (AP) — Welcome to Mentone, home of 20 or so good ole boys, a surly old sheriff, Newt's beer palace and a treasure chest of oil and natural gas.

Also, Mentone, county seat of Loving County in the land of lizards, snakes and blowing dust, may be the world's richest little poor town.

It is also the ONLY town in Loving County, population 112.

Its riches lie in flowing natural gas wells and, to a lesser degree, oil deposits. Its poverty is measured in drinking water — there is none.

Despite an estimated tax base of $26 million this year, there is not enough money to purchase a pipeline capable of serving the county's scattered inhabitants.

It would appear, however, that if the property value were evenly distributed among the 112, each could winter on the Riviera.

Someone put it this way:

"Only those things, animal or vegetable, that can withstand dry weather, blazing sun and blistering wind survive and thrive. You got to be someone raised in these red hills to live here."

Other than a trillion dollars worth of oil and gas, and Newt's oasis, there's not a great deal that can be said for Loving County and its lusty little capital city.

The closest thing to a brochure says:

"Loving County is located in what is known as the West Texas Desert ... It is the least populated county in the United States, with 112 people in an area covering 647 square miles."

(That computes out to more than five square miles per person, although a third of the population is clustered in Mentone.)

Other than a handful of children, almost everyone is either a rancher, an oilfield worker, a county employe or retired.

"Mentone ... has a post office, schoolhouse, courthouse, a service station and a cafe. The county has no doctor, no hospital, no Chamber of Commerce," the legend discloses.

"The Rondo Mills 4-H Club and the Loving County Historical Survey Committee are the only civic organizations."

Mentone, incidentally, derives its name from a homesick surveyor from Menton, France. And the county is the namesake of Oliver Loving, a Kentuckian who succumbed to a bullet in 1867.

The two teachers of the Loving County Independent School District hold court daily for about a dozen children in grades one through six.

The 17 junior high and high schoolers attend class at Wink, 31 miles east in Winkler County.

Many of the county officials, while maintaining legal residences in Loving County, find it more convenient to live in Pecos, 23 miles to the south, or Kermit, 32 miles to the east.

The problem is the water. Not quantity but quality.

An ample supply of underground water exists, but it contains gypsum mineral deposits. Oldtimers say there are only four "good" wells in the county.

Although most livestock can drink the water, ranchers as well as residents must haul fresh water from as far away as Pecos.

One of the problems, too, is that most of the Loving County land owners live elsewhere. They lease the mineral and surface rights to ranchers and oil companies.

Few inhabitants have enjoyed overnight riches.

A lucrative natural gas discovery some two years ago, coupled with skyrocketing gas prices, aroused new and vigorous interest by major petroleum companies.

They do not seem overly concerned about the water problem. Nor is Newt Keen.

Scratching his short cropped, reddish gray hair, Newt allowed as how it might be nice to have a water system, but not if it brought sweeping changes to Mentone.

"I'd just as soon it stay like it is," he said. "Really, though, I guess I just don't give a damn."

Fingerprints

Sir Francis Galton discovered more than 100 years ago that no two people have exactly the same pattern of fingerprints.

He earned a master's ringing bells

SPRINGFIELD, Ill. (AP) — Concertist Karel Keldermans' name rings a bell only in the more esoteric circles of Americam musicology. But his accomplishment reverberates through its annals.

Keldermans is the first person to earn a master's degree from a college in the United States for campanology and carillon performance. In simple terms, that's bell ringing.

After two years' study abroad, he returned home a few weeks ago to accept his degree from Sangamon State University and a post as chief carillonneur for the Springfield Park District.

Four times a week he climb aloft in the Thomas C. Rees Memorial Carillon — one of 165 such instruments in the nation — and tolls a 66-bell concert.

Just to keep the record straight, there is one other person with a master's degree in theoretical campanology from a U.S. college, but it's not in carillon performance. And the University of Michigan offers a bachelor's degree, but no master's program.

Keldermans' studies, supervised by Sangamon State in a course he designed himself, covered the art of bell playing from casting to clapper.

"It's like studying any other musical instrument," he said in an interview. "You have to know things like harmony, theory, how to read notes and count time. I also studied theoretical stuff — how bells are cast, the mechanism, techniques, the types of keyboards. The paper I did was on comparing the foundry techniques of the 16th century with the 20th century."

Carillons got their start in Belgium, Holland and northern France in the 1500s. "Actually it developed out of about two or three bells that were hung in city halls to warn the city of fire, flood or invasion," Keldermans said. "Then somebody got to messing around with them. About 1450 they decided to add a keyboard."

Over the years the instrument died out. Generals like Napoleon found the bells a good source of brass cannon and the instrument was expensive.

"It's really revived," he said. "It wasn't until this century that they discovered how to cast bells like they used to. It really got started up again in Belgium around 1900."

Keldermans began to study the carillon in his teens under his father, a Belgium-born carillonneur of 40 years' experience who had the Springfield job until he lost it to his son.

Despite the instrument's massive size, one doesn't need a lot of muscles to play.

"You play it with your little finger," Keldermans said. "You've got your hand in the form of a fist. It's just a flick of the wrist. Your little finger is the only thing that hits the keys. If you know how to play correctly, it doesn't require any strength."

Unfortunately there is not enough money in carillon concerts to support a fellow and his family. So Keldermans must work another job.

He's employed by the largest producer and consumer of bells in the world, the telephone company.

Sunbelt states getting the lion's share

GOLDSBORO, N.C. (AP) — Hundreds of foreign manufacturers are building factories in America and are finding the South — or, more precisely, the so-called "Sunbelt" states stretching across the nation's lower tier — a favored place to build them. Rural communities that once hungered for industry are now humming with it, and loving the sound.

Imperial Chemical Industries Ltd., of Britain, built a plant in North Carolina, a $6 million brick complex standing amid tobacco fields and country churches. It employs 62 people and takes on an extra 40 or 50 college students during the summer. Next on its expansion agenda is a $90 million pesticide plant in Bayport, Tex.

In South Carolina, Michelin, the French tire manufacturer, built a plant in Greenville that produces six million tires a year. It gets its raw materials from Michelin's rubber-mixing and cord plant at nearby Anderson, which in turn has the capacity to supply three additional plants. One, in Spartanburg, S.C., will be producing truck tires by mid-1978. The firm also has bought land in Laurens County, S.C., to build a research and development center. Total investment to date: $500 million.

The American Hoechst Corp., a subsidiary of Hoechst AG of West Germany, has bought land in South Carolina, Texas and Louisiana for its textile operations. Hergeth KG, a German textile machinery manufacturer, has a plant in South Carolina. Japan's Sony is producing electronic equipment in San Diego and is soon to start up a plant in Alabama.

The latest government figures show that foreign direct investment totals more than $25 billion and represents more than 18 per cent of all investment in manufacturing in the United States. In 1972, the figure was less than $15 billion.

"This is a good thing," said Milton Berger, director of the Commerce Department's Office of Foreign Investment. "It means thousands of new jobs."

A government survey found that 95 per cent of the jobs in foreign companies based in America are held by Americans.

The General Accounting Office recently calculated that foreign manufacturers have brought 19,750 direct new jobs to South Carolina alone, representing 5.5 per cent of total manufacturing employment; more than 40,000 new residents; about $70 million in new retail sales; and $122 million to $172 million in added personal income.

"Before this industrial influx our people were chronically underemployed," said George Dean Johnson Jr., chairman of the South Carolina State Development Board.

Throughout the Deep South, per capita income has risen from 63 per cent of the national average in 1959 to 83 per cent today. In Dixie's ongoing resurgence, foreign capital surely has played its part.

According to the government's 1974 figures, the latest available, $7.5 billion of the national total of $19 billion in foreign industrial property was located in the 15 states stretching from Southern California to Virginia. Of that total, $6 billion was in Dixie, the southern states east of Texas.

"We're not at all worried about the fact that they are foreign," said Gov. James Edwards of South Carolina. "We welcome any class of industry. They've been outstanding corporate neighbors."

Richard Smith, director of the Office of Investment Affairs at the State Department, said Americans gain more than they lose.

"There is a whole range of effects," he said, "most of them positive. The system of free trade and free enterprise is most productive. Everyone comes out ahead on balance." The American welcome of foreign investment, he said, assures that Americans will be welcome to invest abroad in return.

Foreign executives list a variety of reasons for moving to the United States. They want to be closer to the American market, and the costs of producing in the United States have become more comparable, and in many cases cheaper, than abroad.

Still other foreign executives cite political uncertainties — the threat of communism in Italy, the threat of nationalization and controls in Britain and similar inclinations in other European countries — as reasons for moving to America.

And if the Sunbelt states seem to be getting the lion's share, some foreign executives say they are merely following the example of their American counterparts.

Francois Ricaud of the National Council of French Businessmen points out that during the decade from 1964 to 1974 the number of American companies in Fortune's list of 500 based in the South and West rose from 75 to 112. "I think it's an American tendency that the Europeans are following," he said.

The South's available land and materials surely have been a lure to manufacturers in both the United States and abroad — along with what some businessmen are reluctant to admit: few labor unions.

It is also true that the southerners seem to seek foreign investors with more vigor. All of the Sunbelt states have representatives in Europe preaching the virtues of their domains, the open land, the good ports, and offering tax concessions.

BICENTENNIAL FACTS

After the Treaty of Alliance with France in 1778, Haiti, then the French colony of San Domingue, supported the American cause of independence from Britain. In 1779 at the battle of Savannah, 861 Haitian volunteers fought side by side with American troops and 34 Haitians lost their lives in this gallant effort. The World Almanac also reports that 14 of the 438 Haitian volunteers at the battle of Pensacola were killed in action.

Job program trains area residents to build boats

By L. T. ROGERS
Asst. City Editor

But the hulls of large sailing vessels may soon be visible at the Mira Loma Space Center located east of Ontario.

A job training program will start there Sept. 15 to prepare area residents for jobs in the boat building and repairing industries.

The program, costing $450,000 the first year, will be financed by federal funds and administered through the California Office of Employment and Training and the Inland Manpower Association.

Each training class will have 30 students, with three classes planned the first year. Sessions will last about four months, but individual students may spend up to six months in training to develop their skills.

Between 90 and 100 persons will be enrolled during the first 12-month period.

Those enrolled must meet criteria, such as being under-employed or unemployed. Students will include the handicapped, young people, older people and women. Each will receive $2.50 an hour while in class.

Manuel Ortiz, director of the state employment and training office, presented a contract to local officials.

Those attending include San Bernardino County Supervisor Robert Townsend, Riverside County Supervisor Donald Schroeder and Riverside Councilman Eric Haley.

The boat building program will provide a new and innovative approach to job training by preparing students in one area for employment in adjoining areas, said Townsend.

Many of the graduates will be placed in jobs in the marine areas of Los Angeles, Orange and Riverside counties where the boat production industry is concentrated, he added.

The Mira Loma program, dubbed the "Tradewind Academy," will teach the most modern fiberglass boat building techniques, with instructors hired directly from the boat building industry.

And to ensure a realistic curriculum, 20 major boat builders were consulted. Many of these builders have committed jobs to the program.

Boat building students will be drawn from western San Bernardino County including Rialto, eastern Los Angeles County and a portion of Riverside County that includes the City of Riverside.

During the first year, the three classes will build four 38-foot and four 28-foot fiberglass boats. These will be sold at auction, with the money returned to the program.

Officials estimate the boats will sell from $12,000 to $15,000 each.

In establishing the new training program, IMA officials sought an industry which provided steady employment and a high "entry wage," said Robert Gass, deputy director of planning.

"Although the work is sometimes seasonal, we found that trained specialists are able to continue working. And the entrance wage is about $4 an hour," he added.

In presenting the state contract, Ortiz reported that Gov. Edmund Brown Jr. was pleased with the program's concept and indicated it may be expanded on a statewide basis.

Townsend reported two of the program instructors had been hired and the process of selecting a director would begin Monday. Other instructors will be drawn from the boat industry to teach specialized techniques.

Persons interested in applying for the programs may contact the West End Multi-Service Center, 200 S. Euclid Ave., Ontario.

The first class will start Sept. 16.

Pomona telethon phone center needs volunteers

A telephone center for the Jerry Lewis Labor Day Muscular Dystrophy Telethon will be established in Pomona for the first time.

Telephone centers have always been set up across the country, including a number in Southern California, to accept financial donations during the annual television marathon which raises millions of dollars each year to aid in the treatment and research of MD.

This year, the Pomona Moose Lodge, 300 S. San Antonio Ave., will host the telephone answering center, offering facilities and coffee for the almost 100 volunteers which are needed to staff the center.

According to Gayle Urban, district director for the San Gabriel Valley office of the Muscular Dystrophy Association, 30 volunteers are needed for each of three shifts.

The telethon starts on Sept. 5 in the afternoon and extends through the afternoon of the following day. The shifts are from 5 p.m. to midnight on Sunday, from midnight to 7 a.m. and from 7 a.m. to 4:30 p.m. on Monday.

"Volunteers really feel involved," said Mrs. Urban. "Television sets are in the centers and the volunteers watch as the program proceeds and other volunteers answer phones."

Volunteers should be at least 19. Their duties include answering phone calls and taking down pledges, processing the pledges, or serving as hosts and hostesses for the center.

Persons interested in serving as volunteers may call Mrs. Urban at (213) 573-2062 during the day or Linda Igoe, (213) 963-9777 in the evening.

Upland permits top off previous year by 2 million

Upland's building permits for the first seven months of 1976 topped the permits issued during the same period in the previous year by $2 million.

From Jan. 1 to Aug. 1, 1,291 building permits with a valuation of over $21 million have been issued. During the first seven months of 1975 the figures were 925 permits with a valuation of just over $19 million.

The pace set earlier in the year continued through July, according to Bob Sullivan, head of the city's Building Department. He reported that 214 building permits with a valuation of $3,763,924 were issued last month.

Only one industrial building permit was issued in July. It is for a building in an industrial park at 1551 W. 13th St., listed at $118,800 and issued to Barmakian, Wolff and Associates, an architectural firm.

Permits were issued in July for the construction of 68 single-family homes. These included 35 homes with a listed value of $1,410,898 to be constructed at the corner of Mountain Avenue and 18th Street by Crowell-Leventhal, Inc.

Hard work, good management paid off

Ontario dairyman wins Grand Trophy

Good management practices "and a lot of hard work" are the factors which brought the Grand Trophy to Ontario dairyman Joe Coelho in the annual milk producers competition at the Los Angeles County Fair at Pomona, says the winner.

In the dairy business for 30 years, Coelho will have to wait until Thursday, Sept. 30 before accepting the silver plate denoting that his milk is the best of 323 Southland producers this year.

Coelho received stiff competition with a near-record of 112 gold medals being handed out, a higher percentage than in previous years.

High-scoring producer shipping more than 14,000 pounds was Moons Dairy, Chino, which ships to Mulligan Sales.

Special recognition award went to Arie and Clara Van Leeuwen No. 2, Chino.

The judging was conducted by the California Dairy Industries Association.

Coelho, who owns Joe A. Coelho and Sons Dairy at 12782 Walker Ave., Ontario, ships 20,000 pounds a day to Lucky Stores.

His son Gary is attending college.

Son-in-law Ken Godinho, who has been with the dairy six years, is listed as the ranch hand.

Nephew Louis Coelho Jr., and Mike Gows are the milkers who must be up at 1:30 a.m. for the first milking of 375 Holsteins, and back in the barns again at 1:30 p.m. for the second.

"This is a two-shift deal," Coelho emphasized.

The Coelho spread covers 100 acres at Walker Avenue and Riverside Drive, where a 6,000-square-foot house Coelho built five years ago dwarfs the burgeoning subdivision housing nearby.

The Coelho herd contains 800 cows, of which 100 are dry, 280 are heifers, and there are 30 to 40 calves.

"We are raising our own replacements," Coelho explained.

Coelho puts in a long day just like his crew. He gets up every morning about 4:30, has breakfast and reads the newspaper, then lays two sprinkpler lines, and chops grain feed for the herd.

The housing boom in Orange County forced Coelho to move his dairy to Ontario five years ago.

He operated a dairy on Knott Avenue in Buena Park 11 years, then moved to Cerritos for a nine-year stay before transferring the operation to Ontario in July 1971.

Coelho said that his herd produces "good all-year-round-quality milk."

"If you don't have quality milk, it goes to cheese and butter," he said.

The farm belongs to the Dairy Herd Improvement Association, and computer files are kept on milk production.

Each cow has her own computer number, and if she doesn't produce 48 to 50 pounds of milk a day, she may become hamburger, Coelho said.

The cows are milked by machine, "but any machine made must have humans behind it," is Coelho's philosophy.

He doesn't like the automatic machines.

Isabel Coelho holds sway over the huge house and takes care of the planting and gardening.

"Our house is always filled with people," Coelho said. "We have seven grandchildren."

Coelho and Sons Dairy of Ontario has won the top prize in the annual milk-grading judging among 323 dairymen at the Los Angeles County Fair are, from left, Louis Coelho, Mike Gow, and Joe Coelho. City council to discuss elimination of 39-cent tax

A special meeting of the Pomona City Council will be held Monday at 7:30 a.m. in the City Hall commissions room to discuss eliminating the previously adopted 39-cent tax rate increase for the 1976-77 year.

Recommendations to eliminate the property tax rate will be presented to the City Council by City Administrator Jerrold Gonce.

Increased property assessments, above expected levels, plus the shifting of funds previously designated for a fire station near Pacific State Hospital form the basis of the recommendations.

In addition, Gonce will also present the council with recommendations on phasing out the use of federal revenue sharing funds for city operating expenses. Recommendations call for a three year program of transferring use of the funds to capital expenses only.

At the council's regular meeting Monday at 8 p.m., it is expected it will officially set the tax rate based on the discussions from the morning session.

Other agenda items will include reconsideration of the preliminary plan for the proposed Holt Boulevard/Indian Hill Village Redevelopment area, which had been held up over the council's debate of whether Towne or Garey Avenue should be the western boundary.

L.V. man gets recognition

La Verne resident Curtis E. Hilliard has been recognized by General Telephone Co. for 25 years of service with the utility.

He joined the company in 1950 as an assignment clerk in Pomona. He served as service center foreman, service center instructor and customer service supervisor before being named area service operation supervisor in Pomona in 1973.

Medical classes added to adult curriculum

Classes in medical front office and medical chemistry for office and lab will be added to the Rowland Adult School curriculum starting Sept. 15 and 21.

Both will be taught at Rowland High School, the medical front office on Tuesdays from 6:30 to 10 p.m. in Room D-9, and the other on Wednesdays from 6:30 to 10 p.m. in Room E-5.

The adult school will start a real estate practices and procedures course Sept. 18, from 9 a.m. to noon in Room E-11 at Rowland High School. It will be taught by Curtis Beem.

Additional information on the adult school may be obtained by calling 213-965-5975.

Challenge and promise of space

One does not have to be very old to remember when it was a minor miracle for a rocket to leave its launching pad successfully. So far have we come in two short decades that the technological feat of sending a complex array of instruments across hundreds of millions of miles of space to land on another planet is taken for granted.

But that is the way it has always been.

When Orville Wright soared 120 feet in 1903 in the first powered aircraft, that was a miracle. Today, the daily transoceanic flights of sleek jets transporting thousands of people is routine.

When Russia orbited the first artificial satellite in 1957, that was a miracle. Today, the launching of yet another communications or weather satellite scarcely rates notice in the newspapers. We can see the entire North American continent and its changing cloud patterns every night on television and think nothing of it. The fact that men have left footprints on the moon is almost ancient history.

The discovery of one of the Viking probes of evidence of life on Mars, would, no doubt, do much to shake the public out of the "apathy" of which some NASA scientists have complained. That would be another miracle.

But even then, proof that organic molecules or organic processes similar to those on earth are present on another planet would quickly come to be accepted. What would be significant about such a discovery would not be the discovery itself nor the impetus it would give to space exploration. It would be the subtle yet profound influence it would have over the long range of man's view of himself and his place in the universe, just as what was significant about the Wright biplane and Sputnik I were the new doors they opened for human adventure.

The odds are great, however, that we will never find life in this solar system — certainly not intelligent life, though few scientists can bring themselves to believe that out of all the billions upon billions of suspected planets in just our own galaxy, sentient, self-conscious life has arisen on only one.

It really doesn't matter. One thing we can be sure of is that there will one day be life outside the earth because men will take it there — slowly, hesitantly, but inevitably. There are worlds enough, and time. Space is, indeed, the "new ocean" of which John F. Kennedy spoke and we have fairly embarked upon it. There can be no turning back.

The next century will be the great age of colonization of earth's immediate vicinity and its nearer neighbors in space. First, permanently manned satellites in earth orbit; then a gigantic habitat suspended between earth and the moon; later the first human visitation to Mars and a permanent colony on that planet, along with exploration of all the planets.

Beyond that we enter the realm of science fiction; planetary engineering to remake the airless moon and barren Mars into more hospitable abodes for earth-originated life, and then on some distant day the sending of the first space ark bearing human seed on a generations long voyage to another star system.

There are challenges enough to occupy the imaginations and energies of men for centuries to come, and how petty the conflicts and concerns of the 20th century will seem to those who will be engaged in meeting these challenges.

Therein, perhaps, lies the real promise of space — that in reaching out to the stars mankind will learn to see earth in its true cosmic perspective and achieve a better understanding of itself, and finally create that world of peace and love and happiness that has so long eluded it.

Joyce Hifler

Think on these things

Judgment is putting on the other fellow those feelings we do not accept in ourselves. Somehow it seems to ease our own pain and fears to be able to criticize someone else, even though we may be doing almost the same thing — or want to.

It is not a matter of how we judge other people, but how they judge themselves. It is not so much how the world sees us, but how do we see us? It is an individual thing and as little as we know about ourselves, how can we judge another person? If the day ever comes when we are so in control of ourselves that we have time left over then maybe we can be qualified to make judgments. Until that time we risk our own glass houses by throwing rocks.

Have you ever known anyone who felt because they had trouble in their lives they could run roughshod over someone else? A history of difficulty does not make privilege characters. If they have not tried to learn some lesson from what they have been through they become emotional cripples.

The past, good or bad, should be used as a guide and not as a stumbling block. We cannot trample out someone else's garden because ours died from inattention. Everyone has trouble. Some have less of it and some have more than their fair share, but it is a strong and understanding person who does not use his trouble as an excuse to get by with meanness.

One man rule in San Dimas?

Dear Editor:

A few weeks ago a majority of the San Dimas City Council, namely Mayor Ersher, Vice Mayor Dipple and Councilman Wax, adopted a city ordinance permitting a council majority to hire and fire city commissioners at will. This action of course was in the wake of their firing Planning Commissioners Sturrock, Bartman and the undersigned, only to have the Los Angeles Superior Court declare the firing illegal, on the grounds that there was no cause for such a dismissal. This same council majority then advised all of us that the new ordinance was intended to rectify an omission in the city's code and really was no big thing. They contended that it must and should be the right of a council to dismiss commissioners that disagree with the council's philosophy or attitudes.

There are certain countries in the world where disagreeing with leaders is not tolerated but I never thought I'd see the day when that kind of dictatorial philosophy would be openly pursued in communities such as ours. I called the various past city councilmen in our community to get their reaction to the matter.

To a man, they told me that they were aware commissioners could not be dismissed without cause and further advised the purpose of that policy was to insure a divergence of thinking in the city and guarantee input and discussion at the commission level from all sectors of our community. Anything less than that could in their opinions resurrect the old "Spoil System".

As a case in point to this whole thing, on Aug. 7, 1976, you reported on a hastily called "press conference luncheon" held by Mayor Ersher. I say hastily called because the other councilmen I talked to didn't even know about the meeting.

At that conference Mayor Ersher announced that he has set goals for the city and consequently all of us. We all have goals and that's as it should be but why can't the city council as a whole set goals for our community and then devise and approve methods of implementation toward realizing them?

The mayor talks about fiscal responsibility but to date there has been no mention of the fact that properties in San Dimas have been reassessed this year by the county tax assessor an average of 30 per cent. That means that our property tax bills will be increased and the city's income from that source will be increased proportionately. If the mayor is truly sincere about fiscal responsibility, why doesn't he propose reducing the city tax rate a proportionate amount. There is no doubt that the city can find ways of spending this windfall, but I don't believe that is called fiscal responsibility. I think it's called gouging the taxpayer.

The mayor has also declared that he and Vice Mayor Dipple will form a strong management team of two, presumably to manage the city staff. State laws do not allow the mayors and vice mayors of General Law Cities to make that kind of decision. Our city is run by a professional staff headed by a professional city manager. Certainly the city council as a whole gives direction to the city manager but he can't take directions from five different councilmen. Furthermore, most councilmen are not qualified to "manage" a city staff. Management teams are made up of qualified people with many years of education and management experience. An employed physician and a college student hardly qualify in those categories.

Our city needs to be led by a full council with open discussion and consideration on all matters. Behind the scenes decision making and one man rule cannot be tolerated in our society if our way of life is to continue as we know it.

School threatened

Dear Editor:

We are writing to express our deep concern and heartache that one of our valley's small private, non-denominational junior and senior high schools might possibly be forced to close its doors because of rising costs of operation and decline in student enrollment.

Claremont Collegiate School, a college prep, co-educational school has served this area since the 1920's and Southern California since 1892.

If this school closes it would be an irreparable loss of educational resource to the people of this valley for all time to come. Surely there must be some way to keep its educational tradition alive and prospering.

Increased student applications for enrollment in the fall semester is the immediate solution so that there will be continuity in the life of a fine institution representing the best in quality education and giving an opportunity for freedom of choice.

Fed aid sought to save S-LA

WASHINGTON — Congressmen who vote against programs for the poor, invariably, seem to be the same ones who support benefits for business.

They are usually the first, for example, to demand that the taxpayers bail out faltering corporations. No small companies, mind you. Congress seldom rushes to the rescue of small mismanaged companies. These are allowed to sink into bankruptcy as casualties of the free enterprise system.

The corporations must be giants, their mismanagement massive, before Congress will intervene. Food stamps may be cut back for the poor, but millions are available for Penn Central Railroad and Lockheed Aircraft.

Mississippi's seven-man congressional delegation, for example, has been outspoken against government spending to help the poor. But the Mississippi congressmen have been maneuvering behind the scenes to save the state's huge Bankers Trust Savings and Loan empire from financial collapse.

The Mississippi delegation has brought pressure on the Treasury Department and the Federal Home Loan Bank Board to aid the failing financial empire. This could cost the taxpayers as much as $100 million, which would buy a lot of food stamps for the hungry.

The congressmen from Mississippi have been huddling privately with Treasury officials to seek federal funds to bail out Bankers Trust. At these closed-door meetings, two of the most persuasive pleaders have been Rep. G.V. "Sonny" Montgomery, D.-Miss., and Rep. Trent Lott, R.-Miss., who happen to have a personal stake in the outcome.

Montgomery owns 2,760 shares in Bankers Trust and has $7,937 on deposit. Lott owns 500 shares and has $4,000 in savings. A third member of the delegation, Rep. Thad Cochran, R.-Miss., owns 300 shares and has about $6,500 in savings. Other prominent politicians are reported to have far greater holdings in the faltering company.

Bankers Trust is Mississippi's largest state-chartered, privately insured saving and loan association. It began to flounder earlier this year. There were charges of gross mismanagement.

Not only politicos and fat cats have money in Bankers Trust. Some 60,000 ordinary Mississippians, including many elderly, stand to lose millions.

Because the savings and loan combine isn't federally insured, the depositors must depend on the private insurance company which insured Bankers Trust.

But unfortunately, the insurance company is largely owned by Bankers Trust and, therefore, is mired in the same financial bog.

The insurance company also insured other savings and loan associations. This precipitated panic withdrawals, which force rare moratorium on withdrawals.

At this point, the political pressure began. Appeals have been made to Commerce Secretary Elliot Richardson, Treasury Secretary William Simon and the White House itself.

The entire Mississippi congressional delegation, led by the venerable Sen. John Stennis, D.-Miss., called on Simon. Montgomery and Lott made the strongest pitch for federal aid.

Meanwhile, Garth Marston, chairman of the Federal Home Loan Bank Board, flew to Mississippi. After his return, he confided that he hoped to "expedite the timely processing of applications for insurance" from Mississippi savings and loan association.

This means that the taxpayers, in effect, will co-sign the insurance that the failing Bankers Trust will soon attempt to collect.

Meanwhile, neither the federal nor state governments are trying to find out what caused the financial fiasco. The state legislature enacted a conservatorship for Bankers Trust but specifically voted down a detailed inquiry.

Footnote: Federal officials have confirmed that they have been besieged by Mississippi politicians about the financial debacle but have denied the proposed federal aid is a political bail-out.

It should be noted that Mississippi's Bankers Trust is unrelated to the better-known Bankers Trust in New York City.

GUNS FOR REAGAN: As a postscript to the Republican convention, the story can now be told of how supporters of Gerald Ford and Jimmy Carter wound up on an advisory council backing Ronald Reagan.

They thought they were supporting the gun lobby. But after they signed on as advisors to the Citizens Committee for the Right to Keep and Bear Arms, the group solemnly endorsed not only Saturday night shoot-'em-ups but also Ronnie Reagan.

Indeed, the group poured more than $16,000, some of it perhaps illegally, into Reagan's drive for the presidency. The unwitting advisers may be even more upset to learn that the group contributed $1,000 to the House pain-in-the-neck, Rep. Larry McDonald, D.-Ga. This was his reward, apparently, for writing the solititation letter hitting up gun lovers for money.

More than 150 members of Congress were bamboozled into permitting their names to be used to root for Reagan. Among them were dozens of Ford and Carter supporters, including Sen. Barry Goldwater, R.-Ariz., who has come out four-square for Ford, and Rep. John Flynt, D.-Ga., and Rep. Olin Teague, D.-Tex., who back Carter for President.

The congressmen joined the gun group's advisory council because of their opposition to gun controls. They may not know about the group's role in the Reagan campaign.

A spokesman pointed out that the group's newsletter "Point Blank," announcing the support of Reagan, was sent to every adviser. Not a single congressman jumped ship because of the Reagan backing, the spokesman noted. But few congressmen have time to read all their mail. They may have laid aside the newsletter without looking at it.

Just in jest

If it was good enough for grandpa it is almost worth its weight in gold today; and when it comes to enjoying the discomforts of an earlier age, price is no object to many of us nostalgic thrill seekers. Consider what has happened to kerosene lamps. Once regarded as a source of frustrating toil and drudgery by young folks whose duty it was to keep their glass chimneys sparkling clean, their wicks trimmed and their various moving parts in perfect working order, these lamps are today being proudly displayed by many former young complainers as prized household possessions. Restored to their former pristine glory, many of those old time kerosene lamps are now selling for as much as $80.

Ann Landers

A load of common sense

Dear Ann Landers: I've just read one more letter to you about a retired couple. "She" complains because "he" tags along, stands outside closed doors and pesters her to death.

I wonder how many women, if they were retired from their homes, could find meaningful work in their husband's office or shop. Wouldn't THEY follow him around the house, peeping over his shoulder, trying to find a place for themselves?

Couples should work out an agreement BEFORE they retire. They should plan to share the household chores, and I don't mean just the garbage. Schedule marketing, laundry, window washing, etc. Retirement isn't all trips to the museums and excursions. It is a whole lot of togetherness — 24 hours a day. And that's a heap o' living together, honey. — Not There Yet, But I Have Plans

Dear Not There Yet: When YOU get there, I'll bet you'll handle it better than most. Thanks for a letter loaded with common sense.

Dear Miss Landers: Every now and then you include this subject in one of your columns, and I would greatly appreciate your doing so again.

This concerns personal habits of cleanliness. My husband has always refused to use a deodorant. He claims it gives him a rash. This from a Ph.D.!

I don't need advice on what to do, because I intend to move into another bedroom shortly. But I would like to be able to wave your column under his nose when I issue my ultimatum, because he claims I'm being unreasonable. So, will you please state in your column what you consider the normal amount of bathing? This goat that I'm married to won't be able to say I'm one of those nuts who uses soap daily. — Stamford Reader

Dear Stam: It may be that a deodorant DOES give your husband a rash. This is not uncommon. But there are several hypo-allergenic deodorants he could use. All he need do is ask for one at the drugstore.

Every person — man, woman, and child — should bathe or shower every morning or night. Tell him there are hypo-allergenic soaps on the market, too. In fact, go out and buy some — as a favor to yourself as well as to him.

Dear Ann Landers: I'm 14 and going with a guy 16. (I look older and he looks younger, so it works out neat.) My parents are so strict it's a crime.

Friday night, I told Mom we were going to the movies. At the last minute we decided to go to Vic's house and play a a few records. His folks were at church and no one was home.

We weren't there more than 20 minutes when the doorbell rang. It was my dad. He grabbed me by the arm and pulled me out of the house. I was so embarrassed I'd like to have died.

I told Dad it was cruddy of him to follow me like a common criminal. He said he hadn't followed me, just happened to be passing by Vic's house and spotted Mom's car (which I had borrowed).

Now I'm grounded for two weeks. We didn't do anything wrong, Ann. Please stick up for me. — Not Guilty

Dear Not: Sorry, chicken. You had no business going to Vic's house when you told your parents you were going to a movie. A change of plans should always be reported — BEFORE someone finds out. In my opinion you got off easy.

Can drugs be a friend in time of stress? If you keep your head together can they be of help? Ann Landers' new booklet "Straight Dope on Drugs" separates the fact from the fiction. Get it today. Tell wives of other women

Three out of every husbands tell their wives that they, the husbands, should've married other women. And six out of every 100 husbands take some pleasure in talking to their wives about the smart attractive women down at the job. Or such be the indications of one of those most recent husbands-wives surveys, according to our Love and War man.

Young lady, did you love your baby at first sight? When the pollsters put the foregoing query to a sizable sampling of new mothers, three out of four said yes, immediately. But the rest said no, not really, love developed gradually.

If "uncopyrightable" isn't the longest English-language word that doesn't repeat a letter, what is?

UNCHARTED

The chartmakers say there are still portions of the oceans where ships have never sailed with reefs and islands that have never been mapped.

It's quite true that people tend to shrink a little less than half an inch per decade after the age of 40.

Remember, an apple with a stem in it doesn't go bad as quickly as an apple without a stem.

Statistically, the safest transportation system known to man, even including walking, is the elevator, I'm told.

BEDWETTING

Good many of those merchandisers who market bedwetting cures rely on the fact that even through one out of every five youngsters continues to dampen down the environment beyond the age of 7, almost all outgrow the thing by the age of 12.

This is true: The old girl went boiling into the corset shop at Wanamaker's in New York City, waving a girdle. The department head, a distinguished looking fellow, stepped up, and said, "You wish to return it, madam? What's wrong? Doesn't it fit?" She yelled, "Fit! How could it possibly fit?" She pointed to the label: "Made expressly for John Wanamaker."

Quick, what's "enervating" mean? Put that query to any 10 citizens and nine will say "strengthening." Why is a mystery. Actually means "weakening."

Tests have shown that a sentence of eight words is very easy to read; of 11 words, easy; of 14 words, faily easy; 17 words, standard; of 21 words, fairly difficult; of 25 words, difficult; of 20 or more words, very difficult. This means the foregoing sentence of 43 words is just about impossible. Sorry.

Dr. Miller

Live food for frogs

DEAR DR. MILLER: Fanny, my frog, has been on a hunger strike ever since I got her. No matter how many kinds of food I put in her dish, she doesn't pay any attention to them. I've even changed dishes. It doesn't do any good. Nothing does, so I'm going to turn her loose before she starves to death. Why did it work out this way? I wanted to keep her. — D.R.

DEAR D.R.: If you'd been able to watch Fanny Frog find food in a favorable environment, you'd notice she didn't eat anything to which she wasn't first attracted by movement. You could fence in Fanny with delectable offerings, but unless something in the smorgasbord was moving, she wouldn't be stimulated to try it. For future reference, then, frogs (and toads) must be fed either live food or something which can be moved in some manner to simulate live food.

DEAR DR. MILLER: I've finally (dumb me) discovered why Greedy, my little parakeet boy, spends all day eating. It's because his beak is all twisted out of shape. As soon as I can I'm going to take him in to the doctor. Do you think he'll be able to cure him? How could this have happened? He must have had it when I got him recently. He's never acted anything but fine here. — J.D.

DEAR J.D.: Most malformed beaks are the result of hereditary problems or a deep mite infestation which causes permanent damage to the beak base. Accidental injury accounts for a few. Corrective trimming is usually indicated to enable the bird to cope with its food. (Even then, special diets are sometimes necessary.) Unfortunately, though, a complete cure for such beak deformities is unlikely.

DEAR DR. MILLER: With our last dog it was a terribly traumatic experience each time her nails were cut. With this puppy, how early can we start clipping the nails, and is there some secret to doing it without getting them fighting you over it, like maybe clipping them real quickly, or what's the best way? — K.E.

DEAR K.E.: Tiny toenails are clippable at any age, if you're careful. In fact, the earlier the better as far as training the puppy to tolerate nail trimming is concerned. Speed isn't essential, but great care is. Should the trimming be painful early, the puppy will be conditioned to resist the paring process from then on.

On being married to a robot

There has to be some future for CB radios other than flushing out the hiding places of Smokey (the police) and broadcasting to a breathless audience that you're on the way to Grandma's for pork chops.

As usual, I've thought deeply about the possibilities and it occurs to me CB conversations could be an absolute godsend for families trapped in a car with a driver who says, "Tell me when you see a place to stop and eat."

Some men are wonderful about pulling off the road every three or four hours, but some of us are married to robots. They require no food. No liquids. No breathers. Their stomachs never bloat. Their vision never becomes blurred from hunger. Their legs never cramp. They consider a key in a gas station as a wall accessory.

CB radio communication might just be the answer, if women all over the country would seize control of the speakers.

"This is Famine 4, calling anyone. Famine 4 calling anyone. Come in anyone. May Day! May Day!"

"Break Famine 4, this is Cactus Patch (Phoenix). What seems to be the problem? You need a Tijuana taxi (wrecker)?"

"Negative, Cactus Patch. Got a crazy buffalo (husband) at the wheel who won't go to 100 (restroom stop), stop to get groceries (eat) or for that matter make a pit stop (gas). He just keeps his foot on the hammer (accelerator) at double nickel (55 mph). If you're a hard ankle (trucker) please identify."

"Positive, Famine 4. You're the 15th May Day I've received today. How many survivors are there?"

"Just Mama (me) and three bubblegummers (teenagers). Anything we can lay an eye on (anything in sight)?"

"How about a chipped tooth beanery on old 48?"

"He had toenails in his radiator on that one" (speeded by).

"Hey, Famine 4, this is Boston Beans here. We've got four muskrats (children) in a pregnant roller skate (VW). Know your problem. You're just four miles from Grease City. Let your flaps down (slow down). Good luck."

These patients should limit fat

DEAR DR. LAMB — I need your help. I have a heart block and have a pacemaker. I don't know what to eat. Would you please tell me what I can eat and what I can't eat. I am very much concerned about my diet. I am afraid I am eating the wrong foods. Please help me.

DEAR READER — Since almost all people who require an implanted pacemaker have coronary artery disease I would presume that is your problem. That means you should be on a diet for the prevention of coronary artery disease.

Such a program includes sufficient calorie restriction in relation to your daily activity or calorie needs to eliminate or prevent obesity. It also includes limiting your fat to no more than 35 per cent of the total calories in your diet and limiting your saturated fat to no more than 10 per cent of your total daily calories. In addition you should limit your cholesterol intake to no more than 300 milligrams a day.

You may need to restrict your salt intake, too, depending upon your medical status.

To accomplish these goals you need quite a bit of information. For starters, you should use lean meats with the fat removed, white meat of chicken or turkey with the skin removed, and lean fish. You can rotate your meat item so you get meat, poultry and fish each about one-third of the time. Eliminate egg yolks, cream and whole milk. You can use fortified skim milk if you don't have to restrict your sodium intake.

Avoid organ meats, specifically liver and brains, because they contain lots of cholesterol. Otherwise, eat a balanced diet with adequate amounts of vegetables and fruits. Avoid adding fatty sauces or salad dressings to your vegetables. Avoid frying and rely more on roasting, broiling, baking and boiling.

To give you more information on diet principles I am sending you The Health Letter number 1-3, Diet, Preventing Atherosclerosis. Others who want this issue can send a long, self-addressed, stamped envelope with 50 cents for it. Address your letter to me in care of this newspaper, P.O. Box 1551, Radio City Station, New York, NY 10019.

DEAR DR. LAMB — I had a partial hysterectomy over 20 years ago. The cervix was left in.

I have been taking diethylstilbesterol hormone for about seven years. Will this hormone help to cause cancer?

DEAR READER — No. It may increase the chances of cancer of the lining of the uterus. Otherwise, there is no good evidence that this or other female hormones cause cancer. Your partial hysterectomy removed that danger for you.

However, you can still develop cancer of the cervix, not because of the hormones you are taking, but because you still have a cervical stump. You should have regular checkups at least once a year with a Pap smear for early detection of any changes. This applies to all women with a cervix after beginning the childbearing age whether or not they are taking any hormones.

Today most hysterectomies include complete removal of both the body and cervical portion of the uterus eliminating that danger. This is a sensible precaution.

Glad you asked

Q: Books, like TV and movies, seem to run in cycles. What's the newest cycle of books about? — Mrs. Theo L. Pasadena, Cal.

A: Tennis. Our friend Marvin L. Gross, editor of "Book Digest," tells us that tennis would be topic No. 1 during the upcoming season. With "literary" entires under the bylines of some of the most famous contemporary figures in the racket.

For example, John Newcombe and his wife Angie have a "how-to" book titled: "The Family Tennis Book." Veteran pro Pancho Gonzalez's "Tennis Begins at Forty" emphasizes the importance of brainpower over brawn.

Rod Laver and Roy Emerson concentrate on the fundamentals of the more difficult shots in the game, under the title "Tennis for the Bloody Fun of It!"

In "Championship Tennis," Pancho Segura (who coached Jimmy Connors and Chris Evert) dissects their two-handed styles and also offers tips on the lobbing game.

In "Court of Today," three-time Wimbledon champion Margaret Court relates her memorable victory over Billie Jean King in the Wimbledon finals, a victory that renewed her sagging self-confidence.

Arthur Ashe's book, "Portrait in Motion," is also condensed in "Book Digest." The Wimbledon champion who recently teamed with a contemporary he once sued, Jimmy Connors, to win a doubles match, writes about the gypsy mode of life a champ experiences on "The Tour." The scene changes so fast, Arthur says, "it's like sitting in a room and changing TV channels."

Ashe also reveals how he won some trophies when he started playing tennis at the age of ten. By the time he entered high school, he could beat every black in Richmond, Va., where he was born in 1943. Today he's the Muhammad Ali of the courts and hits almost as hard!

Q: What is the eerie coincidence about rock stars Janis Joplin and Jimi Hendrix? — Ellie Lane, Springfield, Mass.

A: They were both born the same year (1943) and died the same year (1970).

Q: I heard that Roy Clark and Buck Owens of "Hee-Haw" are brothers. True? — Glen R., McClintock, Jr., Tulsa, Okla.

Send your questions to Hy Gardner, "Glad You Asked That," care of Progress-Bulletin, P.O. Box 11748, Chicago, Ill. 60611. Marilyn and Hy Gardner will answer as many questions as they can in their column, but the volume of mail makes personal replies impossible.

Q: Despite an unwritten rule that members must remove their hats when Congress is in session, I understand that one member always wears a hat. Any idea who it is? — Mrs. Adelaide C. Arlington, Va.

A: Yes. Bella Abzug of New York.

ARIES (March 21-April 19) You can be instrumental today in making significant, beneficial changes for one you're extremely fond of. Help if you're asked.

TAURUS (April 20-May 20) Although it is not usually wise to let your heart rule your head, today is an exception. Let compassion take precedence.

GEMINI (May 21-June 20) Changes that you have a major role in making today affecting your family should win the applause of all. Exercise your initiative.

CANCER (June 21-July 22) Let the one you love know how you truly feel today. Your expressed devotion will do much to make this person's day a rousing success.

LEO (July 23-Aug. 22) Rewards will come your way today if you're persistent. Don't even consider tossing in your hand before the last card is turned.

VIRGO (Aug. 23-Sept. 22) Flattery will get you everywhere today, if it's deserved. Go out of your way to compliment those who have earned your praise.

LIBRA (Sept. 23-Oct. 23) In business today, don't let the other guy feel he's the only fish in the sea. Your little ploy will gain you important considerations.

SCORPIO (Oct. 24-Nov. 22) One of your noblest characteristics is your loyalty. A person you stand by today will not readily forget your trueblue qualities.

SAGITTARIUS (Nov. 23-Dec. 21) Today you will be more concerned with boosting someone than in furthering your self-interests. No wonder everyone thinks you're great!

AQUARIUS (Jan. 20-Feb. 19) Associates who gave you only halfhearted support yesterday will be willing to go all-out for you today.

PISCES (Feb. 20-March 20) You have a way of putting completely at ease those you deal with today. Harmony and pleasant memories will be yours.

Your Birthday Aug. 30, 1976

This coming year should be a fun one for you. You'll relax your guard a bit and you won't take yourself or your associates too seriously.

Jacoby's bridge

Play caps dated bidding

By Oswald & James Jacoby

Here is another hand from the May, 1940, Bridge World. It was submitted by a reader as an example of interesting dummy play.

South rose with dummy's ace of spades, entered his hand with the king of hearts, ruffed a diamond, entered his hand with the king of clubs, ruffed his last diamond, cashed dummy's ace and queen of hearts, ruffed the last heart and threw West in with his high trump after West discarded.

West had to either lead a club or give South a ruff and discard for his contract.

The Bridge World's comment was well played, but that North should have merely bid five spades, not six; thereupon South could realize that he had magic cards and bid the slam.

That was 1940 bidding. Modernists would find all sorts of possible sequences including such action as a repeated diamond cue bid by North.

Our own opinion is that it is a cinch to reach six when you look at all the cards, but at the table any pair that got there by any method would be proud of their bidding.

Ask the Jacobys

A Kansas reader wants to know what we bid with:

♠ x x x ♥ K x x ♦ A x x x ♣ K x x

in response to partner's one-heart opening bid.

We simply raise to two hearts. Our hand has no ruffing value, but with an ace and two kings we want to try a more encouraging bid than one notrump.

An Associated Press news special

California and its missing aircraft

LOS ANGELES (AP) — Each year people strap themselves in their private aircraft, taxi down the runway, soar off into the sky and disappear.

They literally drop out of sight. The plane presumably crashes but nobody can find it.

Government figures show at least 75 aircraft missing in the United States over the last seven years, with more than one-tenth of the nation's searches taking place in California.

The California Civil Air Patrol logged 65 search missions in 1975, said CAP officer Frank Burnham of Los Angeles, noting that the state has 17 per cent of the nation's private aircraft and six of the 10 busiest airports.

Alaska, where a plane carrying Rep. Hale Boggs, D-La., disappeared in 1972, ranks at the top with 13 missing aircraft in the last seven years. Other leaders are Washington, 10; California, 9; Florida, 8, and Michigan, 6.

Most of the planes missing over Michigan and Florida presumably sank in water. In the West, many missing aircraft are probably sitting on mountainsides, not in plain sight but not necessarily lost forever.

Some of those planes in the mountains turn up years later, perhaps spotted by a hunter or hiker or found during a search for another aircraft.

Just last year the California CAP found a plane that had been missing 17 years. The aircraft apparently broke up badly upon hitting a mountain near San Bernardino and the wreckage fell into crevasses where it couldn't be seen. Heavy snows of a couple of years ago apparently shifted the wreckage or the rocks, and the plane was visible last year.

A search is begun whenever an aircraft disappears from a radar screen, is overdue and can't be tracked down at some other airport, or starts giving signals from its emergency locator transmitter.

It is important to find the missing plane right away because Air Force studies have shown that the chances of injured persons surviving go down 50 per cent the first day after the crash and another 30 per cent the second day. After the third day, there is almost no chance of finding survivors.

However, CAP probes will continue as long as there are reasonable leads, but will ordinarily be called off if the plane isn't found within 10 to 14 days.

As many as 50 to 100 aircraft may be involved in a search, and each plane will be assigned one or more search areas of about seven miles wide and seven miles long. The flying is done at the dangerously low height of 500 feet above the ground.

While searching for missing aircraft in California, CAP pilots must sort through the 672 wrecked planes that still sit on the state's mountainsides. The CAP has a chart of known wreckages to help pilots tell new wrecks from old. They've even painted some of them yellow.

Burnham said the aircraft owner will usually pay a salvage firm to recover the plane if there is anything worth saving. If not, the wreck just sits there as an advertisement for flying safety.

Even with all those reminders, Burnham said more than half of the searches are for pilots who didn't bother to take the simple precaution of filing a flight plan.

If there is a flight plan, the search is on within a couple of hours after the plane fails to show up, and the searchers have some idea where to look, Burnham emphasized. "If there's no plan, it may be days before anyone reports the pilot is missing, and it's a big country, out there, with a lot of nooks and crannies.

The Air Force Rescue and Recovery Service at Scott Air Force Base, Ill., coordinates searches in the continental United States, but the CAP puts in about 85 per cent of the flying hours on the searches.

There are three basic search patterns:

—The expanding square in which the pilot makes a small square in the middle of search area and keeps enlarging it until he has a square seven miles on a side.

—The creeping line where the pilot flies across and back until he has covered an area like yardlines on a football field.

—The contour where the pilot starts at the peak of each mountain in the search area and flies around it at lowering altitudes until he reaches the base.

It takes an aircraft about three hours to search an area, and each area is searched at least twice, at different times of the day to get different light angles.

A pilot must undergo extensive special training before being certified as a CAP search pilot. There are about 200 such pilots in California.

The CAP pilots are all volunteers with their own aircraft. They are paid nothing for searching but are reimbursed for gas and oil. Burnham said Air Force studies show it would cost about $400 an hour for the military to do the searching that the CAP can do for about $11 an hour.

Brain monitor

CLEVELAND (AP) — University Hospital here has developed a compact portable device it says is the first to permit day-long brain monitoring while a patient pursues normal activities.

The package, which resembles a camera or a normal tape recorder, is a sophisticated four-channel recording system which stores information in a cassette for playback later in a medial laboratory.

Dr. John H. Ferguson, a neurologist who is one of the developers, says the abnormality present in patients with temporary disturbances may show up only a few seconds a day.

A conventional 20-minute electroencephalogram (EEG) "may miss those precious seconds" but the 24-hour monitor is more likely to pick them up, Ferguson says.

In use, penny-sized electrodes on a patient's scalp are concealed by hair and are attached to the recorder by wire. The recorder can be carried like a shoulder purse or can be attached to a belt. The wires can be covered by a jacket, sweater or other clothing.

Ferguson says that since the record is taken during routine activity, it comes from conditions much more relaxed and normal than those in a lab.

Besides providing a means for diagnosing epilepsy in patients whose brain wave irregularity doesn't show up during conventional EEGs, the monitor can provide a check on dosage and effectiveness of drugs, Ferguson says.

He says it can help determine whether psychiatric behavior disorders have some nerve system or other physical basis. It can enable doctors to look into possible relationship of fainting episodes with abnormal brain wave action, and it can be used in connection with sleep disorders.

Through tiny amplifiers built into the electrodes, the device also permits monitoring brain waves during surgery and in intensive-care units.

In the lab, a computer-aided review system reads the playback rapidly while identifying portions which may merit a doctor's special consideration.

But it is expensive, too costly for general use now, so its use is limited to special problems, Ferguson says. He hopes to find ways to reduce the cost so its use can be more general.

Ferguson is a neurologist at the hospital and an associate professor at Case Western Reserve University. Others helping develop the system were Howard P. Apple, an assistant professor of anesthesia and biomedical engineering at Case Western, and Richard C. Burgess, a biomedical engineer in his third year of medical study there.

Fair Home Arts Division

Large field expected

Keen competition is expected again this year in the Home Arts Division at the Los Angeles County Fair where more than 2,000 hopefuls compete for top awards and prizes.

Competition will be judged in foods, clothing and textiles, household accessories, table decorating and arts and crafts.

All award-winning articles along with other selected entries will be displayed.

The attractive color-coordinated showcases will be arranged by Pay Mayeda.

Highlighting the exhibit will be a special Bicentennial display.

Daily demonstrations will be featured in the Home Arts Showcase, Cooking, weaving, china painting and wood carving and some crafts shown.

Five audience-pleasing contests are scheduled.

The long-time favorites, the "Nimble Fingers" crocheting and knitting speed contests, will be staged Tuesday, Sept. 21.

The table decorating contest will be on display all during the fair with judging for the first show Thursday, Sept. 16 and the second show Monday, Sept. 27.

Popularity will growing each year for the "My Favorite Choclate Cake" competition Wednesday, Sept. 22.

"My Favorite Lemon Pie" Contests will be held Wednesday, Sept. 29.

Keeping in touch with modern trends, the microwave cookery contest will get underway for the second year Thursday, Sept. 23.

Cave bill advances

SACRAMENTO (AP) — It would be illegal for anyone to cave in a cave without an owner's permission under a bill winning Assembly approval.

By a 67-0 vote Tuesday, the Assembly approved a measure that would make it a misdemeanor to deface or damage a cave or its contents.

It is SB 1469.

Nogales students to register soon

Students attending Nogales High School in La Puente will be registered for fall semester classes on Sept. 7-8 according to the first initials of their last names.

Students will be notified by mail and must be present at the designated time. They will not be officially registered in school until they register.

Students registering after Sept. 8 will have limited choices, because many classes will be filled.

Seniors and juniors will register Sept. 7, and sophomores Sept. 8. Scheduling on Sept. 7 will begin at 8:45 a.m. and end at 3:15 p.m. Hours on Sept. 8 will be from 7:45 to 11:45 a.m. ending with a make-up session.

Bus transportation will be provided to and from school for registration.

School will start Sept. 13. The office telephone number is (213) 965-3437.

Ninth state

Almanac

Today's highlight in history:

On this date in 1782, nearly 1,100 persons drowned when an English man-o-war sank while being repaired in the harbor at Portsmouth, England.

On this date:

In 1533, the last Incan king of Peru, Atahualpa, was strangled on the orders of the Spanish conqueror, Francisco Pizarro.

In 1817, the first abolition newspaper in the United States, the Philanthropist, was published in Mount Pleasant, Ohio.

In 1901, the temperance crusader, Carry Nation, swung her hatchet in an attack on a New York saloon run by former heavyweight boxing champion, John L. Sullivan.

In 1935, Queen Astrid of Belgium was killed in an auto accident in Switzerland.

In 1943, Danish warships were scuttled at Copenhagen in an uprising against the Nazis during World War II.

In 1945, Gen. Douglas MacArthur left Manila for Japan to accept the Japanese surrender.

Today's birthdays: Gen. Lyman Lemnitzer is 77 years old. Actor Barry Sullivan is 64.

Thought for today: There are not enough jails, not enough policemen, not enough courts to enforce a law not supported by the people Senator Hubert Humphrey.

Bicentennial footnote: Two hundred years ago, at night, under cover of fog, Gen. George Washington successfully evacuated 10,000 to 12,000 troops from Long Island to Manhattan.

More Japanese beetles found on jetliner

SAN DIEGO (AP) - A commercial jetliner carried four Japanese beetles this week on a direct flight from Dulles International Airport outside Washington, D.C.

The discovery of the dead pests in the passenger compartment brought to seven the number found since Aug. 6 at San Diego's Lindbergh Field. All seven were found on planes from Dulles.

Scott Radcliffe, deputy San Diego County agricultural commisssioner, said the beetles "apparently board aircraft at Dulles in a rural area.

In an effort to prevent infestation of California crops Radcliffe said all major airline flights will be met in San Diego to search out beetles.

Firefighting recruit class shrinks again

LOS ANGELES (AP) — Another fire fighter recruit class is suffering from extensive resignations and terminations, especially among minorities, says Fire Chief Kenneth Long. He told a meeting of the Board of Fire Commissioners Thursday that the original class of 45 which started July 5 is down to 20, with the ratio of minority recruits dropping from 71.1 per cent to 60 per cent. Another class, begun Jan. 5 with 160 students, dropped to only 60 by graduation.

'We must civilize the teenagers'

By Ira Berkow

Daniel Patrick Moynihan, who is running for U.S. senator from New York, has an elegant apartment on the ninth floor of a high-rise building on 78th Street in Manhattan. It is a chick block on the East Side and crime is not as great there as, say, on 127th Street in Harlem or on Fulton St. in Bedford-Stuyvesant or even cross-town on Tenth Avenue around where Pat Moynihan grew up in "Hell's Kitchen."

In the classy neighborhood in Manhattan where Moynihan lives now, there have been only three murders in the last two weeks, numerous muggings and copious robberies.

And the 49-year-old, 6-foot-6 Daniel Patrick Moynihan, candidate for senator, former U.S. ambassador to the United Nations, cabinet member or advisor to four U.S. presidents, ambassador to India, Harvard professor, holder of honorary degrees from 27 universities, this white-haired pillar, this distinguished citizen should not take a stroll around his bloock at night without the protection of a very big dog or very good track shoes.

Moynihan, wisely enough, was driving a car through the neighborhood recently; maybe even wiser, driving out of it. He was in the back seat of his chauffeur-driven rented campaign car, going to a private airport in New Jersey where he would depart for a speaking engagement upstate.

In the back seat, he sat in a dark blue suit and dark dapper bow tie and an altogether shocking yellow shirt. His hair falls onto the right side of his forehead in miniature Virginia Mayo style, and his cheeks are cherubic and undeniably Gaelic. He looked at the passing street scenes.

"You know that one-fifth of all robberies in the United States are committed in New York City," he said. "And most of those are committed by people in the age group of 14 to 24.

"I remember reading some statistics from a Princeton University demographer. He said that every society throughout history has been invaded by barbarians. Even barbarians were invaded by barbarians. He called that age group from 14 to 24 the barbarians. They are people who don't know how to behave in society. And the older generations must go through a process of teaching them. The Chinese, the Germans, the Hindus, the Romans, the Huns.

"So the problems for a society are either increased or decreased depending on the number of these so-called barbarians. Here are some statistics which may reveal why crime has grown in the last 15 years, if I got them right:

"From 1890 through 1960, the size of this particular grouping grew by 11.8 million. In the 10 years from 1960 to 1970, the 14-24 age group increased by 12.8 million! Societies all over the world — not just the American society — could hardly cope with trying to civilize such an enormous influx.

"The tumult of the 1960s had a lot to do with this. There were conflagrations in America. But in France, for example, the young people almost contributed to the fall of the government.

"In May of 1969 De Gaulle actually left Paris and nearly went into exile in the country.

"The world had 10 times as many teenagers to try to civilize than ever before. It's like the python swallowing the ox. It will be accomplished, but it takes a lot of time and effort."

The boom in post-World War II babies has now leveled off, and Moynihan believes that the chaos has already lessened to a degree, as seen by quieter times on campuses.

"But the problems in the cities are still monumental," he said. He agrees that much of it has to do with drug traffic.

"Seventy five per cent of all the robberies in New York are drug related and committed by young people," he said.

"Somehow we've got to smash that damn international drug commerce. I think it can be done by the federal government through diplomatic channels.

"We should be emphatic that countries that grow opium are engaging in an unfriendly act as far as we're concerned. We do some of that now, but not enough. Not only that, but our bureaucratic arguments are a disgrace.

"Customs and federal drug enforcement officials and the FBI are involved in so much bickering it can break your heart. Who gets the money for informers? Who outranks whom? I mean, it can make you weep from frustration."

Daniel Patrick Moynihan grew up tough. His father left home when he was a boy. He was shining shoes in Times Square at age 14 when he first heard about Pearl Harbor, "the first

George Rogers Clark, commander of the Kentucky militia, conceived the daring plan of attacking British posts to win the Northwest Territory for Virginia and halt British-instigated indian attacks. In July, 1778, Clark and a force of 150 men captured the outpost trading centers of Kaskaskia, Cahokia, and Vincennes in the Illinois country. When British Lt. Gov. Hamilton was sent from Detroit to retake Vincennes in December, 1798, Clark moved on the post, surprised the garrison and accepted Hamilton's surrender, The World Almanac reports on Feb. 25, 1779.

Calculators for the blind

LOS ANGELES (AP) — It seems like everyone from housewives to schoolchildren are pecking at electronic calculators these days, but until a few months ago they were of little value to one group that could really use them — the blind.

Now a Costa Mesa electronics company, Master Specialties, has developed a calculator that "talks," thus enabling blind and partially sighted persons to use the little gadgets for the first time.

The device, known as an Audio Response Calculator, announces each entry in a clear, male-sounding, voice and also tells the user the results of every computation. When a blind person punches out the childhood problem of "2 times 2 equals ?," the machine says "two times two equals" and supplies the answer, which for those who have forgotten, is "four."

"I went blind somewhere near the end of my elementary school years," says Jim Mitchell, a 20-year-old junior at the University of California at Irvine. "But I can remember what it was like to see the blackboards and to use an adding machine. When calculators came out it was really neat, but I couldn't read any of them so they didn't do me much good."

Ken Renaud, product manager for Master Specialties, says Braille calculators have been available for some years but adds that less than half of the blind population can read Braille.

"There was a need in this area for blind persons," says Renaud. "Their present methods of doing math were very antiquated and very time consuming. Now, with an audio feedback, any blind person can do math whether he be in early child development, on the job, figuring out his taxes or whatever."

Master Specialties, a 35-year-old company with annual sales of about $10 million, has been manufacturing solid-state voice equipment for the Bell System since 1970, experience which Renaud says helped in developing the new calculator.

Basically, we already had the technology for storing words on electronic chips," he explained in an interview. "So we put the digits and the words for the basic functions into these chips and then we built our own calculator and put the two together."

Master Specialties calculator, which retails for $565, will add, subtract, divide, multiply, do squares, square roots, percentages and reciprocal numbers. A more complex model, designed for scientific use, will perform 42 different functions.

The calculator, which measures seven inches long and 10 inches wide, stands about three inches tall. It has an extra-large keyboard on an oversized visual display for partially sighted persons.

Business briefs

MINNEAPOLIS(AP) — Two officers of its Burbank, Calif., subsidiary have resigned as a result of a probe into improper payments from an unidentified ocean carrier, Gamble Skogmo, Inc., said Monday.

A spokesman said the investigation has not determined the full amount of the payments, but that they totaled at least $130,000.

Weekly Wall Street

Nothing stirs market dip

NEW YORK (AP) — A bright forecast from the biggest company in the nation's biggest industry failed to stir the stock market out of its late-summer slump this past week.

The Dow Jones average of 30 industrial stocks dropped 10.14 to 963.93 on the heels of a 16.12 loss the week before.

Standard & Poor's 500-stock index lost .89 to 101.48, and the New York Stock Exchange's composite index of all its listed common stocks was off .48 at 54.23.

Big Board volume trudged along at a daily average of 15.40 million shares, down from 16.80 million in the preceding week.

After declines Monday and Tuesday, the market did show a few signs of life Wednesday when General Motors, the auto industry giant, issued a projection of record car and truck sales for the industry in calendar 1977.

The Dow climbed nearly 8 points in Wednesday's trading. But the next day it cancelled that out by falling back more than 10.

And on Friday, despite support from the news of another rise in the government's index of leading economic indicators, the average could manage only a token 3-point recovery.

August is traditionally the slowest month of the year for Wall Street, and many investors seemed to be content simply to sit it out, waiting for a couple of large questions to be answered.

One of those issues is the prospective shape of government economic policy after the presidential election.

Another centers on the debate over whether the recent slowing of the economic recovery means trouble, or is a healthy, non-inflationary development, as a number of Wall Streeters maintain.

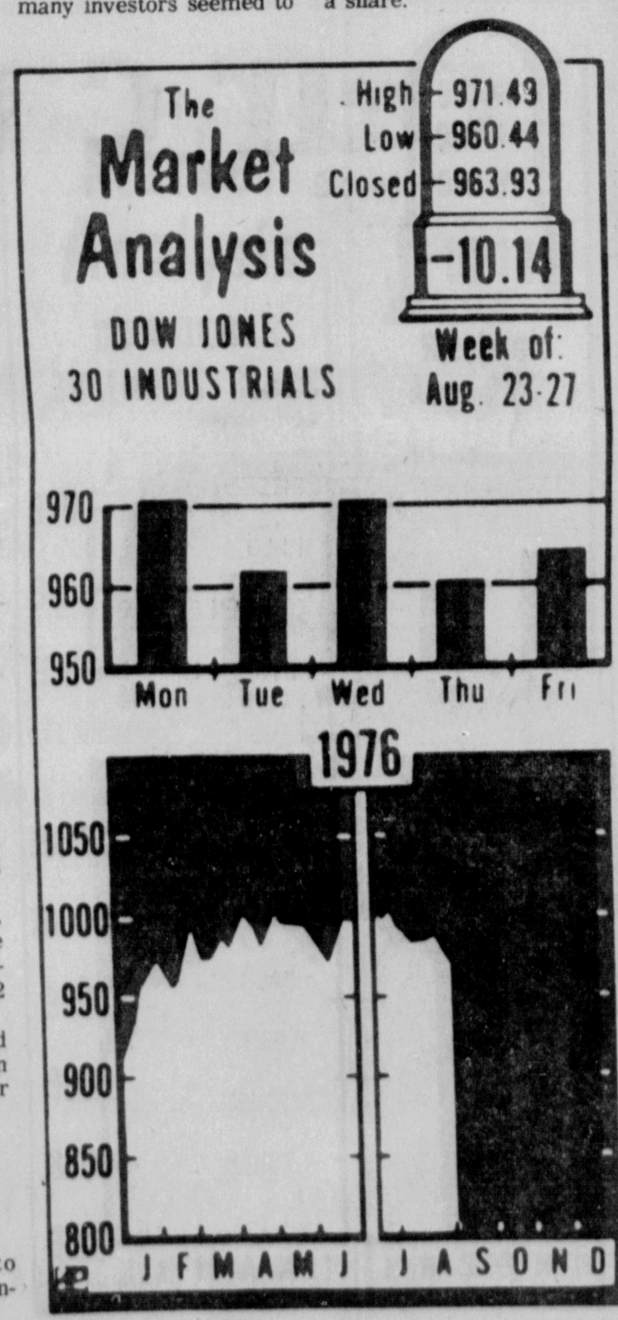
The financial community also began looking ahead hopefully toward Labor Day, commonly referred to as the business world's New Year's.

Yale Hirsch, an Old Tappan, N.J., investment adviser, noted that the market has gained ground in the three days preceding the Labor Day weekend in each of the last 15 years.

Of course past performance, as the advertisements for investment services always note, is no guarantee of future results.

Bank stocks were one notable target of sellers. The latest Federal Reserve statistics on money and credit showed a continued lag in demand for business loans.

A bright spot, on the other hand, was Youngstown Steel Door, which jumped ahead after Lamson & Sessions said it planned a tender offer for the company's stock at $17 a share.



MARKET ANALYSIS — The Dow Jones average closed at 963.93 Friday, down 10.14 from the week prior. The drop was attributed to investor concern over the slowing of the nation's economic recovery.

Maria

Drama colorful, characters compelling

By R.E. MORSBERGER

(Robert E. Morsberger is professor of English at Cal Poly, Pomona.)

In the 19th Century, the most eminent novelists — Scott, Tolstoy, Hawthorne, Cooper, Hugo, Dumas, Dickens, Thackeray, Stevenson — wrote historical novels; the genre is now in disrepute, perhaps because of potboiling period gothics and broadsword and boudoir epics.

But in skillful hands, historical fiction not only recalls to life a past in many ways more colorful than our own drab pollution, junkways, and urban sprawl but presents characters and dramas of timeless interest.

With the exception of an occasional work by writers like Faulkner and Styron, most of the notable historical novels of the 20th Century have been by women: Sigrid Undset, Mary Renault, Zoe Oldenburg, Hope Muntz, H. M. F. Prescott, Joan Sanders, Margaret Irwin, Jean Plaidy, and a host of other figures. (Why this should be is unclear; perhaps men are more concerned with immediate "relevance," a word that is increasingly used as an anti-intellectual attack upon the accumulated art, ideas, and historical significance of the past.)

The latest notable addition to their ranks is Cecelia Holland, who published her first novel at 23 and in the last 10 years has produced eight works of consistently high quality, ranging in history from Atilla the Hun to 17th-century Hungary.

Her latest, "Great Maria," is set in 11th Century Italy, where the Norman nobility are locked in a power struggle with the Italian barons and clergy and with the Saracens. The precise location is unclear, and the events will be unfamiliar to the reader, but the drama is colorful and the characters compelling.

For the first time, Miss Holland has made her protagonist a woman, with rewarding results. We see everything from the perspective of Maria, the daughter of a minor baron, who at 14 thinks she is enamored of Roger d'Alene but is forced into an arranged marriage with his older brother Richard. Their Story is an unsentimental one in which they become reluctantly joined by passion, power, and politics into a relationship that becomes something like love and that is more enduring than romantic infatuation.

The loosely-plotted narrative is full of lively and often violent incident, less important for its own sake than for dramatizing the development of the characters. Maria is no passive chatelaine; she is a passionate partner who insists upon equality and who rides, fights, and plots with the best of them.

Richard finds that he has taken on more of a wife than he bargained for, but that she becomes indispensible. We see her develop from a green girl into a middle-aged woman with sons older than she was at the beginning. She and Richard battle their way from obscure rank and petty power to establish and rule a kingdom.

In the violent, perilous world they inhabit, nothing is secure except their own strength of character. The struggle between them for mastery makes a story that is at once enlightening and engrossing.

Frankenstein back in print

THE SLAVE OF FRANKENSTEIN. By Robert J. Myers. Lippincott. 219 Pages. $7.95.

Once usually is enough when it comes to writing sequels to well-remembered stories of the past.

Robert J. Myer's first addition to Mary Shelley's Frankenstein legend — "The Cross of Frankenstein" — was a generally interesting, readable novel — but largely because of its novelty. Sure, there was a rash of unsatisfying movies that tried to update the Frankenstein story, but nothing that really satisfied the appetite of those who wondered what had happened to the Monster and its creator after Mary Shelley left off.

"The Cross of Frankenstein" helped satisfy that desire to some extent, and for that it was welcome. But "The Slave of Frankenstein" is little more than a reheating of the same old stew with a couple of new potatoes added.

In "Slave," Victor Frankenstein, son of the creator of the Monster and first introduced in "Cross," is 30 years older than when first met, but the situation is still basically the same

By N.C. POLOS

THE RAVEN: A biography of Sam Houston, by Marquis James. Bobbs-Merrill, $10.

This handsome book is the reissue of the 1929 Pulitzer Prize book (awarded in 1930). The new issue carries the introduction by Henry Steele Commager.

Commager's enthusiasm although a bit exaggerated catches the excitement of the Houston years. In the introduction he writes: "What a tale of heroism and adventure it is, this story of the Raven! . . . This is the stuff of which legend is made, this story of the making of Texas, and Houston is one with those semilegendary characters — with Daniel Boone and Davy Crockett, with Marion the Swamp Fox and Ethan Allen."

While Commager is also busy equating Houston in a romantic sense with Charlemagne, and Alfred the Great, and others he also helps to give us some insight into the thrilling frontier romance of the Houston epic.

Marquis James was not an ordinary writer. He was a newspaper man by profession and contributed to many journals and to radio.

Some of his later works which were very well received were "Andrew Jackson: The Border Captain," and Andrew Jackson: Portrait of a President" (for which he was awarded the Pulitzer Prize, 1938). This book is one of his best efforts.

Scholarly, alive, easy to read, animated by a valid sense of history, filled with three-dimensional human beings and colorful anecdotes James quickly restores to life the magnificent figure of Sam Houston.

While it is true that James had a powerful figure of history as his model he has taken the folklore and unwritten legends and transformed them into history, and has not lost the "heroism and adventure" in the process thus proving that history need not serve "sawdust" sandwiches, and that a story liberally documented and accurately framed in the pageant of American history such as "The Raven" can still rival fiction.

Born to a distinguished Virginia family, Sam Houston left college to roam with the Indians. He fought under Andrew Jackson in the War of 1812 and rose to become governor of Tennessee. Again he left to roam with the Indians, this time rising to the presidency of the Republic of Texas, the "Lone Star State."

Houston led a versatile career he was at avarious times a lawyer (an "inactive man of actions"), a congressman (one "who is often on the fence to avoid giving offense"), a schoolteacher, a poet, a frontiersman, governor of two states, and a leader of the Cherokee Nation.

His life is that of the American hero, the stuff of which legends are made, and James paints a very large portrait of San Houston.

James paints not only the "lineaments of this nation builder, but the lineaments of the young Republic; of romaticism, of democracy, of the frontier, of expansion, and of nationalism."

James has an honest picture. Houston took to dirt and drink and even sloth with "downright enthusiasm," because he had the weakness and even the vices of the frontiersman, but James does not neglect Houston as the soldier and statesman which he displayed with fortitude, a sobriety and prudence.

Buy this book. In the humdrum world of social security it is the "great escape."

Board approves DWP pay hikes

LOS ANGELES (AP) — The Board of Water and Power commissioners has approved raises that will bring the salaries of four top department executives above $61,000. The commissioners approved 4.5 per cent raises for four officials Thursday, but didn't hike the salary of general manager-chief engineer Louis H. Winnard, who is already the top paid city official at a salary of $69,576.

One is the loneliest number.

It's also the most expensive and the most wasteful when that one is a single person in a car commuting to work everyday.

He spends twice as much money as two people riding together. And he uses twice as much gas, too.

Besides that, he's alone. Completely. Sure, he's got a radio. But a radio can't really talk to you. And it never, ever listens. Think about that.

Learning the art of clowning

That's the only "requirement" for a 10-night course he teaches once a week to prospective clowns, through Ohio State University's Creative Arts Program.

Stettler, a 14-year veteran of the local Aladdin Shrine group's clown unit, says his approach to clowning is simple: "You've got to want to make people happy.

"By doing this, you get an inner satisfaction. You give a child a balloon and a sucker as a 'normal' person, and maybe you get a 'thank you.' But do it as a clown, and you get them to light up all over."

He cautions students, however, "Not all children are receptive to clowns. You must never try to force yourself on a child."

New students first must decide from "looking around them" what kind of clown they'd like to be.

Next, they "find out if their facial expressions would suit this," Stettler says. Stettler's own clown makeup was inspired by a face he saw many years ago on a can of fruit juice.

Students in the course learn both through watching and doing. Stettler enlists help from two other Shrine clowns so that students can observe the methods other clowns use in doing a full makeup. Then the students purchase grease paint and try it for themselves.

For a clown, making up is not "just putting something on and seeing how it comes out," Stettler emphasizes. There are specific types of clown roles: the always-happy white face, the august clown (who can be happy or sad, using a basic suntan makeup with color around the mouth and eyes only) and the tramp clown.

Students must also learn to apply makeup so it will stay in place when it's 90 degrees in the shade and when it's raining, Stettler says.

Stettler, a car retarder operator with Conrail for 36 years, got his own training with the same clowning techniques through the Aladdin clowns.

Drawing on Shrine clown routines, he introduces simple stunts and basic slapstick, things clowns can do as individuals while marching in a parade and skits clowns can do in groups.

Limits on costuming are set only by the students' imaginations. They sew, raid attics or buy cheaply at flea markets for a dress-up finale the last day of class.

Improvisation is important in costuming — two of Stettler's own false noses are created from a sliced ping pong ball and a foam toe pad which he paints red and glues on.

Would-be clown Sharon Luster of Dayton drove to Columbus each week last spring after hearing about the course from her brother, an Ohio State student.

She has already donned makeup and costume to entertain a class of handicapped children her mother teaches in Dayton, and she plans to perform at birthday parties for neighborhood children.

Another student, George Leich, had already been clowning in parades in the suburban Columbus area. He has organized a group he calls "George's Clowns," and came to the class to learn more about special makeup techniques.

Stettler says although students take the course with a different idea, they usually all decide they want it for the same reason — "to hide behind makeup and act a fool."

"Basically, you become a completely different person," he says. "With the makeup on, you can do outside what you feel inside."

major event after my childhood." He was serving as assistant Secretary of Labor when John Kennedy was assassinated.

"At the funeral, I remember saying, 'There's no point in being Irish if you don't know that the world's going to break your heart eventually.' But life goes on," said Moynihan, looking out the car window.

A new use for signs

LOS ANGELES (AP) — Those changeable message signs along the Santa Monica Freeway that cost $1.2 million may have another use, two city officials say. City Atty. Burt Pines and Air Pollution Control District chief Jeb Stuart suggested Thursday the signs be used to alert drivers to serious smog conditions and advise car-pooling on those days.

Loan rate hike bill advances

SACRAMENTO (AP) — Maximum rates for credit union loans would be increased from 12 to 15 per cent under a bill approved by the state Assembly.

The 61-4 vote send the measure by Sen. Lou Cusanovich, R-Van Nuys, back to the Senate for action on amendments.

Supporters argued that the maximum allowable interest rate for credit unions had not been increased since 1951.

The bill was sponsored by the California Credit Union League and opposed by the state Department of Corporations.

It is SB 1071.

Jefe aprueba estudio verificado de la policia

El nuevo Jefe de Policia de Pomona, Sr. James W. Richards, en funciones desde hace tres semanas y todavia evaluando su departamento de 140 oficiales, aprueba la proposicion de un estudio berificado desde fuera por profesionales capacitados de la actuacion del cuerpo bajo su mando.

"Una revision desde afuera puede proveer nuevas y constructivas ideas, no solo para la policia sino tambien para el Concejo municipal y para la comunidad."

El Sr. Richards advirtio, sin embargo, que ningun estudio es un cura-lo-todo que elimine el crimen automaticamente.

El estudio propuesto, por el International Association of Police Chiefs, tiene el apoyo de la mayoria del Concejo municipal de la ciudad.

Se anticipa que el estudio, con un costo aproximado de $20,000 y seis meses para completar, incluiria un estimado y evaluacion de los delitos en la ciudad asi como los procedimientos para operar mas eficientemente el Departamento de Policia.

Las recomendaciones pudieran tambien comprender las ultimas tecnicas en prevencion de delitos, que Richards califica como el mas importante desarrollo que actualmente esta ocurriendo en los servicios policiacos.

"Estamos viendo un enfasis creciente en la prevencion del crimen con programas designados para lidiar con el crimen potencial en lugar de reaccionar contra el," dijo.

"Los gobiernos locales han hecho aqui en California el esfuerzo para proveer los servicios policiacos de la mas alta calidad. Los oficiales reciben mas y mejor entrenamiento aqui que en cualquiera otra parte," el nuevo jefe del departamento afirmo.

El Sr. Richards dijo que el se ha reunido con los varios grupos de empleados del departamento con la intencion de crear lo que el espera un ambiente de mutua confianza.

"El viejo estilo de decir de los G. I. "hagalo porque yo lo mando" paso a la historia. Los policias de hoy desean conocer porque las decisiones son tomadas," dijo el Sr. Richards.

En sus reuniones con el publico de Pomona, en los clubes y en una recepcion en su honor. Richards dijo que se siente estimulado por el alto interes de los ciudadanos y participacion de la comunidad.

"La participacion de los ciudadanos en alto nivel hace mas facil la labor de la policia. Le da la oportunidad al oficial de estar mas relacionado," dijo.

"Como nunca antes, los efectos de las guerras son fuego, hambre, y epidemias. Ellas contribuyen a su inicio; ellas son sus armas, ellas son las consecuencias." — Dwight D. Eisenhower, 34th. presidente de los EE. UU. de A.

Prep gridders begin practice

High school football practice begins today, meaning that the start of the prep grid season can't be far behind.

In fact, only 19 days remain before the bulk of local high schools kick off their 1976 football seasons on Friday, Sept. 17. Most teams will engage in an interscholastic scrimmage one week before that date.

There's no doubt that fans can look forward to some highly competitive prep football, at least if this season is anything like the last one.

The San Antonio, Hacieda and Citrus Belt leagues all ended in dead heats in 1975. The SAL championship was split two ways — between Chino and Damien — while the other two loops finished in three-way ties: Bonita, Walnut and Royal Oak shared the HL crown while Chaffey, Fontana and Redlands divided the CBL championship.

Of course even those deadlocks were upstaged by the 1974 race in the SAL: Pomona won the title outright by half a game — but four (count 'em) squads claimed part of second place. The resulting confusion prompted SAL officials to adopt a rigid set of criteria for selecting playoff teams in the event of ties.

At any rate, it's no small task for a team to win a championship all by its lonesome with that kind of competition.

Stars return

Winning a grid title certainly requires a roster stocked with some established stars, and local coaches will be favored by the return of several standouts this year.

Topping the list veterans will be four 1975 All-Valley selections, all seniors this year. Pat Krzysiak, Chino's fine tight end, is the SAL's only returning All-Valley pick, while the HL will have three: Bonita center Mark Malone, San Dimas defensive tackle Sonny LaFargue and Walnut running back Kevin Morgan. Malone is the valley's sole returning All-CIF selection. He was placed on the 2-A second team for 1975.

Also returning for their senior seasons are several All-Valley honorable mentions, including Chaffey's Randy Johnston and John Gable, San Dimas' Doug Gates, Walnut's Creg Fenwich, Webb's Dick Groter and La Verne Lutheran's Dale Pomo. Montclair running back Kent Gurney, another All-Valley honorable mention, will be back as a junior.

All the abovementioned players were all-league selections in their respective loops. Other returning all-leaguers include Chino's Bob Andazola and Steve Erlanson, Damien's Leo Burke and Hugo Cargnelutti, Pomona's Anthony Miley, Montclair's Doug Combs and Upland's Kelly Riedel in the SAL; Walnut's Alex Solorzano, Brian Jackson and Doug Vind, San Dimas' Fred Carter and Steve Coulter, and Bonita's Mark Walters in the HL and Chaffey's Ed Henry in the CBL.

Collegiate success

Some former local players appear to be doing quite well on the collegiate level.

Dave Shamblin, a Bonita High graduate in 1971, is listed as the starting split end for Nebraska in this year's Cornhusker press guide.

Wayne Moses, a San Dimas High product, will probably start in the defensive secondary for the Washington Huskies this year. He redshirted in 1975 after lettering as a tailback the year before.

And Arthur Lane, the 1974 graduate of Ganesha High who was named the Outstanding Offensive Player of the 1975 San Gabriel Valley All-Star Football Game, has landed a spot as a tailback on Arizona State's football roster.

The Bengals' preseason outlook brochure quotes the California Cage Comprehensive Scout Report's description of Mark: "A great leaper, very aggressive and a great driver. This guy could drive on a brick wall and make baskets . . . Great body balance and tremendous moves with a soft touch."

YOUTHFUL WINNER

Antonoplis, 17 tops Richards

From Associated Press

SOUTH ORANGE, N.J. — Lea Antonoplis of Glendora, battling from behind, outlasted controversial transsexual Renee Richards, 6-7, 6-3, 6-0, in a semifinal match of the Tennis Week Open Saturday.

Miss Antonoplis, 17, will face Marise Kruger, South Africa, in today's final. Miss Kruger beat France's Florence Guedy, 6-3, 6-2, Saturday.

When it was over, when Dr. Richards had lost to a vegetarian less than half her age, she still felt like a winner.

"The applause sure felt good," said the 42-year-old eye surgeon from Newport Beach after losing to Miss Antonoplis in a grueling two-hour and eight-minute match under hot and muggy conditions.

When it was over the sellout crowd of 3,600 stood to applaud Dr. Richards.

The week had not been an easy one. When Dr. Richards, who last year underwent a sex change operation, entered the Tennis Week Open 25 women players dropped out in protest.

The players questioned whether Dr. Richards should be allowed to play women's tennis.

Then there were the countless interviews and the constant worry about acceptance, both on and off the tennis court.

Numerous times during the week, Dr. Richards said she realized spectators and the media were watching her every move, waiting for a display of anger. On Saturday, she did let go. After losing a key point, she threw her racquet down in disgust.

"I felt I didn't have to be the model of perfection I was last Saturday," she said, referring to her first match here.

She said her friends on the West Coast had warned her about Eastern tennis crowds. "Wait until you get back East," the friends told her. "They told me, 'it's going to be a zoo back there.' I was surprised I was treated so well here. I felt good here," she said.

On Saturday, the medical question finally took a back seat to sports. It all came down to tennis—the stadium court at the decorous Orange Lawn Tennis Club.

"I was tired. I just got beat. I knew in the third set I didn't have a shot," Dr. Richards said, still perspiring profusely.

Admittedly out of shape, Dr. Richards said she would give serious thought to "doing some of the things Lea's doing, like running five to six miles a day" to get in better condition.

"I'm going to continue to play tennis," she said. "I am going to have to get into better condition than I am.

"You can't smoke a cigarette and stay up late if you want to play big league tennis," Dr. Richards said, as she puffed on her filtered cigarette.

She said she wasn't certain she would take the time and make the effort to get in tip-top shape.

"If I wanted to take a leave of absence from my practice for three or six months I could do it," she said. "Whether I have the physical or mental stamina for that, ask me next week when I'm not so tired."

In the eighth game of the first set she trailed love-40, but won five straight points to win the game to make it 4-4.

In her first public showing of outward emotion, Dr. Richards, 42, who last year underwent a sex change operation, threw her racquet down in disgust after she netted the final point.

Miss Antonoplis, ranked number 3 nationally in the 18-and-under category, broke Dr. Richards' service to take a 6-5 lead. But Dr. Richards broke back in the next game to send the first set to a 12-point tiebreaker, which Dr. Richards won 7-3.

There was only one service break in the second set, by Miss Antonoplis in the sixth game, but the high school senior held on seven times when Dr. Richards was receiving for breaks.

Harris injured in Ram win

By DON BRADLEY
PB Staff Writer

LOS ANGELES — James Harris first clinched and then lost the Rams' starting quarterback spot Saturday night.

Harris, who already was rated as being ahead of the Ron Jaworski in competition to date, was far more impressive Saturday night before disaster struck.

The 31-17 Rams' win over the Buffalo Bills was far overshadowed when the 6-4, 210-pound signal caller suffered a fracture at the base of the thumb on his (right) throwing hand.

Preliminary prognosis by Dr. Robert Kerlan was that Harris will miss a minimum of three games. That would include the first two games of the regular season against the Atlanta Falcons and Minnesota Vikings.

Both are road games. So the pressure will really be on the "Polish Rifle" (Jaworski).

Harris' injury actually occurred on the fourth play of the second hald and on Harris' first pass of the game (Jaworski) played the first half. Harris stayed in the game until the fourth quarter.

With a first and ten on his own 40, Harris hit wide receiver Ron Jessie at the Bills' 42. Jessie streaked the rest of the way for a 60-yard touchdown play.

But Jessie never would have made it without a crushing block by little (5-10, 175 pounds) Harold Jackson on Buffalo's 6-2, 190-pound cornerback, Mario Clark, at the Bills' 20.

The big signal caller stayed in the game and quarterbacked the Rams the rest of the quarter. But the pain became intense and he was forced to leave the game in the fourth quarter.

Jaworski finished up.

Before leaving the game Harris completed three of five passes for 93 yards and a touchdown. He marched the Rams 71 yards in four plays to open the second half.

The second time the Angelenos got the ball, Harris took them 43 yards in nine plays to set up a 24-yard field goal by Tom Dempsey.

Possession of the ball for that drive was set up when San Bernardino's Rick Kay hit Darnell Powell causing a fumble. Mike Fanning recovered on the 50 for the Rams.

That made it 24-10 Rams.

Rod Perry's second interception of the night and fifth of the exhibition season, set up the final TD. Perry gathered the ball in at the Buffalo 32 and ran it to the Bills' two.

Jaworski was 5-for-10 for 75 yards and a touchdown in the first half. For the game, he hit on 8-of 15 for 111 yards and an 18-yard pass to Jackson.

"I'm happy with my performance in the exhibition season," said the new starting quarterback. "I think I proved I can play."

With Harris out, Pat Haden probably will play a half against San Francisco in Saturday night's final exhibition game.

RAM RUMBLINGS — Owners Carroll Rosenbloom and Ralph Wilson were highly visible chatting on the Buffalo bench for 40 minutes before the game. Neither would admit any progress in a deal for O.J. Simpson. But Rosenbloom's son, Steve, who was also present, said later he felt something will break soon.

Tokyo wins LL title, 10-3

WILLIAMSPORT, Pa. (AP) - Tokyo took advantage of six wild pitches by losing pitcher Rich Alvarez and five Campbell, Calif., errors Saturday for a 10-3 victory to win the 30th annual Little League world championship.

The Japanese took their first title since winning consecutive championships in 1967-68 in this baseball tournament for 11-12 year old boys. The victory also returned the crown to the Far East, after a one-year lapse in which foreign teams were banned because Taiwan had won five of the previous six titles.

Kiyoshi Tsumura, who pitched a perfect game in his last outing, was touched for three hits, including a two-run double by Ed Rodriguez.

Tsumara also displayed uncharacteristic wildness by walking four Campbell batters and throwing a pair of wild pitches. He struck out nine.

Campbell's woes began in the second inning with four wild pitches, a passed ball and three errors. Tokyo also had two hits in the inning for five runs and a 5-0 lead.

Zarate wins by knockout

Zarate weighed 118 pounds and Ferreri 117.

Most ringsiders called the first round even, chiefly because neither boxer did anything. From there on, Zarate won each round.

Ramirez snaps Connors' string

BROOKLINE, Mass. (AP) — Raul Ramirez of Mexico snapped Jimmy Connors' 22-match winning streak by upsetting the top-seeded American ace 6-3, 3-6, 6-3 Saturday night in the quarter-finals of the 49th U.S. Pro Tennis Championships at Longwood.

Ramirez, who whipped Connors in leading Mexico to a Davis Cup victory over the United States, avenged four straight defeats in decisive fashion, wrapping up the two-hour match with an ace.

In another mild upset, seventh-seeded Eddie Dibbs eliminated third-seeded Guillermo Vilas of Argentina 2-6, 6-2, 7-5. Vilas, the 1975 U.S. Pro runnerup, won the Canadian Open last Monday night.

Sweden's Bjorn Borg, the Wimbledon champion bidding for a third consecutive U.S. Pro title as the No. 2 seed and eighth-seeded Harold Solomon of Ft. Lauderdale, Fla., advanced to Sunday's semifinals in afternoon matches.

Dodgers stopped by Matlack, 2-1

NEW YORK (AP) — Felix Millan's infield hit scored Leo Foster with one out in the ninth inning Saturday, giving the New York Mets a 2-1 victory over the Los Angeles Dodgers.

The winning run, which allowed Jon Matlack to outduel Rick Rhoden, was unearned following errors by Bill Russell and Steve Garvey.

Roy Staiger started the ninth by reaching on Russell's error on his grounder to short. After Mike Phillips' sacrifice, Joe Torre pinch hit for Matlack and was safe when first baseman Garvey booted his grounder. Foster, running for Staiger, went to third.

Bruce Boisclair, who earlier tied the score with his first major league homer, was intentionally walked.

Then Millan beat out a slow roller down the third base line. Ron Cey tried to throw out Foster at the plate but his toss was low and late.

The victory raised Matlack's record to 14-7, while Rhoden suffered his third loss against 11 victories.

Matlack permitted only three hits, retired the last 12 men and struck out four while walking only two.

The Dodgers nicked Matlack for a run in the second on doubles by Cey and Dusty Baker. The Mets tied the score in the fifth when Boisclair hit his homer over the right-center field fence.

Prior to that, Rhoden twice pitched out of bases-loaded jams. Major league home run co-leader Dave Kingman, back in the starting lineup for the first time since tearing ligaments in his left thumb July 19, contributed an infield single to help load the bases for the Mets with none out in the third before Rhoden pitched out of trouble.

Matlack was in total commmand after the Dodgers scored their only run in the second inning.

'Race Week' begins at OMS

By DON BRADLEY
PB Staff Writer

Today is the first day of "Race Week" at Ontario Motor Speedway.

Practice for the seventh annual California 500 is scheduled to begin at 10 a.m. A lunch break is slated from 1 p.m. to 2 p.m. and practice resumes from 2 p.m. to 6 p.m.

Because of the new schedule, it'll be a concentrated practice this year. The drivers have only today, Monday, Tuesday and two hours Wednesday morning to get their cars and themselves ready for qualifications.

Qualifying will be held Wednesday and Thursday afternoons starting at 1 p.m. Gone are the Twin 100's which also were used to determine final placement of cars in the 33-car field.

The car with the fastest time in the two laps of qualifying Wednesday will sit on the pole for next Sunday's Cal 500. Cars qualifying Wednesday will be placed at the front of the field according to their speed. Thursday's qualifiers, no matter how fast, are placed behind those who qualified Wednesday.

Hence the urgency of qualifying the first day. When 33 cars have qualified, "bumping" begins. The 33rd fastest qualifier is "on the bubble" and anyone qualifying faster, knocks that car out of the lineup.

Admission for regular practice days today, Monday and Tuesday is just $1. For qualifying days, Wednesday and Thursday, it is $2, a big bargain either way.

The field of entries this year is the largest of any year since the race was ill advisedly moved from Labor Day weekend back to March.

The big names in the Indy crowd, A.J. Foyt, Johnny Rutherford, the Unser brothers, Gordon Johncock, Roger McCluskey, Billy Vukovich et al will be here with one exception.

Since Miss Guthrie has already competed in a 500-mile Indy type car race, she is not a rookie. But there are four rookies here at OMS.

The practice schedule is the same for today, Monday and Tuesday. Practice from 10 a.m. to 1 p.m. and from 2 p.m. to 6 p.m.

Wednesday and Thursday has practice from 10 a.m. to noon and qualifications from 1 p.m. to 6 p.m.

Friday will be a free admission day to OMS. There won't be any cars running, but it is the day of pit practice. You can watch the pit crews practice changing tires and gasing the cars.

Races have been won and lost in the pits and you marvel at the precision and speed of the top crews. They'll be sharpening their skills from 11 a.m. to 1 p.m. and 4 p.m. to 6 p.m.

Sunday the pre-race pagentry starts at 8:30 a.m. The seventh running of the California 500 is slated to begin at 11 a.m.

Rivers, Yanks clobber Halos

ANAHEIM (AP) — Mickey Rivers tripled and singled twice, driving in four runs and leading a 13-hit attack that carried the New York Yankees to an 8-1 romp over Nolan Ryan and the California Angels Saturday night.

Dock Ellis, 13-6, allowed five singles and one unearned run as the Yankees extended their winning streak to five games and remained 11½ games ahead of second-place Baltimore in the American League East. Ryan, 10-7, lasted only two innings, allowing five runs.

Both managers, Billy Martin of the Yankees and Norm Sherry of the Angels, drew warnings from umpire Larry Barnett when a bean ball war threatened to erupt. New York's Thurman Munson was hit in the helmet by a Ryan fast ball in the second inning after the Yankees scored four times and Ellis threw high and inside to California catcher Terry Humphrey in the bottom half, triggering the warning.

PC coed to try Catalina swim

By PAUL CLICK
PB Correspondent

The 21-year-old, 5-foot-2, 122-pound history major hopes to beat the record of 8 hours, 47 minutes held currently by Lynne Cox.

Her only difficulty should be the currents in swimming the 23 mile distance to Catalina Island. Miss Dean in 1975 placed third in the Laguna 15-miler with a time of 5:12.

When she entered Pomona College, she swam with the men's team but was later declared ineligible to complete with the men. However, she still trains with them and had hopes of conquering the English channel.

But she has given this up in favor of beginning a law practice with the Army immediately after law school. She is in ROTC training at Pomona College.

Miss Dean doesn't give up easily.

In 1974, unable to walk from surgery for a torn knee cartilage, she couldn't pass up a one-mile ocean race one month after the operation.

Still on crutches she hobbled up to the water and swam the course. She swam neck and neck with the leader even though she couldn't stand in the shallow parts. She finished second.

Floyd shares lead, rain delays tourney

AKRON, Ohio (AP) — Masters champion Ray Floyd birdied the 12th hole and moved into a share of the lead Saturday just before play was halted in the storm-delayed and uncompleted third round of the $200,000 American Golf Classic.

Floyd, Australian David Graham and Jerry McGee, all tied for the lead and all among the 26 players stranded on the course, marked their positions and will return at 8:30 a.m. today to complete their rounds.

A series of violent thunderstorms forced a 2 hour, 55 minute delay early in the afternoon and rolling thunder that signaled the approach of still another one finally called a halt to the day's play at 3:01 p.m. PDT.

Officials held up play at that point and 29 minutes later finally called it off for the day.

All rounds that were completed will stand. After the completion of the third round, today's regularly scheduled final round will be played.

McGee, Graham and Floyd all were nine under for the tournament. Graham had completed 11 holes of the third round and was one under for the day. Floyd threw approaches within six feet on two of the last three holes he played, birdied both and was two under par through 12 holes. McGee was five under after 14 holes.

Just one shot out—and all stranded on the course—were Ed Sneed, Jim Simons and Bob E. Smith. They were at eight under, Smith through 15 holes, Sneed and Simons through 12.

AKRON, Ohio (AP) — Third-round scores Saturday in the $200,000 American Golf Classic on the 7,105-yard, par-72 North course at the Firestone Country Club (dnf—did not finish due to thunderstorms, will complete round Sunday):

Nebraska is preseason pick

The Nebraska Cornhuskers are the preseason choice to dethrone defending champion Oklahoma and prevent the Sooners from winning an unprecedented third consecutive national college football title.

In a nationwide Associated Press poll of 59 sports writers and broadcasters, nine different teams earned at least one vote for the No. 1 spot. Nebraska, which finished ninth a year ago, received 25 first-place ballots and 961 of a possible 1,180 points.

Oklahoma, last year's No. 1 pick in both the preseason and final polls despite a drop to seventh during the campaign, was No. 5 this time behind Michigan, Arizona State and Ohio State. Rounding out the Top Ten are Alabama, Texas, Southern California, Pittsburgh and Penn State.

The Second Ten consists of Notre Dame, Maryland, Arkansas, Texas A&M, California, Georgia, UCLA, Florida, Kansas and Miami of Ohio.

Michigan, which lost to Oklahoma in the Orange Bowl, received 10 first-place votes and 918 points while Arizona State, runnerup to Oklahoma in 1975, had seven first-place ballots and 780 points. Then came Ohio State with three votes for No. 1 and 749 points and Oklahoma with six first-place votes but only 683 total points.

Alabama and Texas also received three first-place votes while Southern Cal had two and one went to Pitt.

"I guess I have mixed feelings about the No. 1 ranking," said Nebraska Coach Tom Osborne. "It's nice that people feel we're a good team and, hopefully, where there's that kind of confidence there might be some reason for optimism.

"But on the other hand, a No. 1 ranking leads to great expectations. I hope we're as good as people think we are."

"I'd have been surprised if we had been No. 1," he said. "I look at it like it is. If we had the players returning that we lost, then we should be No. 1. I'd have picked Nebraska right there at the top, too."

Finishing behind Oklahoma in the final 1975 rankings were Arizona State, Alabama, Ohio State, UCLA, Texas, Arkansas, Michigan, Nebraska and Penn State.

The Second Ten consisted of Texas A&M, Miami of Ohio, Maryland, California, Pitt, Colorado, Southern Cal, Arizona, Georgia and West Virginia. West Virginia was the only member of last year's Top Twenty which didn't receive a single mention in the 1976 voting.

The regular-season polls will begin following the games of Sept. 11.

Eusebio leads Metros

SEATTLE (AP) — Bruce A. Thomas, president of the Toronto Metros, was wearing one of those ear-to-ear grins. He couldn't say enough good things about his star player, Eusebio.

"At the beginning of the season, Eusebio came to us and asked to play. Our first thought was, well, maybe 10 years ago, but not now because of his age," Thomas recalled.

"But in every game (this season) he gave us a flash of brilliance to show us just what good soccer is really like. He is the team leader in every sense."

Eusebio, the former Portuguese World Cup star who at 34 is the old man on the Metro's club, scored Toronto's first goal to spark his team to a 3-0 victory over the Minnesota Kicks Saturday in Soccer Bowl '76, the North American Soccer League championship.

Toronto's leading scorer with 16 goals and four assists during the regular season, he was a doubtful starter after suffering a severe injury to his right foot in a 2-0 playoff victory over defending NASL champion Tampa Bay last Tuesday.

"He was really hurt, but when he was out there he didn't look it," said Toronto Coach Marjan Bilic.

The victory, before a record championship game crowd of 25,765 in the Kingdome and a national television audience, spoiled a Cinderella season for the Kicks, who were playing their first season in Minnesota after the franchise was moved from Denver.

Sports briefs

TACHIKAWA, Japan (AP) — Third baseman Gordon Pulsifer belted a two-run homer in the fifth inning and righthander Ken Clark tossed a three-hitter to spark California's Riverside All-Star Pony League baseball team to a 5-1 victory over Tokyo's Taito Dodgers, Japan national Pony League champions.

It was the third win for the American boys against two losses in their six-game Japan tour.

FORT LAUDERDALE, Fla. (AP) — Chris Evert said Saturday she may not be able to defend her U.S. Open tennis title next week at Forest Hills because of continuing problems with her right middle finger.

Miss Evert withdrew from this week's Federation Cup matches in Philadelphia because of inflamed tendons in the finger. The finger is in a splint and she hasn't played tennis in two weeks.

She said she would test the finger in practice today and would have a doctor examine it Monday.

DENVER (AP) — Penny Pulz fashioned a five-under-par 67 Saturday to take the lead after the second round of the $50,000 LPGA golf tournament.

PHILADELPHIA (AP) — Billie Jean King scored a 6-2, 6-3 victory Saturday night over the Netherlands' Betty Stove to put the United States into the final round of the $130,000 Federation Cup tennis tournament.

The U.S. team meets Australia, which eliminated Great Britain on singles triumphs by Evonne Goolagong and Diane Fromholtz earlier Saturday.

Mrs. King's semifinal round triumph, achieved on the fourth match point after 57 minutes of play, followed a singles victory by Rosemary Casals over the Netherlands' No. 2 player, Ellie Vessies, 6-1, 6-2.

The United States completed the 3-0 victory over The Netherlands with 6-1, 6-4 doubles victory by Ms. Casals and Ms. King over Miss Stove and Tine Zwann.

Ms. Casals won the match for the Americans when she hit a service ace and followed with a sharp volley down the middle.

Tee to Cup

He just drops in at 20 courses

By PHIL ROCHE
PB Golf Writer

Idaho and Utah golf courses these days are a lush green, lonely during the week, and blanketed by the bluest sky outside of New Mexico.

Some travelers take tours, scurry to points of interest, visit old pals, drop in on relatives. Not this one. When I visited Idaho and Utah last week, I stopped at every town possible along the way and found the golf course.

I am never critical of the course, always pleased that I can wheel off a busy highway and pretend that I have time to play 18 holes.

I like to stand around the first tee awhile, then drop into the pro shop, pick up a golf card, chat briefly with the regulars, and sip a coke.

Well, I loitered around 20 golf courses last week. Even played the 9-holer at Beaver, Utah. It's called Breezy Canyon, a 3,000-yard gem that's tricky and wonderful. Cost: $1.50 for adults, and $1 for kids.

The pro and his wife lease the course from the city, and they have a house on the course.

I drove north as far as Idaho Falls, which has one of the best 18-hole layouts in Idaho. Not hard, but attractive, and the clubhouse is a beaut. My son played the course, but one road led to another, and I didn't have time. That's the advantage of being 12-years-old. Time doesn't matter.

But it was pleasant, not playing much, but looking far down the road in search of the next course, where at least I could pick up a scorecard and watch the tee-off fun.

"IF YOU WANT your child to be a champion golfer, start him before he's 8-years-old," says 32-year-old Pat Sheffield, the new, vivacious woman assistant pro at Diamond Bar Golf Course.

"Anywhere from 5-8 is a good age," says Pat, whose father started her at age 5. "He was the pro and owner of Sheffield Golf Course in Palm Springs, and he got me going early," she said.

Miss Sheffield will be assisting Howard Smith at Diamond Bar, where she is available for individual and group lessons for all ages, men, women and youngsters.

"I don't have any special parts of the swing that I emphasize," she says. "I'm more concerned with the entire swing, and I love teaching."

FOR AWARDS and prizes, it's hard to beat the coming La Verne-San Dimas Pop Warner golf tournament on Saturday, Sept. 25 at San Dimas Canyon.

The $20 entry fee includes 18 holes of golf, a cart, a buffet, and a shot at the many prizes in Callaway, handicap, gross, women's divisions. Long drives, closest to the hole and many other winning categories are included.

THE 19th ANNUAL Kiwanis Interclub golf tournament is scheduled for Wednesday, Sept. 29 at Western Hills CC in Chino. Sponsored by the Kiwanis Club of Greater Pomona, the event is a shotgun start at 12:30 p.m.

Players will be shooting for a new Chevrolet on No. 14 so if anyone knocks one in for an ace, he'll go home with a new car.

Cost for the tournament and dinner is $20. Additional information can be obtained from Howard Chenay (626-2528) or Gordon Taylor (626-2690).

ALAN HAAG, 12-year-old Casa Colina Hospital patient, has been chosen as the poster boy for the upcoming Jim Herzog Memorial Golf Tournament, to be held on Sunday, Sept 12 at the new El Prado Golf Course and Country Club Chino. The event will benefit handicapped children at Casa Colina.

Alan, who was partially paralyzed in an accident, is learning to walk again. He is the son of Mr. and Mrs. Frank Forthun, Highland.

Registration is open through Monday. Entry fee, $25 per golfer, includes cart, green fees, prizes, and a buffet banquet. Tickets for the buffet only are available at $5 each.

—Four professional athletes: John Brodie, San Francisco 49ers, Joel Horlen, Chicago White Sox, Kevin Joyce, Kentucky Colonels, Jerry West, Los Angeles Lakers;

—Dan Weiskopf, younger brother of Tom Weiskopf;

—Sid Salomon, owner of the St. Louis Blues;

Ridley defends amateur title

LOS ANGELES (AP) — Fred Ridley of Winterhaven, Fla., opens defense of his United States Amateur golf tournament this week with three other former champs trying to win it for the second time.

They'll be facing the challenge of Dick Siderowf of Westport, Conn., who already this year has won the British Amateur for a second time and wants to duplicate the feat of Bobby Jones and three others who have won those two major titles in a single year.

Siderowf faces Mike Barge of Fargo, N. D., in an 18-hole match as the U. S. championships open Tuesday at Bel-Air Country Club which measures 6,445 and plays to a 35-35—70 par and is a demanding test. Ridley drew a bye for the opening round with his first action on Wednesday.

Other U. S. Amateur champions back are Vinnie Giles, 33, of Richmond, W. Va., who won in 1972, Gary Cowan, Kitchener, Ont., Canada, 1967 and '71, and Bill Campbell, 53, of Huntington, W. Va., 1964.

This marks Campbell's 33rd U. S. Amateur.

Siderowf, 39, won the British Amateur in June at St. Andrews and will be playing in his 17th U. S. Amateur.

Former San Francisco 49er quarterback John Brodie, who once tried the pro golf tour, has qualified for this amateur and there is 21-year-old Julius Boros, Jr., of Ft. Lauderdale, Fla., whose father won the U. S. Open and still makes solid showings in professional events.

The U. S. Amateur has returned to its match play foremat with 200 starters, the survivors among 2,666 original entrants who battled through sectional qualifying.

But beer was added to the 6-year-old horse's diet this year, and he's been racing with gusto ever since—winning six straight.

"Beer is one of his favorite foods," trainer Ron Sarazin said before Firey Noon won the feature race Thursday, adding $5,100 to his earnings and upping the total to $27,100 for the year.

The horse gets a bottle of beer before each meal, holding his head up so it can be poured into his mouth. Not being fussy, he'll also take it from a can.

"It started one afternoon when some of the guys were sitting around outside his stall drinking beer," Sarazin said. "He kept sticking his head out of the door and hollering, so somebody decided he was thirsty.

"They gave him a sip of beer and he wanted more. Now he raises hell if he doesn't get his share of the brew."

Firey Noon soon registered his first 1976 victory, in a May claiming race. Sarazin said the horse's off-course attitude also showed a noticeable change. He no longer lingers in the back of stall, but sticks his head out to watch the action around the barn.

"He's proud now," said Sarazin. "He was tired of being a loser. Winning restored his confidence."

Firey Noon's first five victories were in claiming races, but no claims were filed. "The fact that nobody claimed him is proof that he surprised everbody," Sarazin said.

Thursday's victory, under Gene St. Leon in the six-furlong $8,500 feature, came in Firey Noon's first allowance race of the year.

"My main problem is to keep the stable help from drinking his beer," Sarazin said. "I buy a case a week for him and and he gets a bottle before each meal. It seems to give him an appetite."

Sarazin said the beer-drinking is causing one other slight problem. Firey Noon is gaining a little weight.

"We might have to switch him to light beer to cut down on his calories," said Sarazin.

SD sets youth programs

A boys Flag Football program and a girls "Speed-A-Way" soccer program will be conducted by the San Dimas Recreation Department beginning in September.

Boys & Girls, grades 3-8, are eligible to participate. Leagues in both programs will be based upon age and the grade of school the player is in.

Those interested in either program may sign up Monday, Sept. 20 to Friday, Sept. 24, 3 p.m. to 4:30 p.m. at the following schools: Gladstone, Shull, Allen Avenue, Ekstrand, and Lone Hill.

Registrations may also be made at San Dimas City Hall until rosters are filled. A $3 fee covers a T-shirt uniform and individual trophies for championship teams.

If further information is required, please call (714) 599-6713, Ext. 40.

Ali agrees to support illegitimate child

ST. JOSEPH, Mich. (AP) — Heavyweight boxing champion Muhammad Ali has acknowledged he fathered an illegitimate child and agreed Saturday to pay for its support and the mother's medical expenses.

The baby girl—named Hana Yasmeen Ali—was born at 1:01 p.m., Aug. 6, at Berrien General Hospital, according to a certificate of parenthood filed Wednesday with the Berrien County Register of Deeds.

Under the agreement, the mother, Veronica Porche, will maintain custody of the baby. But with the mother's approval, Ali will have visiting rights and be able to have the girl accompany him.

The agreement papers say Ali "admits he is the father of the child and that the parties to this agreement are not now, and have never been, married to each other."

One stipulation is that the mother "agrees not to withhold her approval and consent without good cause."

In consideration for the custody payments, the document says, "the mother agrees not to institute any action or proceedings in any court to establish judicially the paternity of the child or to obtain an order for payments from Ali for the care, support or education of the child."

The child also "shall have the same rights to inherit from the father that Hana Yasmeen Ali would have had as a legitimate child of the father," according to the agreement.

Ali is separated from his wife, Khalilah, who bore him four children.

The parenthood certificate with Miss Porche says the millionaire boxing champion "shall insure that (Hana) participates in his estate on an equal basis with his own children, if any."

The mother and baby accompanied Ali to Show Low, Ariz., in mid-August when the champion moved his training camp there from his 80-acre estate in nearby Berrien Springs.

Ali was to return to Show Low and train there for his Sept. 28 fight against Ken Norton in New York until Sept. 3 when he was scheduled to move his training camp to Kiamesha Lake, N.Y.

Judith Hecht, the register of deeds, said that without the agreement the child legally could not share equally with Ali's other children. The papers should avert a court case if someone should claim Hana is not Ali's child.

When Forego won the 1976 Metropolitan mile at Belmont Park he increased his career earnings to $1,245,176. He moved up to eighth place ahead of Carry Back and Damascus.

Fire kills race horses

TOLEDO, Ohio (AP) — At least 31 standardbred horses were destroyed Saturday in an early morning fire at Raceway Park, a spokesman for the track said.

Rick Zielinski said the fire broke out at 5:30 a.m. and destroyed four of the 19 stables at the track. Three horses killed were to have raced Saturday night, he said.

MAKING A SELECTION

Mrs. John R. McNay and Mrs. Ernest Keechler experiment with recipes in the Wechsler home as they plan the menu for OPARC ball to be held Thursday evening.

DECIDING ON THEME

Mrs. Joseph Johnston, Mrs. William Hopkins and Mrs. Kenneth Armbruster discuss the decor to be used in decorating Red Hill Country Club for annual Le Bal des Enfants Cheris charted Thursday evening by OPARC auxiliary at the country club.

Le Bal des Enfants Cheris

OPARC sets annual dance

A setting reminiscent of ancient Rome will form the background for the 1976 Le Bal des Enfants Cheris (Ball of the Cherished Children) at Red Hill Country Club on Thursday.

The September date coincides with the celebration of the California 500 race on Sept. 5 at Ontario Motor Speedway.

Mrs. Gerald Wechsler, ball chairman, has announced that Dick Simon, race driver, will be honorary ball chairman. Guests of honor this year will be Miss Ontario Motor Speedway, Lana Cole, and former honorary chairmen Louis Unser and Joe Leonard. Also in attendance will be Johnny Parsons Jr., Al Loquasto and Wally Dallenbach, race drivers.

The Roman theme will be complemented by hostesses in Roman togas, along with centerpieces composed of vases decorated with cherubs and planted with African violets.

Hostesses will include Robyn Floyd, Beverly Honaker, Kimberly Pilkington, Suzie Yeo, Lisa Catalano, Vickie, Toni and Cindy Saulls.

In addition to the gourmet dinner planned, the festive theme will be carried out with a casino to be staffed by members of the Upland and Pomona Breakfast Lions Club.

Music for dancing and listening will be provided by Lou Catalano and his band, featuring Anita Catalano, vocalist. Bill Hill of Upland will be master or ceremonies.

Guardian Angel tables have been reserved this year by Mr. and Mrs. William Smith of Smith Bros. Glass Co., Ontario; Mr. and Mrs. Robert B. Lewis, Foothill Beverage Co., Pomona; and the Ontario Motor Speedway. Paula Baker, daughter of the Michael Bakers of Chino, is this year's poster child.

All proceeds from the ball are donated to the Ontario Pomona Association for Retarded Citizens, which is a member agency of the West End United Way. OPARC provides direct services in the west end of San Bernardino County and in the east end of Los Angeles County. The services are designed to complement those of the public schools, to demonstrate new programs for the disabled and to encourage the inclusion of the disabled into existing public service.

Mrs. Robert Floyd, auxiliary president, has appointed the following to assist Mrs. Wechsler: Mmes. Pratt Johnson, William Hopkins, Clifton Allen, John Gage, Dan Paul, Dan Schreiner, Larry Greer, David Cumbie, Edward Duffy, Howard Merrill, Noel Stone, Kenneth Armbruster, Charles Rupert, Bernard Wechsler, David Walker, Tim Dolan, Ralph Proctor, Richard Cadarette, William Kuhnhart, Harry Radcliffe, Earl VanderSchaaf, Bill Hill, David Swaithes, Lou Catalano, Angelo Bonanno, Jay Slagle, Paul Pace, Nicola Ross, Allen Habekost, Nicola Ross, L. J. Henderson, La Verne Hatheway, Jack McNay and George Yetter.

Reservations for the event may be made by calling 624-7389 or the OPARC Center, 626-5108.

By VIVIAN BROWN
AP Newsfeatures

Sometimes it is the little chores that drive us to distraction, especially when we've let the jobs lag during the vacation season.

Copper, carving boards, tile, marble, plastic, wood floors need care. Short cuts may be taken by giving these things more frequent care which may seem a bore, but in the long run it will pay off.

If you let a copper hood in the kitchen get very tarnished and greasy, it becomes a super cleaning job. But if it is washed regularly and shined with a soft cloth, it is a small chore. A neglected hood must be scrubbed with soap and water and dried before it is polished. Non-tarnish copper cleaners will keep a hood clean for a long time, and are great time savers if there is a large expanse of metal.

Wood cutting boards may warp, to the dismay of many housewives. That may be controlled by turning the board every once in a while. In fact, the underside should be scrubbed, dried and lightly oiled. Cooking oil has been tried successfully. It just happened to be at hand and it worked.

If the board warps a bit, scrub the underside well, let it dry — if you can put it outdoors all the better — and then apply a little oil. If it is mildewed in spots, it may require a light sanding before you apply oil. Then it should be reversed for use. Sometimes a board will get beyond the turnover stage with many mildewed stains, and you will want to use only one side of it. Even then the underside must always be kept clean.

No matter how careful you are, liquid and specks of food may be found under the board, so it should be tilted each day and the area underneath wiped with a dry cloth. Wiping it with a wet cloth will merely increase the chances of mildew, unless it is dried thoroughly each time.

As for ceramic tile, on countertops you may need to use an abrasive cleaning powder. Some people clean the grout lines with a toothbrush, making a paste of the cleaner. A mixture of chlorinated bleach and a little water can be used on the grout and blotted quickly, one woman advises. There are special tile cleaners in paint stores and these work well, although some women use little soap pads as they do on bathroom tiles.

Advice on the care of clear plastic may be obtained from craft shops where the material is carried. It has been said that acrylics respond well to automobile polish which is rubbed on with a soft cloth. Scratches can be smoothed with a little buffing tool and pumice which are available in the craft shops.

Many methods are used for cleaning marble. Some work. Some don't. Knowing what made the stains makes the job easier. Light stains and rings may be removed with a mixture of hydrogen peroxide and ammonia which should then be removed with clear water, advise experts at the Weiman Co., makers of marble polish.

They claim fine scratches on marble may be sanded lightly and the entire surface repolished whenever necessary with putty powder applied on a damp cloth by hand or with an electric polisher. More serious stains should be treated with a poultice made of white blotting paper, paper napkins or cleansing tissues which may be soaked in the solution that is needed for the particular stain. Organic stains — tea, coffee, soft drinks that have no citric acid, wet bark and flowers — should have a poultice of the peroxide and ammonia. Oil stains — butter, milk, cream, hand cream, modeling clay and the like should be wiped with a cloth dampened with amonia, and a poultice of equal parts of amyl acetate and acetone, and then a poultice of the hydrogen peroxide and ammonia.

Old pieces of marble and firestained marble fireplaces should also respond to that treatment. Once restored or if it is new marble, it may need only regular care about twice a year. Remove surface dirt with a detergent and fibre brush. If dirt remains, make a thick paste of an alkaline cleaner and water and spread it over the marble with a trowel. Retard the drying action by covering it with a damp cloth for 24 hours, then let it dry for another 24. The mixture can be saved and reused. When all stains are removed, sand and polish it with putty powder.

If chlorine bleach is handy, you may want to try this method suggested by Clorox experts. Mix three-fourths of a cup of liquid chlorine bleach with a gallon of warm water, wash marble, rinse and dry. If stains persist, keep marble moist for five to eight minutes with bleach solution. Rinse and dry.

As for wood floors, a light coating of corn oil used in an emergency on oak flooring worked well in removing a greyish film and stains left by potted plants.

Woman Achiever
Contest open

Pomona Valley Women, a supplement of the Progress Bulletin highlighting activities of all women's clubs in Pomona Valley, will be published Oct. 26.

Four Women Achievers, selected by a panel of five judges, will be honored in the edition along with all the women who are represented in reviews of the activities of more than 180 women's organizations.

This year will mark the 11th anniversary of the presentation of trophies to Pomona Valley women.

Fact sheets for club inclusion in the annual edition went into the mail Friday and were addressed to the president or publicity chairman of every club listed with the Family Section. Deadline for return of the club forms is Sept. 21.

The Women Achievers will be paid tribute for their contributions of time and service to their community at a luncheon in November. Former honorees will be feted along with the 1976 awardees. The luncheon will be open to all Pomona Valley women.

Nomination blanks, mailed last week, must be returned to the Family Section of the Progress Bulletin not later than Sept. 17.

Claremont Scout attends conference

Today's woman cannot move into the world with reluctance. She must move with confidence into many career areas that have been closed to women before, knowing that she not only paves the way for herself, but for the generations of women to come.

This was the message of speakers at a Women in Action conference held recently at Rockwood Girl Scout National Center near Potomac, Md.

The conference, designed to give teenage girls an in-depth look at what some women in government, private institutions and industries are doing today, so that they will have greater understanding in making their own choice of future careers, was attended by more than 80 Senior Girl Scouts, ages 14 to 18, and several Girl Guides from other nations.

A local girl, Catherine M. Serpa, 17, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. John R. Serpa of Claremont, was among the scouts to attend. She is a member of Troop 111, Spanish Trails Council.

JOYCE RONNIE

April nuptials planned

Miss Joyce Ronnie of Ontario and Gerry Kurth of Chino will be married next April.

The future bride, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Gerald Ronnie of Ontario, graduated in 1973 from Ontario High School. She is employed at Pomona Valley Community Hospital and attends Chaffey College where she is majoring in professional nursing.

Son of Mr. and Mrs. Charles Kurth of Chino, the groom-to-be is a 1972 graduate of Ontario High School and a 1974 graduate of Chaffey College where he was a member of the honor society. He is self employed.

Rebekahs schedule meeting

Valley Queen Rebekah Lodge of Chino will entertain the district deputy president of District 74 when the group meets at 8 p.m., Thursday at Grange Hall, 11667 Monte Vista Ave. She is Mrs. Bonny Lynn Miller.

Mrs. Miller will be accompanied by Mrs. Margaret Jasper, marshal.

The initiatory degree will be conferred upon Militza Runjovac.

Hostesses will be Mr. and Mrs. Clyde Land, Mrs. Dorothy Griffiths and Mrs. Edna Bottoms.

Joyce Brothers
Who gives in first?

DEAR DR. BROTHERS: My boyfriend and I had a fight and I made up my mind that he'd have to call first. Well, he's stubborn and hasn't phoned all week. I'm miserable and his friend tells me he is too. I feel if I weaken and call him first he'll pull this kind of pressure on me the rest of our lives. I don't want to always be the one to make the first move toward reconciliation. — V.L.

Dear V.L.: Don't get involved in power struggles where each feels he's going to lose face or position if he gives in. The real object of any disagreement is to improve understanding, and words should be used to explore depth and meaning, rather than as weapons to inflict injury.

A dangerous and destructive pattern can evolve from the kind of stalemate you describe; that is, couples can get into the habit of quarreling just to relieve boredom and to give each other physical and emotional distance, so that when they get back together they will have added stimulation. They may unconsciously create quarrels to add suspense and zest when they renew their friendship. This doesn't lead to growth, and ultimately even the continual "making'up" becomes boring.

I suggest you pick up the phone, call your freind and say you'd like to discuss the problem with the purpose of trying to discover more about why you each feel and behave as you do. This is much more rewarding, exciting and adventurous than simply repeating the adolescent power struggle you describe.

DEAR DR. BROTHERS: The man who wants to marry me only recently told me that he'd been married four times. I've never been married. I want to marry, but this scares me. I'd be his fifth wife, and if all his other marriages bombed out, how could my marriage to him possibly work. He says he's been through a lot and now knows exactly where he went wrong before. I'm different, he says, and he won't make the same mistakes. Can I believe him? — E.M.

Dear E.M.: Of course you can believe him, but if I were you, I'd have some long, serious conversations before I swallowed this. If he told me that I'm the major reason he feels the marriage would work, I'd be suspicious.

It's too easy to close your eyes and hear him saying the same thing to each of the other women in his life. If he feels they were all wrong, you should be even more suspicious. What I'm saying is that if he's to have a good marriage, a change must take place in him.

Now, the wise, mature person can, and does learn from past errors and it's quite conceivable that it might have taken this man four marriages to learn exactly what was wrong. Unhappy marriages can serve as valuable education for the sensitive person who wants to learn. Most individuals, having made mistakes and failed in relationships, try harder to make them work the next time.

Your chances for a successfull mariage with this man depend on how well you communicate and on whether or not you can honestly explore all the pitfalls that led to his past problems. I'm sure they weren't all his fault, but assume that at least half of them were. Begin from there and make sure you won't be falling into the same trap. More than three-fourths of all divorced men remarry over and over again.

Seniors chart activity

Claremont Senior Citizens have scheduled a series of meetings and trips for September.

The group will tour the Alpha Beta Bakery at La Habra and have lunch at Arnold's Farmouse this Wednesday. There will be a stop at Knott's Independence Hall. The group will leave Village Green at 8 a.m. and will return at 4 p.m.

Lunch at The Forum in Los Angeles will precede the group attendance at the Ice Follies on Sept. 11. The bus will leave from Village Green at 11 a.m. and will return at 5 p.m.

An overnight outing to San Diego is scheduled Sept. 21. There will be trips to Sea World. The bus will leave Village Green at 8:15 a.m. and will return the next day at 6 p.m.

A potluck luncheon at noon, Sept. 27, is planned by the group at Taylor Hall in Claremont. Each person will bring food to serve six persons.

Claremont Senior Citizens group meets for crafts every Friday at 10 a.m. at Taylor Hall. Cards are played every Friday from 1 to 3:30 p.m.

Persons interested in joining the group may conact Mrs. Isobel Malcom on Mondays at 624-4531, Ext. 275, or on Fridays at 626-9150.

Five Points Association meeting set

Pomona Valley Five Points Association will meet at 7:30 p.m., Tuesday, in Claremont Masonic Temple.

Claremont Star Points will be hostesses. Plans will be made for the dinner in honor of the worthy matrons and worthy patrons of the district.

Dinner set by club unit

"Country Fair" is the theme for the Young Mothers Club annual fund-raising dinner to be held Sept. 11 at 7 p.m. Reservations and information regarding the dinner, to be held in Covina, may be made by calling 714-983-6470.

Gem-Wise
Jewelry fashions, facts, fictions

By Alan R. Thomas
MEMBER AMERICAN GEM SOCIETY

BEWARE OF NAME DROPPERS

'76 August #2

Two of the most misleading terms used to describe diamonds are blue-white and perfect. As an American Gem Society jeweler, I am not permitted to use either of these. The role of the AGS jeweler is to enlighten the consumer, not confuse him.

About one in five hundred gem quality diamonds will have what is considered a blue-white color. Often this term is applied to any diamond which is not obviously yellow to the eye when mounted. If viewed unmounted under proper diamond light and against a white background, it shows its true color.

Top color in diamond is a complete absence of color. Most gem diamonds have a slight yellowish tinge, and the degree of this color affects the value of the stone. True colorless diamonds are almost as scarce as the fancy diamonds which have a definite body color such as an intense canary yellow, pink, green, deep blue, or red.

The use of the term perfect is regulated by the Federal Trade Commission. The term can be used for any stone that is not obviously flawed when examined in normal daylight under a ten-power magnifier. Since the term perfect refers only to diamond clarity, a stone so described may have poor cutting and color. All three of these factors combine to make a beautiful diamond, so a stone classified as perfect may not be what the consumer expects. Actually a small flaw will not lower the value of a stone as much as off-color or poor cutting. I will go into these topics in a later article.

The discrepancy between the dictionary definition and the jeweler's definition of the word perfect causes a communication gap an ethical jeweler will avoid. Be cautious when you hear this and the term blue-white in reference to diamonds.

Tomato Butter

If you're having a great year with tomatoes from the garden, plan serving Tomato Butter with peas, corn or green beans. Cook ¾ cup peeled, chopped tomato until tender. Add ½ cup (1 stick) butter and heat until it melts. This makes about ¾ cup.

Preparing to retire?

Gains balance losses

STILLWATER, Okla. (AP) — Losses occur with normal aging, but positive gains also come. Knowing realities about elderly persons can help you prepare to live during retirement, says Lorene Keeler, who teaches a course on aging at Oklahoma State University.

"Though old age is usually seen as a negative time in life, increased personal freedom is one result of retirement," says the home economics professor.

"A person no longer has to do what someone else commands or to meet urgent demands of the clock. When children leave home, parents no longer have to worry about their son dropping out or their daughter turning on.

"Since a houseful of consumers no longer depends on the aging parents, a smaller income doesn't have to cover so many responsibilities. Though older people have lost clear-cut expectations with retirement, they have the potential gain of freedom," she said.

Mrs. Keeler terms today's elderly people pioneers for a new period of life because they are the first generation where most people live past 65.

"Besides setting examples for those of us coming on, these people are finding new roles and new, satisfying ways to live," she says.

Admitting that losing a spouse can be painful, she says, "Once they have recovered from their grief, people sometimes discover an incredible new life.

"Some long marriages are less than happy, with personalities submerged to meet mate expectations. And a life alone may lead to a new freedom."

Commenting on the harm middle-aged persons can do, Mrs. Keeler says, "Middle-aged persons often decide what is good and not good for older people. And this sometimes causes the older person to become dependent."

She feels older people should have many alternatives to choose from and be free to define what is right for them.

"Experts talk about the 'roleless role' of older persons and imply they are lost when they have no explicit directions for their lives," says Mrs. Keeler.

She encourages the elderly to be active and to speak out in their behalf. "Don't settle for being a second-class citizen."

Seeing an elderly person as sick, feeble or as a nursing home patient is an inaccurate image, even though most people, even the older persons, may have such a mental picture, she points out.

While most people eventually spend some brief time in nursing homes, Mrs. Keeler says, "Only about 5 per cent of all people over 65 live in institutions. And most of these are over 75 years old.

"Most elderly persons not in institutions live in their own homes, usually within weekly visiting distance of relatives. And more than 75 per cent of the elderly living in communities have no chronic health conditions. They are active and mobile."

Since husbands tend to die before their wives, elderly widows total almost four times as many as widowers. Usually these older women live alone, but about 17 per cent live with relatives. And only about 8 per cent of the elderly men live with relatives, according to Mrs. Keeler.

Most of the elderly who live with relatives are over 75 years old and have partial or major limitations of activity and mobility.

About one in five of all persons over 65 years of age do not have families to rely on. For these and others choosing to live alone, housing adequate to their needs is a crucial issue, Mrs. Keeler maintains.

"When you retire, you will probably be active, mobile and living in your own home for several years. Getting ready for retirement and later years should be a lifelong pursuit," advises the professor.

"To make your retirement as rewarding as possible develop hobbies, creative activities or second careers early in life. Retirement can be a rich, rewarding time. It doesn't need to be years of unhappiness."

Montclair church setting for rites

MRS. ROD SMITH

The former Miss Judy Martin is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Carl Medlin of Ontario. The bridegroom is the son of Mr. and Mrs. James Smith of Montclair.

Honor attendant was Mrs. Janet Curry and best man was Jim Brinkman. Other attendants were Miss Margaret Penny, Miss Regina Soteros, Russ Wilson and Jeff Vasquez.

Dancing class plans told

A class in basic steps for ballroom and night club dancing will be taught every Thursday from 8 to 10 p.m. at the Women's Community Club, 172 W. Monterey Ave., Pomona.

Tom Kemper will be the instructor. Further information may be obtained by calling 213-359-7871.

Rummage sale slated next week

The United Methodist Women of San Dimas United Methodist Church will sponsor their annual fall rummage sale on Sept. 1-3 from 9 a.m. to 5 p.m. at the church, 114 W. 2nd St., San Dimas.

Sale items will include records, new and used clothing, shoes, knick-knacks, appliances, utensils, dishes, books, furniture and toys. Proceeds will be used to support missions, aid youth work and other needs of the church.

WHAT'S THE SCORE? — Soprano Beverly Sills discusses musical matters with conductor Zubin Mehta prior to the concert in the Hollywood Bowl Wednesday night. Miss Sills was soloist with the combined Los Angeles and Israel philharmonics. The concert was a benefit for the Los Angeles Philharmonic's pension fund.

New talent show slated

An exhibition of recent works by 10 artists who have won the New Talent Awards in the past six years will open Sept. 7 at the county Museum of Art, Los Angeles. It runs through Oct. 3.

The New Talent Awards are given each year by the museum's Modern and Contemporary Art Council to artists under 36 who live in Los Angeles County, show promise and have not yet achieved national acclaim. Within a six-year period the recipient presents the museum with an example of his or her work worth the value of the award (now $2,000), which then becomes part of the permanent collection.

The exhibition is made up of works by New Talent Award winners who are presenting their selections to the museum for the first time. Four paintings will be shown: "Traces No. 5," a work of pastel, carbon paper and light reflective paint on laminated kraft paper by Jack Barth; "Brown Painting," an acrylic on panel by David Deutsch; "Mantiq Al-Tayr," an acrylic on canvas by Stephen Sher; and a mixed media work, untitled, by Tom Wudl.

In addition, Loren Madsen and Barbara Munger will create environmental pieces on site in the exhibition space. Performance artist Chris Burden will present the museum with a copy of his "Chris Burden Deluxe Photo Book 71-73," a 42-page limited edition document of his past performances. Conceptual artist Alexis Smith will present a collage titled "Orpheus: 3 Movies" and Jay McCafferty will exhibit one of his recent works created by solar burns on paper titled "Ritual." Two topographical drawings titled "Santa Monica Golf Course Notation" by John White will also be shown.

LINDA RONSTADT, whose repertoire includes rock, pop and country music, will perform Sept. 7-13 at the Universal Amphitheater in Hollywood. Her guest star will be Andrew Gold, who plays guitar, bass, drums and piano.

Jewish Council plans art show

The Jewish Federation Council of Greater Los Angeles will hold an exhibition of paintings, prints, sculpture, drawings and watercolors at the Jewish Community Building, 6505 Wilshire Blvd., Los Angeles, Sept. 13-Oct. 13.

The exhibit will be open from 9 a.m. to 4:30 p.m. Monday through Friday. Admission is free.

Mrs. Theodore Harris, curator for the show, "Federation in the Arts," said that although a majority of the artists are local and Jewish, the criterion for acceptance was quality work on a variety of themes and subjects.

One feature of the exhibition is the translation of artist Natalie Krol's logo design of dancing figures into a sterling silver pendant. A limited number will be on sale at the information desk.

Prize no use

WEST HARTFORD, Conn. (AP) — Patrick Curley, an 80-year-old retired subway motorman, won a car in a fund-raising raffle at a high school here, but he had no use for it.

"I wish I won it 30 or 40 years ago," he said. "I'm too old now to fool around with that kind of car."

Hollywood puts on a mob scene

By Dick Kleiner

That was the signal to begin filming what is one of the biggest scenes shot in Hollywood in a long time. These pinch-penny days, if they have more than six people and a dog, it's a mob scene. But this day, it was like the old Hollywood.

It's a musical romance, set in New York just after World War II. And the big scene, from the standpoint of numbers, is the beginning — V-J Day in New York.

That's what they were filming. They had built (for $125,000) a New York hotel ballroom of the 1945 era. On the bandstand, playing "Song of India," was Tommy Dorsey and his orchestra. (It wasn't Tommy, obviously; it was Bill Tole in a double-breasted suit. Tole is a local Los Angeles bandleader who looks a lot like T.D.)

And on the dance floor and sitting at the tables, whooping it up for peace and prosperity, were some 600 extras. Most were in uniforms — soldiers, sailors, marines — but there were many civilians in the crowd. And they were dancing and laughing and drinking and acting like they must have acted on V-J Day in NewYork.

DeNiro was in the crowd, working his way through to find his friends. He was wearing a raucous sports shirt, something his character had obviously bought on the sidewalks of New York for 49 cents — pictures of the Empire State Building and the Statue of Liberty all over it.

CALM AMID CHAOS — Robert DeNiro and Liza Minnelli seem oblivious to the crowd dancing and romancing behind them on the set of Robert Scorsese's "New York, New York." The United Artist film tells of a romance at the end of World War II.

Co-producer Irwin Winkler said they couldn't find a shirt like that anywhere. They had to have it hand-painted. They had four made. Fifty bucks a copy.

The economics of a crowd scene like this are staggering, and pretty much explain why they seldom touch them any more. The other co-producer, Robert Chartoff, ticked off the day's expenses:

The set cost $125,000. They'll use it maybe six days so he figured it was costing about $20,000 a day.

They also figure an ordinary work day, what with salaries and rentals and all that, runs around $25,000 and Chartoff figured another $10,000 for costumes and the extra crew members needed for a big scene like that.

Up on the beams that run across the stage, stagehands had boxes of confetti. And streamers. Scorsese gave the sign, the assistant director cued the confetti men, the playback of the music started, the extras began to dance and yell and sing.

"Cut it, cut it!" came the voice. "Sorry, we had a camera problem." Six hundred people groaned.

Georgei Auld, the one-time Artie Shaw and Benny Goodman sideman, is technical adviser on the film. He's teaching DeNiro to finger the sax properly, since he's playing a sax man in the film.

They did take after take. They ran out of confetti, and they had to hoist boxes of the stuff on ropes up to the men on beams.

One extra, playing a sergeant, was cheerfully stuffing confetti into a sandwich bag. He was obviously going to take it home after his day's work was finished.

Everything was authentic, as to period. All the clothes except for those worn by the principals came from the MGM wardrobe department. The assistant directors looked at everybody closely, to see that there was nothing wrong. Even the nail polish had to be '40s style.

"I've been informed," the voice said at one point, "that there is a WAC with dangling ear rings that are wrong for the period. Whoever she is, please take them off and put them in your pocket."

You might be interested in knowing that movie champagne isn't the real stuff. The prop man concocted a mixture of Bromo-Seltzer and club soda which he poured in the empty bottle. It really popped.

Each take was carefully choreographed, so certain bits of action were visible as the camera focused on DeNiro, forcing his way through the crowd. There was even a staged fight — two men battling over a bottle of champagne — and the action was frenetic.

Arts in a $queeze

By The Associated Press

Arthur Dewey, comptroller of the Los Angeles Philharmonic, summed up his orchestra's financial situation in a few words: "Downhill. It's hell on roller skates."

Dewey, who says the orchestra has a $6-million annual budget and faces a deficit of more than $200,000 for the fiscal year ending next June, is not alone.

An Associated Press survey shows that orchestras, theaters and other cultural attractions across the country are finding that contributions and ticket sales don't cover expenses. Labor disputes complicate the problem in some areas.

The problems have led to cutbacks — the American Shakespeare Theatre said Wednesday it was canceling a fall tour because of lack of funds. Ticket prices are rising. Appeals for foundation and government support are growing.

There are a few exceptions to the trend: The John F. Kennedy Center for the Performing Arts in Washington is in the black. So is the Atlanta Arts Alliance and the Dallas Symphony. Harold Gregory, executive director of the Utah Symphony, said the group "is unique in that it's a pay-as-you-go organization," due partly to musicians' willingness to accept realistic salaries.

The Nashville (Tenn.) Symphony, for example, has projected a deficit of $70,000 this year on its $690,000 budget. It may have to cut back on a series of free programs in the public schools.

The Houston Symphony frequently runs at a deficit. But the situation is complicated this year by labor troubles. The orchestra, which had a $129,000 deficit for fiscal 1975-76, suspended operations June 16 after the musicians rejected a new contract offer. Negotiations continue, but no settlement is in sight and the first two sets of concerts in the 1976-77 supscription series have been canceled.

The St. Louis Symphony Orchestra faces a possible strike when the current musicians' contract expires Sept. 5. Orchestra officials said they face an accumulated deficit of over $869,000 and cannot afford the salary demands of the musicians who are seeking weekly pay of $485 at the end of a three-year-pact. The current basic pay is $305 a week, and the symphony has offered $350 at the end of three years.

"I guess our offer represents our concerns about our ability to raise money," said Peter Pastreich, executive director of the symphony.

Radio City Music Hall, which has drawn millions to New York City, also is negotiating with its employes: the Rockettes, the stagehands, the musicians and the wardrobe attendants.

The management said it lost $1.3 million last year and will close the theater Sept. 8 unless it reaches a cost-cutting labor agreement by next Wednesday.

How's that?

Purchase delay in home could mean higher cost

Persons who admire a residential development but delay their purchase decision on the belief of the builder will be addding more homes may be disappointed, warns Randall W. Lewis, vice president of Lewis Homes.

"Sure, the builder may add additional units of homes but in today's climate of constantly rising building costs, he will likely be forced to mark up the purchase price of each new unit started."

If there is such a thing as "bargain day" for prospective home buyers, it is now, he added. He suggested as a "shoppers guide" that prospective buyers start their bargain hunting at the three Lewis Homes developments where the current prices can't be repeated in future building.

"Sales have proceeded at such a fast pace that we didn't even have time to finish the display models," he reported. The homes are located near Mills Avenue two blocks north of Foothill Boulevard in Claremont.

Lewis Homes is nearing a sellout of the first unit of homes in its Mountainview Series. These are priced from $55,150. Buyers have a choice of single story, split-level and two story structures. These are built on 10,000 square foot lots.

The homes are located on 15th Street, between Mountain and San Antonio avenues, Upland.

The development is located at Carnelian Street and Banyan Avenue. The sales office is located a fourth mile north of 19th Street at Carnelian and Somerset Drive. Homes in the three developments are single family structures. He warned that rising land and construction costs may soon put this type of home beyond the reach of many buyers.

The Crowell-Leventhal, Inc., is accepting reservations for homes in the second unit of its Village Park development in Cucamonga.

"Most of the homes in the first unit which opened last month have been sold and we have started construction on the second group of 29 homes, said Harry Crowell, president.

"Nearly all of the two story models in the second unit have been reserved. The first unit has 40 homes."

Crowell credited the nature of the development with the rapid sale of homes. Priced from $34,950, the homes are designed for young couples starting their homeowning years and retired couples who don't want to move into a condominium or an apartment.

The project has a swimming pool, clubhouse, "tot lot" with play equipment, a game court and a large park. The individual yards are small for minimum maintenance.

Front yard landscaping and sprinklers are included in the sales price. When the houses' yards face the recreation area or the perimeter, fences for that portion are also included.

Buyers have their choice of three floor plans and four elevations. These include two one story homes and three and four bedrooms, and a two story home with four bedrooms, 2½ bathrooms and fireplaces in the family rooms and master bedroom suites.

The one story homes have two bedrooms, fireplaces in the living rooms, and laundry areas in the attached two-car garages.

The sales office is located at the clubhouse at 8590 Club House Drive. To reach the development, persons may take Foothill Boulevard to Archibald Avenue, drive south to Arrow Route, go east to Fir Street and then right to the sales office.

Persons wanting more information may phone 987-0145.

FUN FACTS from WRIGLEY'S SPEARMINT GUM

CIRCUS MAXIMUS, ANCIENT ROME'S LARGEST HIPPODROME, REPORTEDLY SEATED FROM 150,000 TO 180,000 SPECTATORS. IT WAS ESTIMATED TO BE ABOUT 600 FEET WIDE BY 2000 FEET LONG.

SOME ANIMALS, SUCH AS OTTERS, HAVE REFLEXES SO FAST, THEY CAN DUCK OUT OF THE WAY OF A BULLET AFTER A GUN IS FIRED.

A MONTEZUMA BALD CYPRESS NEAR OAXACA, MEXICO, HAS A TRUNK THAT MEASURES ABOUT 40 FEET IN DIAMETER AND AROUND 115 FEET IN GIRTH.

METRIC SYSTEM · PART ONE

METRIC IS EASY WINNER

A CONFLICT BETWEEN "CUSTOMARY" SYSTEM (WHICH WE NOW USE) AND METRIC SYSTEM OF WEIGHTS AND MEASURES IS ENDING—METRIC IS THE WINNER.

THE U.S. IS MOVING TOWARD CONVERSION. YOU MIGHT NOT LIKE THE IDEA, BUT YOU'LL LEARN IT EASILY. FOLLOW THE 6-PART SERIES, OF WHICH THIS IS THE FIRST, APPEARING HERE REGULARLY. CLIP AND SAVE EACH ONE.

100 YEARS LATER

In 1866, U.S. CONGRESS LEGALIZED THE METRIC SYSTEM, WITHOUT MAKING THE CUSTOMARY SYSTEM ILLEGAL—MOST PEOPLE IGNORED IT. A TREATY SIGNED BY 17 NATIONS (1875) LED TO AN INTERNATIONAL BUREAU WHICH STORED A STANDARD METER AND KILOGRAM NEAR PARIS IN 1889. THEY STILL ARE THERE, CONTROLLED BY 42-NATION GENERAL CONFERENCE OF WEIGHTS AND MEASURE (CGPM) AS INTERNATIONAL SYSTEM OF UNITS. (SI).

WHY?

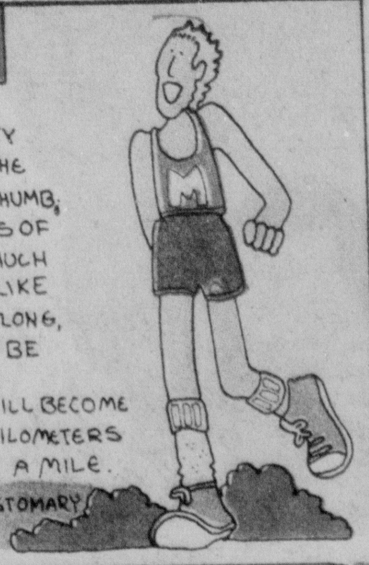
WE NEED NAMES THAT MEAN THE SAME THING EVERYWHERE. A GALLON IN CANADA, FOR INSTANCE, IS 20% MORE THAN A GALLON IN THE U.S. WHEN NORTH AMERICA WAS BEING SETTLED, A BUSHEL OF OATS COULD MEAN 28, 32, 33.5, 35 OR EVEN 36 LBS. SMART TRADERS BOUGHT HEAVY AND SOLD LIGHT.

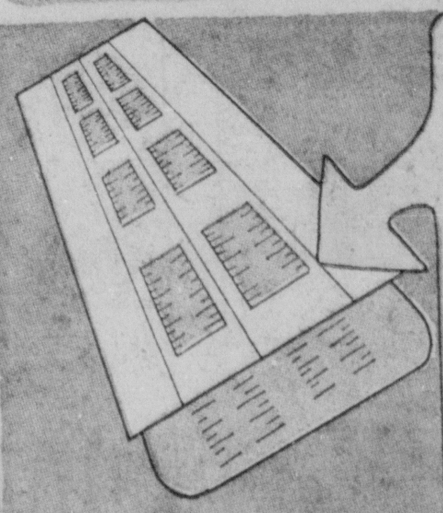
CONFUSING NAMES

NAMES CAUSE CONFUSION. WHERE DID THEY COME FROM? A FOOT WAS THE LENGTH OF THE EMPEROR'S FOOT; AN INCH, THE WIDTH OF A THUMB; AND A YARD, AN ARM'S LENGTH. HUNDREDS OF NAMES WITH LOCAL MEANINGS WERE NOT MUCH HELP IN INTERNATIONAL TRADE— NAMES LIKE POINT, LINE, LINK, FATHOM, POLE, CHAIN, FURLONG, ROD, LEAGUE, PALM, AND HAND. ALL CAN BE EXPRESSED IN METERS.

IN TRACK, FOR INSTANCE, THE MILE RACE WILL BECOME 1,500 METERS—AND IT WON'T STAY 1.609 KILOMETERS SIMPLY BECAUSE THAT WAS THE LENGTH OF A MILE.

NEXT WEEK: HOW TO CONVERT OUR CUSTOMARY MEASURES OF LENGTHS TO METERS.





RIGHT NOW!

IT'S SMART TO THINK METRIC. THIS SLIDE CONVERTER WILL MAKE INCHES, FEET, YARDS, RODS, OUNCES, POUNDS, PINTS, AND QUARTS INSTANTLY AVAILABLE TO YOU IN THE INTERNATIONAL LANGUAGE OF METERS AND GRAMS. IT'S SO SIMPLE, YOU'LL WONDER WHY YOU WAITED SO LONG. TO OBTAIN YOUR CONVERTER, SEND $1 AND A LONG, SELF-ADDRESSED, STAMPED ENVELOPE WITH YOUR REQUEST TO:

METRIC CONVERTER
BOX 4994
DES MOINES, IA. 50306

(C) 1976 The Register and Tribune Syndicate, Inc.

OLD MEASURES NEVER DIE

BUT THEY DO FADE AWAY. WE STILL SAY "TWO BITS" TO MEAN 25¢; ITS MEANING HAS FADED. IT NEVER DID MEAN THAT. A BIT WAS A PIECE OF EIGHT, A SPANISH DIVISION OF MONEY. ANOTHER WEIGHT WE USE AND HARDLY UNDERSTAND IS PENNY. "I WAS MAD ENOUGH TO BITE A TEN-PENNY (10d) NAIL IN TWO!" WE STILL SIZE OUR NAILS THAT WAY AND SELDOM THINK OF IT AS A BRITISH WEIGHT.

AFTER WE'RE ON METRIC, WE MAY STILL SAY "ALL WOOL AND A YARD WIDE" WITHOUT REMEMBERING A YARD ONCE WAS SOMETHING THAT DIDN'T NEED MOWING.

CONVERSION EASY

IT WON'T BE HARD TO SWITCH FROM YARDS TO METERS WHEN THE STICK IN YOUR HAND IS A METER LONG, MARKED OFF IN 100 CENTIMETERS. THAT'S ALL YOU'LL HAVE TO GO BY. SIMPLE?

ANSWER: 2 INCHES.

THIS WEEK'S TOP PRIZE QUESTION:

KIM BETTENCOURT OF SACRAMENTO, CA. ASKS: "WHY ARE THE YEARS IN THE 1900s CALLED THE 20th CENTURY?"

IF WE SEEM TO BE A CENTURY AHEAD OF OUR CALENDAR, IT IS BECAUSE WE FORGET THAT THE 2ND CENTURY BEGAN WITH THE YEAR 101. A CENTURY IS A PERIOD OF 100 YEARS. THE YEARS 1 THROUGH 100 A.D. ARE CALLED THE FIRST CENTURY. THE YEARS FROM A.D. 101 AND 200 ARE IN THE 2ND CENTURY. IN THE YEAR 201 A.D. WE BEGAN THE THIRD CENTURY. BY COUNTING IN THIS MANNER, THE PRESENT CENTURY- THE YEARS BETWEEN 1901 AND 2000 - IS THE 20th CENTURY.

Prices Rolled Back
$27 to $67 Per Set
On Sears Steel Belted Radials

Sears announces a dramatic price rollback on its rugged steel belted radial tire! We've cut our regular selling prices back to 1973 levels . . . $27 to $67 less than our June 1976 prices for a set of 4 tires. The tire with the heritage of proven performance on some of the toughest roads in the world . . . in the Baja, East Africa, Greece and Morocco. Its 2 steel belts and radial construction help provide positive traction, responsive handling and outstanding durability! Stop in soon and see this long-wearing tire and remember . . . 1973 PRICES ARE BACK!

40,000 Mile Warranty
165R-13 whitewall

40.75 plus $1.80 Federal Excise Tax each

Sears highway passenger tire warranty

Full warranty for 10% of mileage specified
If you do not receive 10% of miles specified because of your tire becoming unserviceable due to failure apparently relating to material or workmanship, normal road hazards or tread wearout, replacement or refund will be made, upon return, with no charge for mileage received.

Limited warranty
If you do not receive the total miles specified because of your tire becoming unserviceable due to failure apparently relating to material or workmanship, normal road hazards or tread wearout, we will exchange it upon return, for a new tire or give you a refund charging in either case, only the proportion of the then current selling price plus Federal Excise Tax that represents mileage used. Nail punctures will be repaired at no charge.

GUARANTEE

If you qualify, you can enlist for one of hundreds of exciting Army jobs. Or you can choose the area or unit you'd like to serve in, near home in the continental United States or someplace new. Your choice can be guaranteed in writing before you enlist.

In today's Army, you earn good money while learning a skill to make even more money.

If you're looking for a good job, and a good starting salary, today's Army can help you. In fact, the Army has more good jobs to fill than anybody. Hundreds of good jobs. And we'll give you the training and the experience you need for the job you select. All of which is pretty hard to beat, especially when you get an attractive starting salary and a jump in pay after just six months in the Army.

Look over the stamps on this page, representing 40 Army career categories. Pick your first three choices, detach, moisten and place the stamps on the postage-paid card and mail it to us.

The job you learn in the Army is a skill that stays with you.

You'll find that the job you learn in the Army has a lot of "staying" power. And it gives you options you probably didn't have before. You can use your skill to build a career in the Army.

And, we think you'll discover another important fact. The Army's job-training courses are probably the best around. They're taught by excellent instructors, in good schools, on the most up-to-date equipment. You'll have a job that could cost you a lot of money to learn in civilian life.

Remember, you're also paid good money while you learn. And after six months, while you're learning your skill, you get a nice raise. After that, further raises and promotions will come as you earn them. And, of course, the Army takes care of your meals, clothing, housing, medical and dental care, plus a lot of other benefits, such as a 30 day vacation paid every year. Send back the card today and get all the facts.

You'll enjoy a good starting salary in the Army, with most of it clear, since the Army takes care of the majority of your living expenses. But if you're like a lot of young people we've talked to, "money isn't everything." You want to know you're equipped to handle whatever comes your way. And that's what the Army can do for you. It provides job training and experience in a skill you can use throughout your life. And in addition, the Army can help you develop a greater sense of confidence and responsibility. You really get to know yourself, and your abilities, in the Army. And that is an education all by itself.

Cash Is Back

"The Johnny Cash Show," starring Johnny Cash, taped live on the stage of the Grand Ole Opry in Nashville, Tenn., premieres Sunday on CBS at 8PM. The program will air for four consecutive weeks, and guests for the premiere show are Roy Clark and Tanya Tucker. June Carter Cash, Johnny's wife, will be his special guest each week and they will be joined by many of Johnny's friends—performers in and out of country music, including comedians Steve Martin, Jimy Varney and Howard Morris. In the premiere program, Johnny also sings "Ragged Old Flag" in a sequence taped in the old Ryman Auditorium which used to be the home of the grand Ol'e Opry.

COVER CLOSE-UP

"WORLD OF DISNEY" BEGINS 23RD YEAR

Celebrating its 23rd year of Sunday evening network broadcasting and its 16th anniversary on NBC-TV, "The Wonderful World of Disney" continues the variety of programming that has made it the longest running prime-time network show on the air. Over the years, the Disney series has survived 34 competing series on the other networks.

While bringing audiences of all ages the broad spectrum of quality entertainment that has characterized the series from the start, the 1976-77 season also begins the first year of a new five-year contract between Walt Disney Productions and NBC-TV. Terms of the recent long-term agreement provide for the showing of 20 Disney theatrical motion pictures on "The Wonderful World of Disney," representing more than $150 million in domestic film rentals.

Four major motion pictures will be broadcast each season in special two-hour Sunday evening presentations. Included in this season's quartet will be 20,000 Leagues Under the Sea . . . Jules Verne's amazing tale comes to the screen in this Academy Award-winning classic about the adventures of an incredible submarine under the helm of the mad Captain Nemo. James Mason, Kirk Douglas, Paul Lukas and Peter Lorre star in the greatest sea story ever told. The Castaway Cowboy . . . James Garner, Vera Miles and Robert Culp star in the television premiere of this comedy-adventure about a shipwrecked Texan who helps turn a sorry potato farm into Hawaii's first cattle ranch.

20,000 Leagues Under the Sea

In addition to the above film package is a special two-hour presentation of Walt Disney Productions' first movie ever made for television: The Ghost of Cramer's Island . . . Seeking revenge for the death of his redbone hound, 15-year-old Lonny Bascombe ventures deep into the Great Cypress Swamp on the trail of Weakfoot, a killer black panther. There he comes face to face with a half-clothed, half-crazed "swamp-man"—a murderer who has been hiding out for 16 years. Vic Morrow, Jeff East and Noah Beery star in this action-paced adventure.

The Ghost of Cramer's Island

Kit Carson and the Mountain Men

Ron Miller, Disney's executive producer in charge of motion pictures and television, has a number of one- and two-hour television shows in various stages of pre- and post-production. Among those scheduled to air during the 1976-77 season, beginning September 26, are the following two-parters: Kit Carson and the Mountain Men . . . Clad in buckskin and armed with rifles, hunting knives and pistols, Carson and his mountain men join the legendary Captain John Fremont on a daring and secret mission to help bring California into the Union. Christopher Connelly, Robert Reed and Gary Lockwood star in this pioneer adventure set in the mid-1800s.The Great African Antelope Hunt . . . Filmed in the lush bamboo forests and mountains surrounding the Great Rift Valley of Kenya, this exciting nature adventure follows a pair of the rarest and most beautiful antelopes in the world, the African Bongos, across the jungle with three sets of hunters desperately tracking them. Finally, a courageous 12-year-old Kenyan boy is forced to choose between his ancient hunting heritage and the lives of these graceful animals. Barry of the Great St. Bernard . . . This heroic true story filmed in the treacherous yet breathtaking Swiss Alps is about a young monk and a very special St. Bernard rescue dog who dedicate themselves to saving others in the violent storms of the Alps.

Barry of the Great St. Bernard

Also on tap for the new season are four new single-hour episodes: Ringtail to the Rescue . . . Fearing a young miner will discover his secret silver discovery, an old prospector dynamites his mine. Ironically, he traps himself and must rely on the younger man and a ringtail cat to save his life. Journey to the Valley of the Emu . . . Filmed in Australia's rugged "outback", this is the gripping story of an Aborigine boy and a wild Dingo dog who become inseparable when the dog saves the boy's life. Both embark on a danger-filled trip across the Great Desert to the fabled Valley of the Emu from which the boy must return with feathers of the Emu, an ostrich-like bird held sacred by his tribe. The Golden Dog . . . In this comedy-drama, a ghost, a dog and a gold strike combine to test the friendship of a pair of prospectors, who enjoy living in peace until their dog comes home covered with gold dust. Disney's Greatest Dog Stars . . . Those movie stars with cold noses highlight this collection of great Disney dog stories, including scenes from "Lady and the Tramp," "Old Yeller," "101 Dalmations" and featuring the dog who started it all, Pluto. The show will also include a preview of Disney's newest comedy, "The Shaggy D.A."

'Animal World'

When Animal World has its fall premiere (airing on KNBC Saturdays at 5PM), it will mark the beginning of the tenth consecutive year on the air for the Bill Burrud production. During that time the series has been seen 52 weeks a year, including runs on all three major networks and via syndication the past several seasons. It is currently being carried by an approximate 80 stations (including all 10 top markets) in the United States, and also in 25 foreign countries, including Germany, Spain, Portugal, Japan, Singapore, Pakistan, Australia and even such places as Kuala Lumpur and Kuwait.

In shooting almost three million feet of Animal World film, Burrud camera crews have spanned the globe from the steaming jungles of Africa to the snowy peaks of Mt. Kilimanjaro, from the Coral Sea to the icy wastelands of Antarctica and hundreds of other locales, near and far, in pursuit of realism in nature, the unusual, and sometimes the bizarre among the customs of animal and man. Painstaking and often daring camera work has brought into focus everything from great herds of elephants to tiny armies of ants, from snow monkeys in Japan to lethal sharks in the sea and the great reptiles of the Amazon, from the sleek tiger to the teeming world of bees.

Without being preachy, the series has become an important force in the ongoing battle for the preservation of wildlife everywhere. This is a fact that has been acknowledged publicly not only by top game officials, but even by governments.

Burrud himself has traveled virtually around the world four times in supervising production. His son John, now 22, was along with his father at age 14 when the first African footage was shot for Animal World. John has grown up with the series to become a producer/cameraman on the show. Asked to name his most rewarding experience in the nearly a decade of the series' existence, Burrud said: "Filming the African elephant in the early years and then through one of our specials helping save it from extinction today." The producer was referring to his separate one hour TV special "Where Did All the Animals Go?" which raised over $115,000 in viewer contributions for the Bill Burrud Anti-Poaching Fund.

As a result of the film and fund a police-type helicopter was purchased and delivered to the Kenyan government and placed in operation at the huge Tsavo National Park game preserve. The helicopter has succeeded in cutting poaching by more than 50 per cent. Prior to its delivery, it was feared that there would not be an elephant left alive outside of zoos within 15 years. But now the situation has brightened considerably.

Reflecting on the longevity of the Animal World series, Burrud said: "Perhaps one reason for the success of the show is the genuine concern and affection that viewers have for animals of all kinds. This affection seems to be universal, as evidenced by our bookings in foreign lands."

Here he lapsed into a chuckle. "First time I saw my image on the TV screen, in say, Japan, Germany and Spain with my voice dubbed in the native tongue, especially Japanese, it was quite on experience! It is gratifying to realize that in an age of violence and sex permissiveness so many people the world over still prefer wholesome family entertainment on their television screen. I guess otherwise we wouldn't now be beginning our tenth year."

'SURPRISES COMING UP'

Jack Albertson and Freddie Prinze

Chico and the Man moves back to its old Friday night at 8:30PM time slot next season among other changes planned for the third season of the Jack Albertson-Freddie Prinze NBC hit comedy.

In addition to a renewal of the age vs. youth and pessimist vs. optimist concept between Chico and the Man that has made the series one of the most popular on TV, Executive Producer James Komack promises a few surprises for the Fall that will add new dimensions to the show.

Joining Jack, who recently picked up another Emmy, Freddie and Scatman Crothers, will be Della Reese, the dynamic singer and sometime talk show hostess, playing Ed and Chico's new landlady who owns a catering firm next to the garage. Fur and fun will fly as Della becomes heavily involved in local politics in a developing campaign for Congress.

In one of the early segments of the season, Freddie will make his writing debut with an episode called, "Chico Packs His Bags", written with Marty Nadler. The script opens all kinds of apoplectic comedic possibilities for the irascible Ed Brown who hates change. Based on an original idea of Freddie's, Chico will abandon his van for a bachelor pad.

The addition of Della to the "Chico" regulars is another instance of producer-director-writer Komack's knack for casting against type. Komack spotted Freddie on a Johnny Carson show. As an ex-standup comic himself, Komack saw the young New York comic's acting potential. Within weeks after the series went on the air, Freddie was a national sensation. The next season, Komack hit paydirt again when he opened a whole new career direction for nightclub and comedy album performer Gabe Kaplan with the success of "Welcome Back, Kotter".

Lorenzo and Henrietta

"You will be expected to smile, and possibly laugh," said Lorenzo Music, who stars with his wife and is executive producer of The Lorenzo and Henrietta Music Show, an hour-long, five-day-a-week series which debuts Sept. 13 at 8PM on KTTV.

The statement is not so much a command as happy anticipation by the couple, who are delighted at the prospect of performing together again. Although they will appear as fresh faces on your television screen, the Musics are veteran nightclub entertainers who toured the world during their eight year career. And you probably know Lorenzo vicariously in his off-camera role as Carlton the Doorman on the Rhoda series.

During the nine-year interlude, from the time the Music s closed the curtain on their nightclub act until now, Lorenzo busied himself gaining a reputation as one of the most creative writer-producers in Hollywood, while Henrietta retired to raise the family. After first winning an Emmy Award as a co-writer on The Smothers Brothers Comedy Hour, Lorenzo went on to co-create and produce The Bob Newhart Show and Rhoda for MTM Enterprises and CBS.

Lorenzo also did the "warmups" before the studio audiences during the weekly tapings of "Rhoda," which enabled him to somewhat satisfy his continuing desire to entertain. "Let's say it was a weekly lancing and draining of the infection," Lorenzo laughed.

When the chance came for MTM to take the plunge into the syndication field, Lorenzo seemed to be the obvious candidate for a variety/talk show. "Not without my wife I don't," was his answer. And so the amiable couple has plunged into the new series with great energy, determined to offer a fresh new style of entertainment. Although a part of each show will be devoted to informal conversation with either famous or offbeat guest, the remainder of the entertainment will be "home grown."

To that end a repertory company of actors will offer sketches, blackouts and any other form of comedy the team of eight writers—more than on any other daily variety show—can devise. For music the show has its own quartet, comprised of both Lorenzo and Henrietta, plus Bob Gibson and Erik Darling, both of whom have large and loyal fans among folk and popular music devotees. Aside from these ingredients, Lorenzo is reluctant to discuss the show. "Everyone asks, 'what's it going to be like?', so they know what to expect," he said. "But I don't want the show to become predictable. If people will watch us, I think they'll have fun. I know we will."

Tony Lord (George Reinholt) and Pat Kendall (Jacqueline Courtney) share the secrets of a troubled past on ABC's daytime dramatic series, One Life to Live. The popular contemporary drama now airs in an expanded 45-minute format Monday–Friday at 1:30PM on ABC.

More what?

The long lean burnished brown look.

The smooth easy draw.

More what? More of a cigarette. That's what.

Ask Them Yourself

Want to ask a famous person a question? Send the question, on a postcard, to "Ask," Family Weekly, 641 Lexington Ave., New York, N.Y. 10022. We'll pay $5 for published questions. Sorry, we can't answer others.

Mikki Ehrenfeld

FOR ROSALYNN CARTER,
wife of Presidential candidate Jimmy Carter

Last winter you had a sleek hairdo caught at the back in sort of a "French twist," which many people admired very much. Why did you change to a short hairdo?—Julie Stillman, Waltham, Mass.

● It was really a question of necessity. Being on the campaign trail is pretty hectic, and I had very little time left to go to beauty parlors and hairdressers. With as many as four or five stops a day, in all sorts of weather, I decided that this shorter hairdo would be easier to manage. So I had it cut when I was home in Georgia last March. All I need now is a comb and hairspray (I carry a can in my handbag), and I don't have to worry too much about wind and weather.

FOR TINA TURNER

Do you and Ike argue, and if you do, about what?—E.J., Durham, N.C.

● Our "differences" range from the weather to the color of a new couch to whether so-and-so has class. All trivia. Our tastes are different. I guess in some respects we're not compatible. Ike is very sensitive, and little things set him off. However, since we've been married for 16 years and we're looking forward to the next 16, I guess it can't be too serious.

FOR MAUREEN DEAN, wife of John Dean

It's been said that your letter to Judge Sirica was instrumental in having your husband's sentence reduced to four-and-a-half months. What did you say in your letter to the judge?—M.M., Harrington Park, N.J.

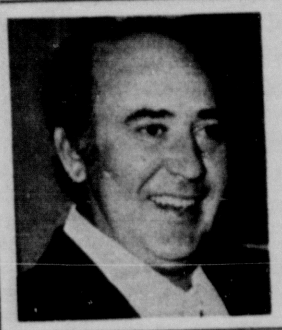
● I told him I was emotionally incapable of facing life with my husband in jail—that I was trying to keep myself together by receiving psychiatric treatment after being committed to a hospital following a total breakdown. I also asked Judge Sirica if he had considered the price which John had to pay for telling the truth.

FOR LEONARD NIMOY, star of "Star Trek"

Do you think life exists in space?—B.C., Amarillo, Texas

● I'm constantly amazed at why I'm considered an expert on this. I've even had reports from people who say they've made contact with beings from other planets (I always pass on these reports to the authorities). But in answer to your question: the mathematical probability is so great, I'd like to bank on it. Those civilizations might not look like ours, but they're out there all right. Take my word for it.

FOR CARL REINER



Do you think humor is inherited or acquired?—P.C., Salem, Ore.

● Intelligence is inherited. Humor is acquired. It comes from a person's environment. My kids, for example, are funny; they all have a good sense of humor.

FOR JANE POWELL

Are you often recognized on the street?—H.L., Grand Forks, N.D.

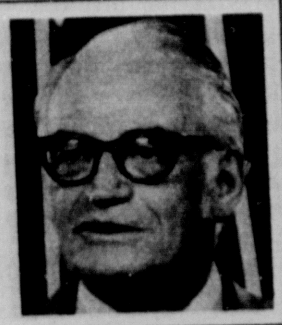
● Usually—but not always. I'll never forget the time when I did "Irene" on Broadway (succeeding Debbie Reynolds). I got in a taxi and told the cabbie to take me to the Minskoff Theater. "Are you in show business?" he wanted to know. When I nodded, the driver said, "Show business is tough. But don't worry, one of these days you'll make it—just like Debbie Reynolds.

FOR SHEILA MACRAE

As one who's always eating out, how do you manage to control what you eat and watch your weight?—C.D., Zanesville, Ohio

● Before my first child was born, my obstetrician gave me this tip: Have a low-calorie drink (like iced tea) before you eat, to take the edge off your hunger pangs. That's what I do before all my meals—have a glass of something, and it really does kill my ravenous appetite.

FOR SEN. BARRY GOLDWATER (R.-Ariz.)



Because of its wilderness location, won't our Alaskan pipeline be vulnerable to sabotage?—S. E. Modin, Jacksonville, Ore.

● In my opinion, any equipment so isolated and so vital to the life structure of America is indeed a potential sabotage target. But I can assure you that our military leaders are aware of this problem.

FOR JOHNNY BENCH of the Cincinnati Reds

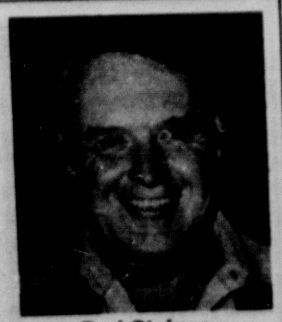
● I chew a half to three-quarters of a pack per game.

FOR THE "ASK THEM YOURSELF" EDITOR



Rod Steiger

Is Rod Steiger still married to Claire Bloom? Why don't we hear more about him?—F.G., Ft. Collins, Colo.

● Rod and Claire were divorced in 1969, 10 years and one child after their wedding. In 1973 Rod married Sherry Nelson, and they have homes in Malibu and New York. You don't hear too much about Rod because he's a very private person. ("One doesn't have to merchandise his private life to be successful.") He's choosy about his roles (his most recent film is "W. C. Fields and Me"), and he likes to gamble with his career. He has been known to turn down role after role. (He waited 18 months for his part in "The Pawnbroker.") Rod got into acting by accident. After a five-year hitch in the Navy, he joined a V.A. drama group. His buddies were so impressed, they suggested he go into it full time. Rod made his Broadway debut in his early 20's, playing a 55-year-old detective in Clifford Odets's "Night Music."

My Life After Heart Attack

By William A. Nolen, M.D.

Author of "The Making of a Surgeon" and "Surgeon Under the Knife"

"Sometimes I have the feeling that people who know me now look at me and think, 'There's Bill Nolen. He's had his heart operated on. He's not quite normal any more.'"

When Dr. William A. Nolen, best-selling author of "The Making of a Surgeon," and other books, first experienced symptoms of heart trouble during a rugged game of racquetball last year, he ignored them. Tense, hard-driving, both at work and at play, he paused only long enough to catch his breath and allow the burning sensation in his throat to subside.

But the symptoms came back—and finally he realized he had no alternative but to go for a checkup.

The diagnosis was bad—much worse than he had expected. Before long, he was bound for Massachusetts General Hospital and massive surgery in which his chest was pried open and the arteries surrounding his heart were replaced by arteries from his leg. The operation was painful and traumatic. But just as traumatic was his "recovery" and his first tentative steps into a "new life" —the life of a heart-attack survivor.

Here, Doctor Nolen discusses the personal and emotional aftereffects so many male (and female) heart-attack victims face. It is the story of a man picking up the pieces, knowing that life will never be the same, but determined to carry on with all the vigor and enjoyment allowed him.

Most patients who have heart attacks go through a period of depression following their recovery. Usually the depression lasts about a year; then, if they are feeling good and have gone back to their jobs (or if that has become impossible, at least once again become active members of society at large), the depression dwindles away.

Patients who undergo heart surgery generally follow a similar pattern. Depression, lasting about a year, is a common sequence of the operation. The depression is caused by the knowledge that 1) you have been awfully close to death (technically, if we still defined death as "stoppage of the heart," you actually have been dead), and 2) you are never going to be quite the same again. (You will never again be "normal," anatomically speaking, as you were before the operation.)

Fortunately, though I've had a few "down" days since my operation, I can't say that I've been really depressed, certainly not to the extent that it has reportedly occurred in most patients who have gone through open-heart procedures. I attribute my lack of depression in part, certainly, to the fact that my postoperative course has, so far at least, been very smooth; actually, I feel as if I am now a much healthier individual, much less likely to die of a heart attack, than was the case before my operation. The doctors who supervise my care agree.

Sometimes I have the feeling that people who know me now look at me and think, "There's Bill Nolen. He's had his heart operated on. He's not quite normal any more." The feeling that people look on me as "different" bothers me. I know it's silly, and my wife Joan assures me that my friends don't think of me in that way, and I'm grateful for her reassurance. It would upset me if I felt that in any sort of competition, physical or otherwise, my competitor felt an obligation to "take it easy" on me. I'd guess that with time I'll realize that isn't going to happen: that no one is going to give me a break just because I've had a heart operation.

Certainly, now that I think of it, no one gave Lyndon Johnson or Eisenhower a "break" in the political wars just because they'd had heart attacks. And—an idea that buoys me up even more—no woman has apparently found any reason to reject Peter Sellers as a sex partner even though his heart stopped five times a few years back. I'll have to remember that the next time I begin to feel sorry for myself.

Another thing that often happens after recovery from a major illness is that the patient goes back to the lifestyle that got him into trouble in the first place; the smoker gets over pneumonia and lights up again; the alcoholic's liver disease improves, and he starts drinking; the heart patient, once he feels well, starts eating, drinking and living just as he did before he had trouble. We have very short memories.

I haven't been a complete exception to that rule, but—particularly in the areas which seem to me most important—I haven't done badly.

I have not, for example, gained any weight. Approximately five months after my operation, my weight remains between 170 and 175, about 25 pounds lighter than I was when I first entered the Massachusetts General Hospital.

I've managed this by sticking reasonably close to a schedule. I eat three times a day and don't eat excessively at any meal. Breakfast is usually cold cereal with a banana; lunch is an omelette (made with egg substitute) or a sandwich; dinner is whatever the rest of the family is having.

I used to prefer to eat late—anywhere from 7:30 till 9:30—and while waiting to eat, I'd nibble on cheese, salami, crackers and whatever else was in the refrigerator. I'd also have three or four drinks.

Now I eat at 6 or 6:15. If I have a drink, it's iced tea. I am so used to this schedule that if I don't eat by 6:30 I get terribly hungry.

After dinner, while I sit and read, I may have a couple of scotch and waters. Drinking after dinner, for those who want to drink at all—and I do—offers two advantages over predinner drinking. First, I drink less. Second, I don't get that overwhelming tired feeling that I used to get after dinner if I'd had three or four predinner drinks. I get a lot more out of reading in the evening than I used to.

I am not as rigid about what I eat as I was in the first few weeks after my operation. My cholesterol levels are invariably in the low-normal range, so I allow myself to eat eggs occasionally, usually when I'm eating breakfast out. But since the fake eggs work well in omelettes, I stick with them when I'm home.

I've found cheeses that are 85 to 95 percent fat-free and taste pretty good, so we keep them in stock, as well as cholesterol-free mayonnaise. Joan buys tuna fish that's packed in water instead of oil. I've even found peanut butter that has neither salt nor any saturated fats. (You see, even though I know, rationally, that low-cholesterol diets aren't definitely beneficial, I can't shake the emotional bias I have in their favor.) Since I tend to run a slightly elevated triglyceride level, I stay away from sugar. Sugar substitutes are fine on cereal, and I've never been much for desserts anyway.

Actually, none of these dietary changes has bothered me at all. In fact, it has been a revelation to me to find how easy it is to stay on a low-sugar, low-cholesterol diet without making any painful sacrifices. Incidentally, a low-sugar, low-cholesterol diet almost invariably is a low-calorie diet as well.

Let me admit that I have, on occasion, gone off my diet. It's very difficult when eating out to stick to my routine. But an occasional digression doesn't do any harm. Except on those few occasions when—as in the old days—I drink too much. Then I pay, as does anyone who drinks too much, with a hangover.

On October 8, approximately three months after my operation, I had my second stress test.

I dreaded it. I knew I could run a half mile without any trouble, but I was still concerned that the electrocardiogram would show changes when I was running on the treadmill. I took a sleeping pill the night before the test.

The stress test was completely normal. In June, when I'd first taken it, significant changes had occurred after two minutes of running. This time I ran for seven minutes, got my pulse up to 140 a minute, and there were no changes at all on my EKG. The only reason I quit at 140 was that I was too tired to go on; I had no pain, no shortness of breath, none of the distress I'd had before the operation. Both Joan and I were delighted.

The day after this stress test, I played my first postoperative game of racquetball. I was back on the court where the whole nightmare had begun. I was tense at first, worried that I might have trouble, but once I got into the game, I relaxed. It was a tough match, but I had no pain and never had to take a break.

To my great delight, despite my four-month layoff, I won.

Marilyn Monroe & Clark Gable

MARILYN MONROE (born Norma Jean Mortenson) June 1, 1926. Marilyn's expression numbers of (7+3+7) indicates her talent for acting, and her name (11), proved she was to appear in the limelight. Her vowel total of (2) confirmed her appreciation for performing, while her birthday (1) would bring her before the public, for this was her destiny. Her key number (7) showed her desire for perfection as an independent individual, and her first vowel(O) showed she was artistically gifted. Marilyn's heart self (5) indicates she desired excitement and change. Her subconscious self (6) proves she cared about home and family. The approach method (5) shows she wanted things to move quickly. The letter count (18) attracted wealth and success. Her foundation (5) was the desire for adventure. Marilyn's karmic lessons (3, 7, 8) indicated her need to be cautious of being depressed and withdrawn. It also indicated that she would be forced to handle business and money.

SELF-AWARENESS THROUGH NUMEROLOGY

Millions of Americans are now seeking beyond the American dream to find the power within themselves to lead happier and healthier lives. Self-awareness movements have mushroomed all over the United States. Marriage encounter, Transcendental Meditation (TM), Erhard Seminar Training (EST), just to name a few. How does numerology fit into this search for self-awareness? Every man, woman and child alive today is influenced and governed by various vibrations. To know what these influences are, we convert these vibrations into numbers. These numbers come from your own individual name and birthdate. When you were born, FATE bestowed your name upon you. No matter who named you, your name was the map to show you your road in life. It is a positive indication of what you would really be like. It is a source of insight into your present and future. Imagine how much easier it would have been to guide you, had your parents understood the meaning of your numbers. For every letter in your own personal name, every number in your birthdate, holds great significance as to who or what you are. It explains your true inner-self, your secret desires, your abilities, even your past, present and future. You can discover everything there is to know about a person. No matter how one dresses or makes up, numerology gives away their true inner-self.

NUMEROLOGY BEGINS WHERE ASTROLOGY LETS OFF

While numerology works hand in hand with astrology, the science of numerology delves much further into your innner-self. Two people may have the same birthdate, they may even be born at the same second, but when their names differ, their personalities, feelings, actions and desires become completely individual. Every letter in your name, every number in your birthdate, brings a certain influence into your life, causes you to be attracted to certain people, causes you to take certain actions in life, and reveals your complete character. Numerology helps put together the pieces of life, like a jigsaw puzzle, your character, how others see you, your inner desires, your destiny, your attitude towards life, your love, sex, romance, and your destiny in money matters. Discover the strong points and weak points of yourself, or anyone else you may wish to order a complete numerology scope on. Receive an intelligent exploration of the forces at work within you. Numerology, the clearest and most revealing of all the occult sciences.

WE DO NOT USE COMPUTERS

The science of numerology is so personally revealing, that your chart must be searched out individually. You will receive your numerology scope containing thousands of words typed out, revealing your own personal, individual characteristics.

COMPABILITY IN MARRIAGE

Have you ever wondered why some marriages need such hard work to succeed, while others just roll along smoothly with no effort?

A man and woman who are both quite similar from outward appearances, fall in love, get married, and to all observers' it appears as if the marriage was made in heaven. But, within a short period of time the honeymoon is over, and both parties become discontent with each other. (Everyone is surprised, but at the same time, they don't have any answers as to what went wrong.) Had the couple consulted their numerology scopes, perhaps they could have seen how opposite their desires, wishes, dreams and personalities really were from each other. Let's take an example of two prospective mates with different numbers in their charts. Outwardly both appear to be well matched. One has the number of 3, and the other is a 4. The number 3 is very romantic, imaginative, happy, friendly, creative, possesses a great sense of humor, optimistic about everything, and quite enthusiastic. As a number 3 she needs romance, admiration, and an outlet for her artistic abilities in order to be truly happy. She definitely needs a life filled with humor, fun, and constant love and affection.

A number 3 leans towards the light and fun side of life. The number 4 person is usually serious, practical, cautious, careful, dependable, economical, quiet, organized, and even inclined to be slow and finding satisfaction in living a routine type of life. While both patterns are perfectly healthy in their own way, they no doubt have to clash when brought together under one roof. The number 4, because of his serious nature will without realizing it, constantly repress number 3's enthusiastic outlook towards life. At the same time, number 3 will disturb number 4's steady going, dependable practical ways. Perhaps that is why there is very little divorce in India, for this is the land where the science of numerology is consulted to determine the number compatibility of each prospective spouse. Only if the numbers of both are in full harmony, will the lucky couple have the blessings of their families. When you order your complete numerology scope, there will be a chart enclosed showing which numbers you are compatible with and why. It will also show why you are not compatible with certain other numbers. Imagine how fascinating it is to be able to tell at a quick glance if anyone you know or meet is your type or not. This is your own personal number chart and it shows what your relationship will be like with every other number. The chart also shows you how to determine what number anyone is in a matter of seconds. With this knowledge, what could be closer to having the power of insight?

YOUR MONEY NUMBER

Everyone dreams of riches as well as the perfect love life. It is a natural urge of the soul to want to know what fate holds in store for you financially. The promises of the good life are written and hidden in each person's individual name. Are you thrifty, cautious, miserly, or do you not mind spending money within reason? Will money come to you easily or with great difficulty? Do your numbers show if you will be fortunate in financial matters, or does destiny intend to keep you insecure? Does your number tell us whether you will take risks to try and make your fortune, or will you be the practical and organized individual who will try to save it up slowly? Whether carefree or cautious with your spending, your numbers hold the secret.

NUMEROLOGY AIDS COLUMNIST

A well known American journalist was assigned the task of interviewing noted celebrities. This journalist had the advantage of being very adept in numerology. Before going on her interview, she worked out their numerology scope from their name and birthdate. She had more information before she left her office, than most reporters would know after the actual interview. During the conversation our journalist would ask a few unrelated questions, and in amazement the celebrity would exclaim in surprise, "but how did you know that?" In numerology all is brought into the open. There are no secrets that can be hidden about the person's true character, desires, wishes or personality. Whether the subject is motivation, heart's desire, capabilities, sex, love, romance or temperament, the personal numbers reveal ALL.

LOVE AND ROMANCE

Which of the following questions have you ever asked yourself about your spouse or lover in reference to their relationship with yourself? Are we sexually compatible? Which type will satisfy me the most? What are your (or their) hangups and physical responses? Are either of us passive or aggressive? What would their response be in a sexual context with myself? What do I know about my (or their) needs and desires? These are just some of the questions that are answered in your completely personal numerology scope, for your numbers can and do reveal the sexual potential that emerges in a normal and satisfying relationship built on the foundation of genuine love. Happiness and harmony in love do not develop by accident. Remember, our vibrations are translated to us through our numbers, and this includes our love vibrations. But only by knowing what our number vibrations mean can we control the destiny of our love life. By reading the secret numbers of your loved one or friend, you can learn to understand that person's feelings. You can quickly determine from their numbers if that certain individual is compatible with yourself.

GOVERN YOUR OWN DESTINY

Discover what talents you already possess so you can put them to use. Discover what obstacles keep getting in your way, so you may remove them. Discover your true destiny by knowing yourself, for numerology is self revealing. We were all born with some great talent, the trouble is, how to find it. Some waste their lives struggling to do things that don't come natural, ignoring their real talents. Numerology lights the path for the wise to follow.

KNOW THYSELF OR ANYONE ELSE

Do you wonder whether your friend is true or false? How much do you know about their needs and desires? What is your child's capability, destiny, needs and desires in life? What money and financial destiny lies ahead for them? Is that special person loyal or fickle, settled or restless, cooperative or stubborn, economical or wasteful, happy or moody, kind or cruel? These and hundreds of other questions are answered in the numerology scope of any person who's complete reading you wish to order. Remember, NUMBERS TELL ALL! A scientist writes "H^2O" and understands the meaning. A numerologist writes a persons name, and understands the individual's complete inner self.

25 YEARS OF RECENT SCIENTIFIC STUDY PROVES ALL SECRETS ARE REVEALED—THROUGH NUMEROLOGY

How often have you met someone and then wondered to yourself, what is he or she really like? Wouldn't it be fantastic to have powers of insight, of knowing all their hidden desires, wishes, their true character, talents, traits and even their past, present and future?

Numerology, which is as full of truth as any other accepted science reveals ALL. Until the last 100 years, numerology was reserved for Kings and millionaires. But recently, many of the world's top numerologists completed a 25 year in depth study and research at THE CALIFORNIA INSTITUTE OF NUMERICAL RESEARCH. Every phase was studied of the science of names and numbers, testing, proving, disproving, until through records and statistics it can be said "NUMBERS DO NOT LIE" but they do signify character and the events of the human experience with uncanny accuracy. All is revealed. Numerology is an old science, dating back over 3,000 years to the days of the great Greek philosophers. Pythagoras, the Master of Numerology said "Give me a man's number and I will tell all there is to know about him." The science of numerology was one practiced by wise and leading philosophers in his time. They realized even then, that everything was made up of vibrations, and that this applied to people as well as the universe, therefore it could be used to determine a great deal about any individual. "NUMEROLOGY"—as old as recorded history—as new as your next decision.

NUMEROLOGY! PERSONAL—YET REVEALING

No other science is capable of such accomplishment, none is so revealing. You can't believe it? Then try it and see for yourself. You'll be amazed. Order now, at this extremely low introductory price.

People Quiz

By John E. Gibson

The Whole Truth About Being Truthful

True or False? When you're not telling the truth, it's your face that's most likely to give you away. (See No. 3)

TRUE OR FALSE?

1. A habitual liar thinks most people are just as deceitful as he is.

2. How willing a person is to excuse a lie depends on whether he is of high or low status, a boss or an employee.

3. When you're not telling the truth, it's your face that's most likely to give you away.

4. If you're really a student of human nature, it's easy to tell whether someone is telling the truth or not.

5. How justifiable a falsehood seems is likely to depend on the sex of the perpetrator and that of the listener.

6. There are many people who never lie, and who, as a consequence, are seldom lied to.

ANSWERS

1. True. Psychological studies show that people tend to project—to attribute their own personality characteristics to others. And it has been truly observed that "It is hard to believe that a man is telling the truth when you know that you would tell a lie if you were in his place."

2. True. Studies show that the higher a person's status, the more unwilling he is to forgive liberties taken with the truth. A boss or other high-status individual is more likely to regard "bending the truth" as inexcusable than someone in a lower business or social position.

3. False. Psychological studies at the University of California have shown that when a person isn't telling the truth he gives himself away more by body movements than by facial expressions. It appears that while the prevaricator may take pains to mask or control his facial expressions, he gives little thought to altered body movements, which are more likely to alert the astute observer. And another university study showed that when a person is lying he stands farther away from the person he is addressing than he ordinarily would.

4. False. In studies at the University of Vienna, investigators conducted an interesting experiment: Tape-recorded interviews of 20 "liars" and 20 "nonliars" were presented to 21 experienced detectives, 145 psychology students and 200 high-school students. None of the three groups was more successful than the other in detecting the liars.

5. True—as indicated by studies conducted by a team of Loyola University researchers, which showed that "female subjects saw it least reprehensible when a female lied to a male and most reprehensible when a male lied to a female. The opposite trend occurred with males."

6. False. As two leading behavior specialists conclude, after summing up the findings of a consensus of studies on the subject: "The behavior of lying is something that most, if not all, of us have experienced both as listener and liar." And as one psychoanalyst observes in a definite treatise on the dynamics of deception: What we have yet to examine properly is what kind of lies we tell and under what circumstances and toward what end. There are white lies ("If that's the office calling, tell them I've got the flu or something." "I'm really only 29," etc.); malicious lies (to malign, annoy or injure); kind lies (told to spare another's feelings); and untold lies ("I suppose I should have spoken up, but I really didn't want to get involved").

Tammy Wynette:

Raeanne Rubenstein

"When the girls are home, it doesn't bother me that bad. But sometimes it's just me. And when it is, a 20-room house gets really, really big—especially after dark."

By Carol Offen

With her four daughters all in the wedding party, country singer Tammy Wynette remarried on July 18, after being divorced from former singing partner George Jones for nearly a year. In a quiet outdoor ceremony at her Nashville home, the singer married Michael Tomlin, a real estate businessman from Nashville.

This interview was conducted before Tammy had announced her wedding plans. In fact, Michael's name never came up. But the picture that emerged during the interview was of a wistful, lonely woman who—behind all the lights and glitter of her profession—was still looking for "Mr. Right." Perhaps she's found him.

FAMILY WEEKLY: How do you take proper care of yourself when you spend so much time on the road?

TAMMY: Well, you don't sleep right. Many nights I sleep two or three hours in uncomfortable hair rollers. My bus is all right, but there's just no way you can sleep like you can in your bed at home. When we get to a motel, there's maybe three hours before I play, so I'll have a hot dog or a hamburger instead of a regular meal. I take a lot of vitamins. If I didn't, I don't think I would stay as active.

TAMMY: It's hard, but I do. My girls are 15, 13, 11 and 5. With the two oldest girls, it works out so well. They love to bowl, also fish—and there are lots of little things we like to do together. Now, Tina, 11, wants to work the road because she had a record out that did really well, and she wants to record again. Until she brings up her grades, though, Mama's not going to let her, because—and I don't think I'm being unfair to her—she's got to be a child first, before she's a singer. Child stars lose so much of just being a kid.

FW: Do the older girls have any interest in show business?

TAMMY: No, they hate it. They absolutely hate it. Not that they hate country music, they're just very shy, quiet personalities. And if I introduce them all from the stage when they're sitting out in the audience, Jackie and Gwen will both scrunch down [Tammy imitates them by slinking down, as if trying to hide] . . . but Tina and Georgette will take bows, throw kisses, the works. [She shakes her head and laughs.] They're the funniest kids!

TAMMY: Well, since George and I have been divorced, they've only seen me go out three times, and each was with a different guy. No resentment, no anything. They were excited. You know—"Mommy's got a date!"

FW: Is it true that you were dating Burt Reynolds?

TAMMY: Well . . . I did go out with Burt, yes. But it was just a very good friendship. It's something I don't want a lot of publicity about because Burt is a very special person, and I don't think he deserves to have his name dragged around. All I'll say is that he's just a fabulous man, and my children loved him.

FW: What's been the most difficult adjustment since the divorce?

TAMMY: Just in getting used to being alone, really. After all, for 15 years of my life, I was married. [She had two earlier marriages.] And all of a sudden I'm not. At night, I find myself thinking—not just because George isn't there, because he and I have developed a good relationship now—not of wanting to go back to him, but of being able to see each other without fighting or fussin'. It's simply the fact that I've never been alone. When the girls are home, it doesn't bother me that bad. But sometimes it's just me. And when it is, a 20-room house gets really, really big—especially after dark.

"I still like to have cigarettes lit for me, car doors opened—those little courtesies. That's the way I was raised."

FW: Have you considered remarrying?

TAMMY: Well, I did for awhile, but I don't have any marriage plans. I'm just living one day at a time right now and enjoying it.

FW: Your dress styles seem to have changed a bit. You used to wear high-necked dresses, and I've noticed you wearing lower necklines lately.

TAMMY: I have changed some, but I still like high-necked dresses because I have a very long, thin neck. There again, after the divorce I wanted to change everything completely. Not myself, but I just didn't want to wear the same clothes that I had. So I went out and bought different things and tried to coordinate my clothes with the outfits of my singing group.

FW: "Stand By Your Man" made such an impact on your image, yet people who know you probably consider you fairly "liberated." Which is the true you?

TAMMY: Well, when we wrote the song, it meant an awful lot to me. And it still does. We were criticized heavily because of Women's Lib, but we didn't write it for anything but a pretty love song. I feel if a woman loves a man, she should stand by him. If a man loves a woman, he should stand by her. But that doesn't mean take any and everything that happens.

FW: So you don't think it's all one-sided . . .

TAMMY: No, I didn't mean that just because one's a man he can do anything. I don't think that's right. I am glad to see women have a little more freedom than what they've had. But I don't fight for Women's Lib, because I don't want to climb any telephone poles and I don't want to dig ditches and do things that aren't really feminine. I still like to have cigarettes lit for me, car doors opened—those little courtesies. That's the way I was raised in Mississippi, and the way I've always lived. And I still feel that someday, somewhere, there is somebody that will make me fully believe in that song again.

"I thought I'd need a salesman's personality to be out selling Avon. Not true at all. I do fine just being myself!" Cynthy Gravitt

Tustin, California

"I'm not the aggressive type and I'm shy about meeting new people. But selling Avon cosmetics really is a friendly business. My customers are happy to see me and make me feel welcome. It's amazing how much confidence I've built up since I became an Avon Representative.

Running my own business gives me a great deal of freedom. I'm able to work Avon around my family life. If my son Chad gets a cold, I can be with him as long as he needs me. That's the beauty of being your own boss.

All in all, Avon has made a beautiful difference in my life. It keeps me fresh and young. I'm more conscious of the way I look. And I've made a lot of new friends. Best of all, Avon has taught me I can just be myself, and everything else falls right into place."

Sports Mini-Profile

Baseball's George Brett: And Suddenly We Have a New Superstar!

As a youngster in Hermosa Beach, Calif., George Brett had three older brothers who were good baseball players. As the baby of the group, George had to shag flies while his elders took their turns hitting. George's one ambition was to be as good as his brothers. . . . He has achieved that ambition —and more. He is now the blue-chip third baseman for the Kansas City Royals, has maintained a phenomenally high batting average and has proved to be such a slick fielder that Manager Whitey Herzog says he may be the best all-around player in the American League. As a fielder, teammate Fred Patek puts him in the same class as Brooks Robinson. . . .Only one of George's brothers made it to the big leagues—Ken Brett, a pitcher with the Chicago White Sox. Ken has a reputation of being a great hitting pitcher—three years ago he hit four home runs in four consecutive pitching starts. But George has upstaged him. When Ken was pitching for the Yankees early this year, George faced him for the first time —and slammed a home run. . . . Still, the 23-year-old George is very close to his brother. "Ken left home to play baseball when I was only 12, so I didn't know him very well," George says. "When he pitched for Boston in the 1967 World Series, I realized just how good he was. I idolized him." . . . A sandy-haired six-footer who attracts large numbers of female fans, George says his brother's influence is an important reason why he remains single. "I see all the fun he's had and all the money he's been able to save. I decided to pattern my lifestyle after him." . . . Brett was drafted by Kansas City in 1971. His major-league debut was not auspicious. But in 1974, he did well enough to finish third in the "Rookie of the Year" balloting, and in 1975 he batted over .300, hit 11 homers and led his league in hits. . . . Brett credits Charley Lau, the Royals' batting coach, for making him a consistent hitter. Lau, in turn, says Brett is a "true artist with the bat—a player who doesn't have a weakness, and so can hit all pitchers to all fields."

Doctor's Amazing Reducing Plan Helps

Yes, lose as much as 10, 20, 30 even 50 pounds or more ■ without gruelling exercise ■ without starvation diets ■ without a single moment of ravenous hunger thanks to the most powerful reducing aid ever released for public use without a prescription!

How? By attacking the basic cause of overweight — overeating — and actually helping your body convert the food you eat into ENERGY instead of into fat!

From the office of the doctor who has taken even the most stubborn overweight cases and shown them a thrilling way to slash away pounds and inches in what seems like NO TIME AT ALL . . . comes proof of a medically proven approach that gives you the great ecstasy of slimness without the agony of gnawing hunger — yes, spectacular weight-loss results even if at this very moment you are 10 . . . 20 . . . 30 . . . 50 pounds overweight . . . or more!

NOW! TURN FOOD INTO ENERGY INSTEAD OF INTO FAT!

The secret behind this doctor's "no-hunger" eating program to a slimmer, trimmer figure . . . is a wondrous way to convert all the food you eat into ENERGY instead of into FAT! Yes, step up your body's rate of fat burn-off just like you'd step up a furnace. Actually help eliminate unsightly FLAB all over your body — by using it as a source of energy that your body burns up and flushes away. That's right . . . excess pounds and inches literally consumed by your own body chemistry . . . once you trigger the FAT REDUCING PROCESS with this proven formula for success. So effective is this doctor's medically proven program, that during the very first 3 days alone you'll see weight disappear from sight at the incredible rate of up to SIX POUNDS OF FAT AND FLUID GONE BY THE VERY FIRST 72 HOURS! In fact — and the doctor says note this carefully — depending upon how overweight you are, the more you weigh, the more you should initially lose.

Before starting this program, consult with your physician to be sure you are in normal health and your only problem is obesity. Individuals with high blood pressure, heart disease, diabetes, or thyroid disease should use only as directed by a physician. As a matter of fact, we urge you to show this entire program to your own family physician and see if he doesn't agree that this is a medically sound approach to the problem of obesity.

PROVEN ON SCORES OF PATIENTS — STARTLING WEIGHT LOSSES EVEN ON PEOPLE WHO HAD RUNAWAY APPETITES!

For years one of the most effective aids doctors used to attack the basic cause of fat build-up, overeating, was amphetamines. Only trouble: the side effects from amphetamines were so shattering it was often easier to live with the fat than to be plagued with insomnia, nervous jitters and worst of all, in some cases, even addiction. But now, suppose a doctor who has successfully treated obese patients for years told you that there now exists an EFFECTIVE SUBSTITUTE FOR HIGH-POWERED DRUGS. A fantastic program that includes THE MOST POWERFUL REDUCING AID EVER APPROVED BY THE GOV'T. FOR SALE TO THE PUBLIC WITHOUT A PRESCRIPTION. Yet so effective, that when you launch yourself on this doctor's proven capsule-program 4 things happen in your body:

- Those gnawing hunger pangs disappear, it takes less food to satisfy you therefore you have less caloric intake.
- The foods you do eat, instead of being stored up as fat are now converted into a source of energy that your body burns away.
- The layers of fat that up to now seemed impossible to budge, are suddenly consumed, broken down and used by your own body chemistry . . . to provide the energy needs of your body.
- And even though you may carve away as much as a staggering 20, 30, 50 pounds OR MORE . . . you do it without the risk of speed drugs like amphetamines, dexedrine, benzedrine. Why, do you realize what this means to you?

NOW SHRINK THE FAT CELLS IN YOUR BODY THIS DOCTOR'S PROVEN WAY

It means that now when you combine this powerful pill with this doctor's sensible, satisfying eating program, you not only lose weight starting right now, but you do not have to ever again suffer those gnawing pangs of hunger . . . ever again saddle yourself with an exhausting rigid system of exercise . . . ever again torture and starve yourself to death on some ridiculous fad diet . . . only to have your willpower snap and the pounds come rebounding back. Matter of fact, and though this may startle you . . . you are ordered by this doctor to eat 3 meals a day with such luscious foods as steak, chops, etc. You are never once asked to pit your hunger against a cast-iron willpower. For, just as he shows his own patients how to eat their way to slimness . . . this doctor lays down his own law to you: "Never starve yourself . . . there's no need to. You can eat mouthwatering steaks, roasts, chops, etc. as I tell you . . . and take one of these tiny golden capsules one to two hours before each meal." It's as simple as that. Naturally, we don't want to kid you. You can't gorge yourself on unlimited quantities of food and still lose weight. Instead, here's the doctor's way to replace all those zany, half-baked fad-diets of the past with a high-powered pill and a doctor's sure, sensible satisfying eating program that SHRINKS AWAY FAT LIKE NEVER BEFORE!

WHO EVER DREAMED OF SUCH A THRILLING WAY TO LOSE WEIGHT?

Picture this thrilling scene: Just 3 days have passed since you have started on this doctor's sensational program and you've taken your first few capsules. You have not missed a single meal . . . not done any torturous exhausting exercise . . . just the doctor's simple nitely tone-up program that's actually pleasant to do! You've just taken your first giant step on your march to slimness. So you step on the scale, and here's what happens.

You can't believe your eyes . . . for the first time in your life SUCCESS! Yes, you've started to win the war against fat. For what could be greater proof than the reading on your scale . . . AS MUCH AS 6 POUNDS OF FLUID AND FAT GONE IN JUST 72 HOURS. That's right! You, without even feeling it . . . without even noticing it . . . have actually discovered how to shed excess pounds and inches, like never before. And in the days and weeks to follow . . . just as gently, your body will continue to LOSE AND DRAIN AWAY, SHRINK AWAY, DISSOLVE AWAY 10 — 20 — 30 even 50 POUNDS of excess fat . . . until at long last you will have achieved your life-long goal . . . a new, slender body, a slim streamlined figure!

ORDER BIO-DRENE TODAY . . . THE ONLY THING YOU HAVE TO LOSE IS WEIGHT!

Yes, IT MUST WORK FOR YOU AS IT HAS FOR SCORES OF PATIENTS. IT MUST PRODUCE FOR YOU THE SAME ELECTRIFYING RESULTS AS IT HAS FOR SO MANY OTHER LIFE-LONG VICTIMS OF OBESITY . . . OR IT COSTS YOU NOTHING!

Proof Of Temporary Relief From Minor Arthritic Pain

PHILADELPHIA—Tests at a Philadelphia nursing home have shown that Mentholatum Deep Heating Rub brings hours of temporary relief to minor arthritic pain, and can help improve mobility. The tests were conducted at The Presbyterian Home for Widows and Single Women, with an instrument designed to measure grip strength. Each woman first tested her grip; then applied Mentholatum Deep Heating Rub. Its greaseless, stainless formula warms deep, eases stiffness, soothes pain. Hours later when tested again, the grip strength of most of those tested had significantly improved. Use as directed.

A Meat-Stuffed Eggplant Your Family Will Love!

BAKED STUFFED EGGPLANT

½ lb. lean ground beef
1 can (6 ozs.) tomato paste
1 egg, slightly beaten
2 tablespoons finely chopped onion
2 tablespoons finely chopped green pepper
1 garlic clove, minced
½ teaspoon salt
¼ teaspoon ground black pepper
½ cup dry red wine
½ cup plain whole milk yogurt
1 can (8 ozs.) tomato sauce
½ cup shredded mozzarella cheese

1. Preheat oven to 350°F.
2. Cut eggplant in half, scoop out pulp, leaving shell intact, and finely dice eggplant pulp.
3. In a skillet, brown eggplant in oil and add beef, turning until browned. Drain off any fat if necessary.
4. Stir in tomato paste, egg, onion, green pepper, garlic, salt, pepper, red wine and yogurt. Heat thoroughly, but do not boil. Spoon mixture into eggplant halves, top with tomato sauce and mozzarella cheese. Place in baking dish and bake for 45 to 55 minutes until bubbly and eggplant is tender. Makes 4 servings

What's Smart: Did you know these facts about yogurt?

- Yogurt is very easily digested and assists the digestive tract in assimilating other food more easily.
- Yogurt is an excellent source of protein. One cup of whole-milk yogurt contains 7 grams of protein.
- Pros at the Forest Hills U.S. Open Tennis matches last year reportedly ate 8,000 containers of yogurt in two weeks.

CINDY WILLIAMS
Middle-class sanity

Why success won't spoil 28-year-old Cindy Williams, better known as Shirley on ABC-TV's "Laverne and Shirley": "This show has made me an overnight success," said Cindy, "but I haven't let it go to my head. I grew up in a lower-middle-class family, and that background will always be a part of me. It taught me an invaluable lesson—the ability to be happy under any circumstances. Being an actress causes you to live an extreme life at times, and you need the stability I had growing up to sustain you. Sure, I like the money because I can help my mother pay off her mortgage, but mostly money is one big headache. There's nothing I really couldn't live without. I feel just as comfortable in tacky clothes as I do in expensive ones. The only time I'm really extravagant is at restaurants. I was a waitress once, and, knowing how rotten a job it is, I overtip good waitresses."

JOHN ROBINSON AND GEORGE MacAREE
Which of these men will be the new Heavyweight Champion?

May the biggest man win: George MacAree (right) and John Robinson have decided to stand and fight it out for the title of Britain's fattest man. John has thrown down the gauntlet to George and pledges to oust him from the "Guinness Book of World Records" where George's 553 pounds have immortalized him as England's heaviest resident. George's response: "He hasn't got a chance." John, at only 497 pounds, is willing to admit there's a long road ahead. But as the Battle of the Bulge continues, he's been having a field day: "I love my food and eat everything I want to. I am now eating that little bit extra to gain more weight." (His daily diet includes eight pounds of potatoes, two dozen oysters and four loaves of bread.) He adds prudently: "If the doctor tells me this will affect my health, I'll give it up straightaway." Wise words from a model of moderation!

One of the pitfalls of selecting an All-America college football team is that some of the greatest players are young men even few experts have ever heard of. Take John Filliez of Marshall University, Huntington, W.Va. Filliez, a wide receiver known to his fans as "Fuzzy," has all the credentials for bigtime stardom. In his junior season last year, he caught 50 passes for seven touchdowns and wound up the leading active receiver in the N.C.A.A. with 128 career receptions totaling 1,466 yards and 10 TD's. If he catches 50 passes this year, he will move into fifth place among the all-time N.C.A.A. receivers. If he catches as many as 56, he will vault into third place. Fuzzy's accomplishments are all the more remarkable when you consider that he has been constantly doubled and tripled on defense and that Marshall has had the unflattering records of 4-7, 1-10 and 2-9 during his three seasons. It was Gaylen Duskey, Sports Editor of the Raleigh Register in Beckley, W.Va., who called our attention to Fuzzy and the fact that he was not included on the ballot for our annual All-America team. Our apologies to Fuzzy—and to all the other unsung football heroes who labor in the shadow of the major football powerhouses.

ARMOUR'S ARMOURY

ANTIQUE WARY

I love the store that sells
Original or copy.

On counter, shelf, and floor.
I find I often have to ask,
"What is it? What's it for?"

I love this little store, I say,
By contrast, when I leave the place
I feel more young and normal.

Little Tommy fell down the stairs and his mother said, "What happened? Did you miss a step?"
"No," said Tommy, still crying, "I hit them all."—Anne Dirkman

One evening while visiting at my mother's home, our nearly 3-year-old son came out of the bathroom without a stitch of clothes on and ran into the living room where we were sitting. Seeing all eyes were on him, he smiled and said, "I'm barefooted!"
